GENERAL'S VIEW DID MUCH TO DIM DEFEATISM

Stronger Congressional Support Seen As Result Of Eisenhower's Report

PRESENT KOREAN POLICY DEEMED MISUNDERSTOOD

By John M. Hightower

Washington, Feb. 3. — (AP) — Administration officials expressed belief today that General Dwight D. Eisenhower's confidence in western ability to build a "wall of security" against communism has gone far to offset what some of them call "defeatism" in this country.

In consequence authorities at the state department and elsewhere now have hopes of stronger congressional support for sending more American troops to Eisenhower's allied European command. Other measures to strengthen allied forces also are regarded as better bets for congressional approval.

Bnt while there is greater cheer on that score, there is still considerable worry in some quarters, and notably at the state department that the government's present Korean policy is not sufficiently understood and lacks much support which it might otherwise have.

Public opinion checks made by officials show that many people:

1. Lack understanding of the purposes of the Korean campaign.
2. Want UN forces to withdraw.

Some officials have proposed that Mr. Truman make a public statement on why United Nations forces should strick on in Korea against the heavy odds of Chinese Communist manpower; others have thought the statement could be made effectively by Secretary of Defense Marshall or Secretary of State Acheson.

Fifteen-year - old Jerry Wayne Harper died of a fractured skull at about noon yesterday in the Vaughan - Wright - Bendel Clinic shortly after the bicycle he was riding was smashed by a pulpwood truck near 504 Jonesboro Road.

Ouachita Parish Coroner J. T. French said the base of skull was fractured, and that the youth had some abdominal injuries.

Dan S. Columbus, 30, driver of the truck, was charged with negligent homicide and released on bond, Sheriff Bailey Grant said last night.

Sheriff Grant said the investigation was incomplete but early reports indicated that the boy was riding in the same direction as the truck when the accident occurred on the slushy treacherous road.

Jerry Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W Harper of 1314 Nat street, West Monroe, was a student in the tenth grade at Ouachita Parish High School.

When hit by the truck, the boy was on his way to visit another young friend, Clifford Pugh, at 608 Montgomery street.

Rail Disputants Face To Face In Late Hour Talk In Washington

Representatives Of Railroads And Four Unions At Bargain Table Under Sponsorship Of Mediation Board; Convene Today

By Harold W. Ward

Washington, Feb. 3.— (AP) —Peace talks in the railroad dispute recessed until Sunday after a four-hour "exploratory" meeting tonight sponsored by the National Mediation Board.

Representatives of the railroads and of four operating unions involved in the dispute faced each other across the bargaining table for the first time since Dec. 21 when they made an agreement which did not stick. The union's local chairman rejected that pact.

After tonight's session, Francis A. O'Neil, Jr., member of the three-man mediation board said:

"It is a big package and the parties have to do a lot of exploring."

The carriers remained adamant in their position that they would talk only about the Dec. 21 memoranda of agreement, which they insist should have been a binding one.

"While they are meeting there is always a chance that they will go down the road to a settlement," O'Neil told reporters.

"But nobody could say that any real progress had been made, aside from the fact that they are still talking."

Although there were some indications of a possible back-to-work movement at various points in the nation's rail system, the post-office department here ordered post offices to quit accepting certain classes of mail because of the snarled traffic.

The walkout by switchmen who are members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen meanwhile was producing congressional demands for action to protect the defense program.

Capitol Hill began to talk about anti-strike legislation.

Senator Morse (R.-Ore.) said he thought the railroad situation should be "investigated at once."

He said that President Truman, under his emergency war powers, should appoint an arbitrator, and call upon the strikers to resume work, pending a decision on the workers' wage demands.

Basically they are seeking 48 hours pay for a 40 hour week.

Morse said any decision by an arbitrator should be made retroactive.

"You can't get a settlement until there has been a decision on

'Ham' Radio Keeps Dixie Operating

(By Ham Radio From New Orleans)

New Orleans, Feb. 3—(AP)—Those amateur radio operators—usually cursed for the dot-dash interference during your favoirite radio programs—are the guys who have kept things going in ice-bound Dixie.

They kept planes flying, news and emergency messages flowing and even have brought in the bread.

These "Ham" operators are the only link from some cities and the outside world. One of them ordered bread for Natchez, Miss., when the supply there ran alarmingly low.

Bread was rushed from Alexandria over ice-covered roads because a "ham" there got the message.

Washington Feb 3.—(AP)—Price Director Michael V. DiSalle warned today that the first meat black marketeer who is caught will be made a "national example." And DiSalle's staff prepared a new and tough meat order designed to aid enforcement of ceiling prices by tight curbs on slaughterers.

At the same time there were these other developments on the home front:

1. The government banned the use of aluminum in more than 200 consumer items, effective April 1. The items range from storm windows to automobile hardware. Kitchen utensils are not affected, however.

2. DiSalle rolled back the price of steel scrap and iron scrap about 20 per cent wiping out a sharp January increase. A spokesman for the scrap industry welcomed the action and said neither buyers nor sellers wanted the January rise. Scrap is used in mak-

Mystery Surrounds Whereabouts Of Former Minister

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 3. —(AP)—Dr. Vlado Clementis, who was ousted as foreign minister of Czechoslovakia last March because he "lost faith in Stalin," could not be reached at his home tonight. Police were on guard at his apartment.

Speculation was that he was in prison, under house arrest or—more likely—had vanished of his own accord and perhaps is now out of the country.

Clementis went out as foreign minister last March 14. Two months later his successor, Vilem Siroky, told a Communist party conference that Clementis had been deposed because of lack of faith in the Soviet leader.

An unidentified tipster who telephoned a western embassy Wednesday said he was a policeman and was calling to report that police had been searching for Dr. Clementis since Monday.

A neighbor said Clementis had not been seen in the vicinity of his home since that day, but an acquaintance claimed to have talked with him on Prague's main square Tuesday.

Official sources were not available for comment. A telephone call to the bank where Dr. Clementis had been working brought

Postoffices Ordered Not To Accept Certain Mail

The postoffice department ordered a nationwide embargo on certain classes of mail Saturday as the head of the striking switchmen and federal mediators made new moves to end the crippling "sick walkout."

Government prosecutors, meanwhile, pressed federal contempt charges in Chicago against the striking switchmen in an effort to break the log jam.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe ordered the striking union to show cause why it should not be held in contempt in the current walkout.

The five day strike of 12,000 Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen members has crippled freight and passenger train service in many parts of the country, hit industrial output a sharp blow and forced more than 160,000 into idleness.

The postoffice embargo is an extension throughout the nation of its Thursday embargo which applied only to mail moving to and from 14 eastern states.

Containing some exceptions, it applies to second class mail, except newspapers; and all third and fourth class matter; matter of the first class exceeding eight ounces, and air parcel post exceeding two pounds. Medicines, drugs and some other vital items were excepted.

W. P. Kennedy, B. R. T. president in Chicago for the contempt hearing, told newsmen he has wired regional B. R. T. officers:

"You must use every method at your command in cooperation with the vice-presidents who are working day and night to bring an end to this situation.

Jefferson parish has been the location for many of the prominent gambling establishments operating in the New Orleans area.

The committee announced yesterday they had agreed to listen to Clancy. The committee has announced it would seek to cite Clancy for contempt for refusing to answer questions regarding gambling in his parish. Clancy said in New Orleans Thursday he was ready to go before the committee again and "answer anything they ask."

Officials arriving at work today, found Night Watchman William Martin Davis and two safes missing. The 71-year-old watchman shouted to them from the icebox and was released.

Committee Reveals Pre-War Red Plot

Intrigue Involves Passage Of $100,000 In Counterfeit Money To Support Espionage In This Country And In Rumania

Washington, Feb. 3.— (AP) —A story of a pre-war Communist plot involving passage of $100,000 in counterfeit money in Chicago to support Soviet espionage in this country and in Rumania was unfolded today by the House Un-American Activities committee.

The committee, which is digging into international ramifications of Communist espionage, made public its report of closed-door inquiries held in late 1949 and early 1950.

According to testimony, three of the main characters in this spy-story thriller served prison terms —two in connection with passage of the "phoney money" and one for passport falsification.

But their trials apparently did not reveal the Red star in the background.

The story as unraveled by the committee testimony begins about 1929. Nicholas Dozenberg, then 47, native of Latvia and party worker in Chicago and New York, told of being summoned to Moscow at that time.

He was given the job of setting up "cover" in the United States for Soviet spying in Rumania. After traveling around Europe, including Rumania, Dozenberg said he returned to New York and in 1931 set up the American Rumanian film corporation.

Dozenberg's statement as given a committee investigator related that the offices of this organization "were to be used as a front for Soviet military intelligence in Rumania."

Another witness, Dr. William Gregory Burtan of New York, a naturalized Russian, said that although he had been expelled from the U.S. Communist party in 1929, he agreed to help establish the "front."

Burtan said he was arrested in 1933 by secret service men in New York on a charge of possession and passing of counterfeit money. He served ten years in the Northeastern penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa.

Burtan told the committee in executive session that during his

C. R. (Ruff) Tidwell area director for the state department of internal revenue, received a wire Saturday morning from Baton Rouge headquarters stating that the time limit for obtaining auto licenses will now be extended through February 21, because of weather conditions.

M. P. DERAILMENT IS BEING CLEARED

Salvage Crews Battle Leaping Flames, Cold To Restore Service

Salvage crewmen fought bitter cold and leaping flames yesterday in an effort to put a section of the Missouri Pacific railroad back into service six miles north of Pollock, La., where 14 freight cars were derailed Friday night.

A representative of the Missouri Pacific Railroad said here last night the wreckage was expected to be removed and regular schedules restored by today at noon. Passenger trains were being rerouted yesterday with a little over one and a half hour delay in schedules.

The wreck spilled a cargo of highly inflamable chemicals, crude rubber and ammonia. The wreckage burst into flames and was burning 24 hours later. The spokesman here said the fire was expected to be brought under control last night.

Salvage crews from Monroe and Alexandria were called to the scene where operations were launched in one of the worst freezes in recent years.

A railroad official said the wreck was believed to have been caused by a broken wheel on one of the cars.

Monroe-New Orleans Passenger trains were diverted from the main line at Georgetown, north of the wreck, and at Tioga, south, through Paxton over Louisiana and Arkansas Railroad lines.

In a breakdown of cargo involved in the derailment, the spokesman gave the following: crude rubber eight cars; inflamable chemicals, four cars; amonia, two cars.

There were no injuries.

Several stories in today's Morning World were made available through the cooperation and ingenuity of amateur radio operators.

When leased news wires failed, due to the weather, The World was temporarily isolated from regional news which is normally sent from New Orleans.

Marvin M. Hill (W5EB) and William Bell, (W5MWE) two local amateur radio set owners, supplied us with these items by direct telephone to our newsroom as the news came in through their stations from The Associated Press via naval reserve radio (W5USN) in New Orleans. Other newspapers in Mississippi and Louisiana received news reports in a similar fashion.

We salute the "hams."

WINTER LOSING ITS FIRM GRIP

Schools Will Reopen Monday If Thaw Continues To Progress

The big thaw apparently began yesterday and if forecasts of "warmer weather" hold true the Twin Cities will soon be back to normal after one of the worst lashes from winter in the memory of most contemporaries.

Temperatures above freezing are expected early today. Yesterday marked the sixth day of a hard freeze with ice and snow alamode.

A heavy frost fell Friday night and fair weather prevailed all day yesterday. Temperatures ranged from 38.2 down to 2.9 degrees yesterday.

Schools, closed since early last week will probably resume classes Monday. Ice and snow on highways and streets has been the main cause of the dismissal of schools.

A high percentage of the children are brought in by bus.

Ouachita Parish School Superintendent Mack Avants said last night he planned to check the main bus routes today and determine whether they would be sufficiently safe. He added that "if the thaw continues as well as it started today I think we'll open up Monday."

State police reported yesterday that highways would be closed to heavy traffic last night. They were opened during the day yesterday and will reopen this morning, the report said.

Police said the closure was was deemed necessary at night because of several hills which are still hazardous.

Three days ago the highways were banned entirely to heavy vehicles.

If hopes or a thaw bear out many residents will find they have bursted water pipes. When ice in bursted pipes melts the damage will be evidenced by leaks.

Tokyo, Feb. 3.— (AP) — Fierce Turkish infantrymen stormed a Red-held hill eight miles northwest of Suwan today after Allied artillery smashed several small Communist counterattacks on the cold Korean warfront.

The Reds were sending reinforcements southward to bolster their sagging lines south of Seoul, as the Allies pushed their attack northward. The temperature dropped from slushy weather to 25 below zero in the area where U.N. troops Friday pushed forward as much as two and one half miles.

One tank spearhead was north of Anyang, eight miles below Seoul. The buildup by Chinese and North Korean Reds was noticeable during the night.

U. S. Fifth Air Force reported 1,400 Red vehicles moving south on northern Korean roads. Night intruder planes smashed at the traffic clogged highway, enemy-held towns and troop concentrations on the battle line.

Frey, Borth Get New Posts After Recent Change At University

(By Ham Radio From New Orleans)

Baton Rouge, Feb. 3. —(AP)—Louisiana State University's board today appointed two new administrators and ordered tighter screening at faculty requests for early retirement.

The appointments, made on recomendation of new President Troy H. Middleton were:

Fred C. Frey, L. S. U. Sociology professor and one - time acting president, as temporary dean of the university.

Dr. Daniel S. Borth, Jr., assistant comptroller, as comptroller to succeed Middleton as comptroller.

The board unanimously deferred action on an application for retirement filed by any employe in the L. S. U. agricultural extension division.

Under a controversial policy adopted by the board December 15, the employe would have been eligible for retirement benefits both from the university and federal civil service. Action on the request, to retire because of physical disability, was postponed.

Next Few Days Will Decide Whether Army Gets To 38th

By Russell Brines

Tokyo Feb. 3 —(AP)—Battle developments in the next few days will determine whether United Nations forces can punch to the 38th parallel.

The Chinese reaction to the 10-day-old allied offensive will indicate how far north the allies can plan on going. And it is likely to dictate much of the immediate strategy for continuing what still is a holding war on the part of the allies.

Meanwhile renewed discussion of the 38th parallel as both a political boundary and a potential objective has caused American officers here to wonder why the subject arises again.

Eighth army authorities understandably said they would not telegraph their punches by commenting in any way on reports they had been ordered to push to the parallel.

But no high ranking officer has given any public or private indication at the moment that an advance as far as this boundary is included in present offensive plans.

The 38th parallel has been breached twice by the Communists and once by the allies during the Korean campaign. Military men consequently find it difficult to believe how there could be any political symbolism left in the invisible border.

There is some feeling here that the discussion of the parallel results from a misunderstanding of the scope of the present allied attack.

It is essentially, at this stage a defensive assault designed to

Committee Agrees To Hear Testimony Next Wednesday

(By Ham Radio From New Orleans)

New Orleans, Feb. 3—(AP)—Sheriff Frank Clancy, of Jefferson parish will have a chance to "purge himself of contempt" before a senate crimes committee here next Wednesday.

Clancy refused to answer many questions asked by Chairman Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) at a recent hearing in New Orleans.

Jefferson parish has been the location for many of the prominent gambling establishments operating in the New Orleans area.

The committee announced yesterday they had agreed to listen to Clancy. The committee has announced it would seek to cite Clancy for contempt for refusing to answer questions regarding gambling in his parish. Clancy said in New Orleans Thursday he was ready to go before the committee again and "answer anything they ask."

The Ice Storm
(At Cairo, Illinois 1937)

The Ice King passed here yesterday
Letting his mantle fall-
His glistening, icy mantle
Snugly covering all

The hills and dales are all arrayed
In dazzling garments fair,
The highways and the city streets
Are all an icy glare.

The wayside weeds.. and shrubbery, too
Are weighted down with crystal ice.
The landscape is a fairy scene

Thugs Lock Watchman In Refrigerator

(By Ham Radio From New Orleans)

New Orleans, Feb. 3. — (AP) — Thugs locked a night watchman in an icebox and hauled off a Blue Plate Food Company safe containing $10,000 in cash and checks early today.

The yeggs took another $100 from a smaller safe, opening it on the premises.

Officials arriving at work today, found Night Watchman William Martin Davis and two safes missing. The 71-year-old watchman shouted to them from the icebox and was released.

M. P. DERAILMENT IS BEING CLEARED

Salvage Crews Battle Leaping Flames, Cold To Restore Service

Salvage crewmen fought bitter cold and leaping flames yesterday in an effort to put a section of the Missouri Pacific railroad back into service six miles north of Pollock, La., where 14 freight cars were derailed Friday night.

A representative of the Missouri Pacific Railroad said here last night the wreckage was expected to be removed and regular schedules restored by today at noon. Passenger trains were being rerouted yesterday with a little over one and a half hour delay in schedules.

The wreck spilled a cargo of highly inflamable chemicals, crude rubber and ammonia. The wreckage burst into flames and was burning 24 hours later. The spokesman here said the fire was expected to be brought under control last night.

Salvage crews from Monroe and Alexandria were called to the scene where operations were launched in one of the worst freezes in recent years.

A railroad official said the wreck was believed to have been caused by a broken wheel on one of the cars.

Monroe-New Orleans Passenger trains were diverted from the main line at Georgetown, north of the wreck, and at Tioga, south, through Paxton over Louisiana and Arkansas Railroad lines.

In a breakdown of cargo involved in the derailment, the spokesman gave the following: crude rubber eight cars; inflamable chemicals, four cars; amonia, two cars.

There were no injuries.

Several stories in today's Morning World were made available through the cooperation and ingenuity of amateur radio operators.

When leased news wires failed, due to the weather, The World was temporarily isolated from regional news which is normally sent from New Orleans.

Marvin M. Hill (W5EB) and William Bell, (W5MWE) two local amateur radio set owners, supplied us with these items by direct telephone to our newsroom as the news came in through their stations from The Associated Press via naval reserve radio (W5USN) in New Orleans. Other newspapers in Mississippi and Louisiana received news reports in a similar fashion.

WINTER LOSING ITS FIRM GRIP

Schools Will Reopen Monday If Thaw Continues To Progress

The big thaw apparently began yesterday and if forecasts of "warmer weather" hold true the Twin Cities will soon be back to normal after one of the worst lashes from winter in the memory of most contemporaries.

Temperatures above freezing are expected early today. Yesterday marked the sixth day of a hard freeze with ice and snow alamode.

A heavy frost fell Friday night and fair weather prevailed all day yesterday. Temperatures ranged from 38.2 down to 2.9 degrees yesterday.

Schools, closed since early last week will probably resume classes Monday. Ice and snow on highways and streets has been the main cause of the dismissal of schools.

A high percentage of the children are brought in by bus.

Ouachita Parish School Superintendent Mack Avants said last night he planned to check the main bus routes today and determine whether they would be sufficiently safe. He added that "if the thaw continues as well as it started today I think we'll open up Monday."

State police reported yesterday that highway would be closed to heavy traffic last night. They were opened during the day yesterday and will reopen this morning, the report said.

Police said the closure was was deemed necessary at night because of several hills which are still hazardous.

Three days ago the highways were banned entirely to heavy vehicles.

If hopes or a thaw bear out many residents will find they have bursted water pipes. When ice in bursted pipes melts the damage will be evidenced by leaks.

Tokyo, Feb. 3.— (AP) — Fierce Turkish infantrymen stormed a Red-held hill eight miles northwest of Suwan today after Allied artillery smashed several small Communist counterattacks on the cold Korean warfront.

The Reds were sending reinforcements southward to bolster their sagging lines south of Seoul, as the Allies pushed their attack northward. The temperature dropped from slushy weather to 25 below zero in the area where U.N. troops Friday pushed forward as much as two and one half miles.

Frey, Borth Get New Posts After Recent Change At University

(By Ham Radio From New Orleans)

Baton Rouge, Feb. 3. —(AP)—Louisiana State University's board today appointed two new administrators and ordered tighter screening at faculty requests for early retirement.

The appointments, made on recomendation of new President Troy H. Middleton were:

Fred C. Frey, L. S. U. Sociology professor and one - time acting president, as temporary dean of the university.

Dr. Daniel S. Borth, Jr., assistant comptroller, as comptroller to succeed Middleton as comptroller.

The board unanimously deferred action on an application for retirement filed by any employe in the L. S. U. agricultural extension division.

Under a controversial policy adopted by the board December 15, the employe would have been eligible for retirement benefits both from the university and federal civil service. Action on the request, to retire because of physical disability, was postponed.

Committee Reveals Pre-War Red Plot

Intrigue Involves Passage Of $100,000 In Counterfeit Money To Support Espionage In This Country And In Rumania

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A story of a pre-war Communist plot involving passage of $100,000 in counterfeit money in Chicago to support Soviet espionage in this country and in Rumania was unfolded today by the House Un-American Activities committee.

The committee, which is digging into international ramifications of Communist espionage, made public its report of closed-door inquiries held in late 1949 and early 1950.

According to testimony, three of the main characters in this spy-story thriller served prison terms —two in connection with passage of the "phoney money" and one for passport falsification.

But their trials apparently did not reveal the Red star in the background.

The story as unraveled by the committee testimony begins about 1929. Nicholas Dozenberg, then 47, native of Latvia and party worker in Chicago and New York, told of being summoned to Moscow at that time.

He was given the job of setting up "cover" in the United States for Soviet spying in Rumania. After traveling around Europe, including Rumania, Dozenberg said he returned to New York and in 1931 set up the American Rumanian film corporation.

Dozenberg's statement as given a committee investigator related that the offices of this organization "were to be used as a front for Soviet military intelligence in Rumania."

Another witness, Dr. William Gregory Burtan of New York, a naturalized Russian, said that although he had been expelled from the U.S. Communist party in 1929, he agreed to help establish the "front."

Burtan said he was arrested in 1933 by secret service men in New York on a charge of possession and passing of counterfeit money. He served ten years in the Northeastern penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa.

Burtan told the committee in executive session that during his

C. R. (Ruff) Tidwell area director for the state department of internal revenue, received a wire Saturday morning from Baton Rouge headquarters stating that the time limit for obtaining auto licenses will now be extended through February 21, because of weather conditions.

Next Few Days Will Decide Whether Army Gets To 38th

By Russell Brines

Tokyo Feb. 3 —(AP)—Battle developments in the next few days will determine whether United Nations forces can punch to the 38th parallel.

The Chinese reaction to the 10-day-old allied offensive will indicate how far north the allies can plan on going. And it is likely to dictate much of the immediate strategy for continuing what still is a holding war on the part of the allies.

Meanwhile renewed discussion of the 38th parallel as both a political boundary and a potential objective has caused American officers here to wonder why the subject arises again.

Eighth army authorities understandably said they would not telegraph their punches by commenting in any way on reports they had been ordered to push to the parallel.

But no high ranking officer has given any public or private indication at the moment that an advance as far as this boundary is included in present offensive plans.

The 38th parallel has been breached twice by the Communists and once by the allies during the Korean campaign. Military men consequently find it difficult to believe how there could be any political symbolism left in the invisible border.

There is some feeling here that the discussion of the parallel results from a misunderstanding of the scope of the present allied attack.

GENERAL'S VIEW

Eastern policy, finally spoke out publicly on this issue last weekend.

In a statement which Mr. Truman reportedly has commended to the attention of other officials, Rusk described Korea as part of a global pattern of struggle against aggression and he said: "The thousands who have died in Korea have sacrificed their lives in a struggle to prevent the millions of deaths which World War III would surely bring."

While Rusk went on to list a number of other reasons for not "running away from" the fight in Korea, officials believe that much more must be said before people whose sons, brothers, or husbands are fighting in Korea can be expected to understand the reason why.

Some officials at the state and defense departments link the effects of uncertainty over defending Europe and of despair over American reverses into a single pattern and call it defeatism.

Among those who have expressed themselves hotly, but so far behind closed doors, is Undersecretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett, who has told friends that the government is doing an excellent job of marshalling the country's resources and developing leadership for the free world and it should have the confidence of the country.

Eisenhower did not use the term defeatism in his speech to the nation last night but possibly had something like that in mind in assailing what he called "hysterical apprehension of the future." He urged Americans to face present danger squarely without allowing "fear to warp our judgment."

As to what ought to be done about the dangers, Eisenhower said that with unity of spirit and action the free world can erect a "vault of security." The full impact of his talks will be felt first when the senate comes to vote on the question of sending troops to Europe. While Mr. Truman has said he will do this but would like congressional support, various Republican critics would either prohibit or impose a limit on troop commitments.

In a month or so the president will send congress a new $10,956,000,000 foreign aid program to strengthen the military and economic power of non-Communist nations in Europe and Asia. This will provide another test of administration leadership and of the extent to which Eisenhower has built confidence in its policy of cooperating in the defense of Europe.

That the government itself is at least paroly responsible for the public uncertainty or "defeatism" regarding Korea is a point reluctantly conceded by some officials.

Much of the difficulty goes back to the December meeting of Mr. Truman and Prime Minister Attlee when it was announced, in their face of defeats in Korea, that United Nations forces would not voluntarily withdraw. Word was passed out that they might be reduced to a beachhead position, but they would stick on.

No high level explanations of this beachhead policy was forthcoming. Thousands of people have written to Washington asking substantially this question: "Why should American soldiers continue to get killed in Korea when they seem to have no chance for cleancut victory?"

The reasons are more political than military and that may be one of the difficulties the government faces in trying to make a formal statement. Militarily Korea has very little strategic value. But politically—as a place to discourage aggression, to make the cost of Communist conquest very high and to prove that the United States does not, in Rusk's words, "lack courage in the face of adversity" Korea is a proving ground which the highest officials say could not be abandoned now without great loss.

men at Minneapolis-St. Paul, Tacoma, Seattle and Auburn, Wash., and hoped to have switching crews back on the job within a few hours.

The mediation board in Washington called a new meeting between railroad and union officials for late Saturday (5 p. m. EST).

Thad Scott, Jr., head of the board, asked them to sit down jointly with the board to discuss the strike.

The unions and railroad representatives met separately with the board Friday night, but mediators were not able to bring the two sides together.

Army quartermaster officers in Chicago said the work stoppage has created "quite a problem" in supplying army camps with food. The army has been able to meet the situation so far by purchasing fruits, vegetables and other perishables as close to camps as possible and trucking it to camps. However, all camps are in short supply, officers said.

Pittsburgh, Columbus, Buffalo, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Portland, Ore., reported the strike was spreading.

More passenger train schedules were cancelled in Chicago. The New York Central discontinued the last of its suburban service in New York Friday night. This raised the secondary problem of worker absenteeism — persons unable to get to their jobs.

Secretary of Interior Chapman arranged to set up an emergency office of the petroleum administration for defense at Chicago to cope with a threatened oil shortage in the north central states.

The BRT members are seeking a 40 hour work week at 48 hours pay and change in certain working rules.

Kennedy flew to Washington to attend the mediation session after Judge Igoe recessed the contempt hearing until Monday.

The union chief said word of the new mediation session was "good news."

The union may be required to show cause Wednesday why it should not be held in contempt for the present strike.

The end-strike injunction issued during the December walkout still is in force.

In its contempt action the government is seeking the names of every switchman who took part in the December walkout in an effort to show that absenteeism was limited almost exclusively to BRT members.

The union members claimed they failed to work because they were sick.

REVEAL

trial he did not tell where he got the money. "I was really protecting Dozenberg," he said. He admitted he knew Dozenberg was mixed up in Soviet espionage.

Burtain related that Dozenberg, who he said had been passing the counterfeited in Berlin. He said Dozenberg wanted his help in getting it converted in large blocks into sound money.

Burtan said Dozenberg planned to use the proceeds to finance the "cover" corporation and various "fronts" for his activities.

Burtan brought into the plot a German, Hans Daschan Von Buelow, whom he described as a hard-up "adventurer of the world" who "knew everybody and everything" and was probably a Nazi.

It was Von Buelow's idea, so Burtan said, that the bills should be given to an unnamed Guatemalan finance minister who, for a cut of the proceeds, would put them into a safe and take out good U.S. or Guatemalan money. The theory, Burtan said, was that the substitution would not be uncovered for "many years."

But Burtan related that the idea never was carried out.

Instead Burtan said, Von Buelow had another scheme which he first learned about during the trial. He related that Von Buelow had a friend in Chicago, a private detective, named Smiley, who engages "underground characters."

"These underground characters distributed the money," said Burtan.

When one got caught he "squealed," the witness added.

He related that Von Buelow was tried separately and served one hour in jail. He had acted as a government witness.

Meanwhile, the instigator, Dozenberg, according to his own statement, was busy on other matters for his Russian masters.

He was ordered back to Moscow in 1933. He was sent on an espionage mission into China. He returned to New York in 1937 under instructions to set up a "cover" in Manila. But that proved more difficult than expected and in July, 1938, he was in Washington, D.C., broke.

"But a "contact" turned up with $1000 and instruction that he go back to Moscow. The Russians wanted him to return to the United States and set up "a cover" business for Soviet agents in this country. He refused and the Soviets gave him $600 to come back.

Dozenberg was mystified as to why he was allowed to leave Moscow after his refusal to do the Soviets' bidding.

"After this break" he went to Bend, Ore., where in 1939 he acquired a small grocery store, his statement went one. He was arrested in December, 1939, for obtaining a passport under false pretenses and on a plea of guilty was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary at Lewisburg.

About 1939, Burtan said, he told the FBI the "real facts" in the counterfeit plot, and he said he believed Dozenberg was never prosecuted in that case because the statute of limitations applied.

MYSTERY

the reply that his department would be open Monday morning.

The mystery of his whereabouts came amid unconfirmed reports that changes were pending in official levels of the government and the Communist party.

Clementis who is 49, is a Slovak and a longtime Communist. During World War II he was in London with the Czech government - in-exile headed by the late President Eduard Benes. He was made foreign minister in 1948, serving until last March.

Premier Antonin Zapotocky announced at a cabinet meeting March 14 that Clementis had been relieved of his duties at his own request. No reason for this move was given at the time, but western sources here had suspected for some time that the ousted foreign minister bore a "western taint" because of his wartime work in London.

At the ninth congress of the Slovak Communist party in Bratislava last May, Clementis was accused of "bourgeois nationalism" and enmity toward the Soviet Union. It was disclosed he had recanted but that his recantation had not been accepted

In July, however, he was given the post of head of the securities department of the state bank. Clementis is known to have been working in that post as late as three weeks ago.

There have been plausible reports lately that changes are being made in the ministry of foreign trade and less plausible stories that the government itself is headed for a high-level shakeup.

Some shifts in personnel and the line of the Communist party in Czechoslovakia are expected to emerge at a meeting of the full central committee soon to be held, according to party sources. These informants said the meeting was to have been last week but was postponed because of "hesitancy" over policy.

One big change is reliably reported to have taken place already. Mrs. Svermova, widow of a Communist wartime resistance leader, Jan Sverma, is said to have been arrested and dropped from the job of second deputy secretary - general of the party. Usually well informed sources said Mrs. Svermova was involved in the case of Otto Sling, Erstwhile party secretary for the Brno region, who was arrested last october.

Published charges against Sling have listed only "harmful practices" and neglect of prewar Communists in the distribution of party jobs. Unofficially he is reported widely to have been accused of an elaborate foreign exchange racket. One well placed informant said the indictment would list treason and espionage

Clementis' name has not been linked with Sing's.

Clementis, a lawyer and journalist, became a member of the Communist party of Czechoslovakia at its establishment in 1921. He was elected to parliament in 1935. When the Germans occupied Bohemia in 1939 he went to Paris and later to London. In the British capital he became a member of the legal council of the Czech exile government and directed Slovak language broadcasts from the British Broadcasting Corp

In April, 1945, Clementis became a member of the re-established Czechoslovak government as deputy foreign minister. After Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk was found dead beneath a ministry window in March, 1948, Clementis took his place.

Clementis' name was still on the directory in the lobby of his apartment house tonight. In accordance with custom in some households here, his wife's name, Lida Clementisa is on the door of their apartment.

A woman who answered the door for reporters said she did not want to deal with them A young man could be seen just inside. Another, who appeared from outdoors to investigate he arrival of visitors, answered questions with "We can't help you."

BLACK MARKETS

ing steel, but no change is expected in the price of steel itself.

3. A reduction of eight per cent was ordered in the amount of new rubber available for civilian production in February and March. As for meat, DiSalle informed a reporter.

"There have already been rumors of black markets in meat. We haven't established whether these are facts or only rumors.

"I feel sorry for the first man we catch. He'll be made a national example."

He didn't smile when he said it. The FBI and other government agencies are helping the small enforcement division of DiSalle's office of price stabilization (OPS).

Penalty for violating freeze on meat prices could range up to a maximum of a year in jail, $10,000 fine and civil suits to recover damages.

Officials of the office of price stabilization (OPS) said the order curbing slaughterers probably will be issued Monday or Tuesday.

It will probably limit each slaughterer to the same proportion of the supply of each type of meat that he had in 1950.

The agriculture department now has the authority to prescribe quotas for slaughterers. It is expected to delegate this power to the OPS.

Some wholesalers are accusing some packers of having made one or two isolated sales at high prices during the Dec. — Jan. 25 "base period" on which present ceilings are based on doing this with the sole object of gaining higher ceiling after the freezing of prices at price order was issued Jan. 26 beriod.

It seems doubtful today that the OPS will take any action on these charges, because the agency has not yet been able to tell whether it is really a serious problem.

This would free ginners from price control and would also lift the freeze from operations on the cotton exchanges. The exchanges have been closed ever since the price order was issued Jan. 26 because of great confusion about its application.

The cotton men's proposal also was reported to include an "escalater clause" under which the price of textiles could go up or down with changes in the price of raw cotton. The OPS is considering the recommendations.

According to Saturday's enrollment figures students registering for the first time and transfer students comprised about 15 per cent of the enrollment, thus far. This ratio also applied to the number announced at the end of Friday's enrollment.

Veterans already registered represent about 17 percent of the total figure. Veterans of last semester comprise about 10 percent of the student body, making a considerable rise in the number of GI's normally attending.

Saturday's registration included several teachers who are interested in the formation of late afternoon or Saturday morning classes. Trailer courses are being offered this semester so that students entering as freshmen will be able to schedule the full load of classes.

Thirty-three junior and senior courses will supplement subjects given at the college during the second term, and additional offerings are made with special emphasis upon courses in education, fine arts, business administration and science.

Providence Schools May Not Open Monday

Lake Providence, La. Feb. 3.—(Special) — Lake Providence is almost isolated due to record-breaking weather conditions. No buses are moving in or out of town on their runs. Schools, closed all last week, will not reopen Monday unless there is a radical change for the better in the weather, states M. M. Walsworth, parish school superintendent.

Mail is limited here both outgoing and incoming to first class and is brought in by auto not by train. Eight inches of snow covers the ground and Thursday saw zero temperature.

Two accidents occurred, Miss Allein Harkey, freshman in high school here, fell and broke a leg and Mrs. L. B. Avery, assistant clerk in the F. H. A. office also fell and broke an ankle.

Army End Ed Weaver, also a baseball player, was born within 40 miles of the West Point Military Academy.

SIX MISSING IN SEA DISASTER

Army Boat Capsizes Off Golden Gate Throwing Crew Into Water

San Francisco, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A 50-foot army boat capsized in rough water off the golden gate this afternoon, throwing its crew, estimated at from 16 to 21 men, into the sea.

The coast guard reported that at least 14 had been rescued.

The steamer Jermiah S. Black inbound radioed the coast guard that crewmen had seen the boat overturn.

The accident happened five or six miles west of the point where the hospital ship benevolence was rammed and sunk at the entrance to the golden gate last year.

Reports received at the Fort Point coast guard station indicated that most of the passengers aboard the army tug, designated "T-6," were air force personnel.

As darkness fell, the coast guard rescue service still had not accounted for six of the men aboard the tug and, presumably, they were lost.

The tug itself, which never sank, was being towed to Fort Point. Its cabin was reported "smashed," which puzzled the coast guard. Officers said merely capsizing shouldn't have smashed the cabin.

Just what caused the accident had not been determined. The coast guard reported it had not been able to decide the cause from any of the information received thus far.

It was known that huge swells were running and this, generally, was regarded as the most likely cause. There were rumors, however, that the tug had hit a buoy or something in the water.

Ten of the 14 rescued were brought to the Fort Point coast guard station by private vessels. The yacht "Aloyd" owned by Lloyd A. Lundstrom of Oakland, picked up five, all suffering from shock and immersion in the chill waters. One had a broken arm.

"The tug capsized five or six miles west of the Benevolence Hulk," reported Lundstrom.

The five he rescued were:

Major William K. Matheson, commanding officer of the 1117 special air mission squadron at Hamilton field air base.

Capt. Donald R. De Foe

Capt. Edwin E. Buchanan,

Capt. James E. Bridwell.

Lieutenant Cullen (first name not available immediately).

The second rescue boat, the Jerry II, skippered by Harry J. Murphy of (91 Central Ave.), San Francisco, brought in these five:

Col. J. F. Mears, commanding officer of the special air mission group, Washington, D. C.

Master Sgt. Robert H. Reagin.

Staff Sgt. Elmer K. Koonts.

Master Sgt. F. H. Roarke.

Capt. Harry Roberson.

Four of the rescued were landed at Fort Baker on the north side of the Golden Gate:

Capt. J. H. Burlingame.

Capt. M. W. Baker.

Capt. G. A. Dunn.

Staff Sgt. B. Watson.

Reported by the army as still missing were six others:

Capt. W. A. Krushap.

Captain Sexton (no first name available immediately.)

Warrant officer Reese (no first name.)

Sergeant Hartenstein (no first name, skipper of the tug.)

Sgt. C. C. Goodwin, tug crewman.

Corple Buswell (not first name), tug crewman.

The fishing party had departed from Fort Baker a few hours before the accident, which was attributed to extremely rough water off the gate.

The freighter Jeremiah S. Black, inbound, was the first vessel to report the capsizing. Several coast guard boats, an army crash boat from Fort Baker and a number of private pleasure and fishing craft aided in the rescue work.

Coulter McKeever, aboard his yacht "Safari," said in a radio report that weather at the scene was clear but heavy swells were running.

Dr. Kiefer Named To Direct Defense

Washington, Feb. 3 —(AP)— Dr. Norvin C. Kiefer was named today to direct civilian defenses against atomic, biological and chemical attack.

The announcement from civil defense administration headquarters said he had been appointed director of the health services and special weapons defense division.

An officer of the United States public health services, Dr. Kiefer has been director of the health resources office of the national security resources board. He is the author of a number of published works in the medical field, including one of the standard volumes on rehabilitation in tuberculosis.

He supervised the preparation of the NSRB's basic civil defense health manual, "Health Services and Special Weapons Defense."

A native of Ohio, Dr. Kelfer is a graduate of Western Reserve University. He took his medical degree at the University of Michigan in 1930 and a public health master's degree at Johns Hopkins in 1947.

He entered the public health service in 1945 after 13 years in private practice in Ohio.

GENERAL'S VIEW

Eastern policy, finally spoke out publicly on this issue last weekend.

In a statement which Mr. Truman reportedly has commended to the attention of other officials, Rusk described Korea as part of a global pattern of struggle against aggression and he said: "The thousands who have died in Korea have sacrificed their lives in a struggle to prevent the millions of deaths which World War III would surely bring."

While Rusk went on to list a number of other reasons for not "running away from" the fight in Korea, officials believe that much more must be said before people whose sons, brothers, or husbands are fighting in Korea can be expected to understand the reason why.

Some officials at the state and defense departments link the effects of uncertainty over defending Europe and of despair over American reverses into a single pattern and call it defeatism.

Among those who have expressed themselves hotly, but so far behind closed doors, is Undersecretary of Defense Robert A Lovett, who has told friends that the government is doing an excellent job of marshalling the country's resources and developing leadership for the free world and it should have the confidence of the country.

Eisenhower did not use the term defeatism in his speech to the nation last night but possibly had something like that in mind in assailing what he called "hysterical apprehension of the future." He urged Americans to face present danger squarely without allowing "fear to warp our judgment."

As to what ought to be done about the dangers, Eisenhower said that with unity of spirit and action the free world can erect a "vault of security." The full impact of his talks will be felt first when the senate comes to vote on the question of sending troops to Europe. While Mr. Truman has said he will do this but would like congressional support, various Republican critics would either prohibit or impose a limit on troop commitments.

In a month or so the president will send congress a new $10,956,000,000 foreign aid program to strengthen the military and economic power of non-Communist nations in Europe and Asia. This will provide another test of administration leadership and of the extent to which Eisenhower has built confidence in its policy of cooperating in the defense of Europe.

That the government itself is at least paroly responsible for the public uncertainty or "defeatism" regarding Korea is a point reluctantly conceded by some officials.

Much of the difficulty goes back to the December meeting of Mr. Truman and Prime Minister Attlee when it was announced, in their face of defeats in Korea, that United Nations forces would not voluntarily withdraw. Word was passed out that they might be reduced to a beachhead position, but they would stick on.

No high level explanations of this beachhead policy was forthcoming. Thousands of people have written to Washington asking substantially this question: "Why should American soldiers continue to get killed in Korea when they seem to have no chance for cleancut victory?"

The reasons are more political than military and that may be one of the difficulties the government faces in trying to make a formal statement. Militarily Korea has very little strategic value. But politically—as a place to discourage aggression, to make the cost of Communist conquest very high and to prove that the United States does not, in Rusk's words, "lack courage in the face of adversity" Korea is a proving ground which the highest officials say could not be abandoned now without great loss.

men at Minneapolis-St. Paul, Tacoma, Seattle and Auburn, Wash., and hoped to have switching crews back on the job within a few hours.

The mediation board in Washington called a new meeting between railroad and union officials for late Saturday (5 p. m. EST).

Thad Scott, Jr., head of the board, asked them to sit down jointly with the board to discuss the strike.

The unions and railroad representatives met separately with the board Friday night, but mediators were not able to bring the two sides together.

Army quartermaster officers in Chicago said the work stoppage has created "quite a problem" in supplying army camps with food. The army has been able to meet the situation so far by purchasing fruits, vegetables and other perishables as close to camps as possible and trucking it to camps. However, all camps are in short supply, officers said.

Pittsburgh, Columbus, Buffalo, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Portland, Ore., reported the strike was spreading.

More passenger train schedules were cancelled in Chicago. The New York Central discontinued the last of its suburban service in New York Friday night. This raised the secondary problem of worker absenteeism — persons unable to get to their jobs.

Secretary of Interior Chapman arranged to set up an emergency office of the petroleum administration for defense at Chicago to cope with a threatened oil shortage in the north central states.

The BRT members are seeking a 40 hour work week at 48 hours pay and change in certain working rules.

Kennedy flew to Washington to attend the mediation session after Judge Igoe recessed the contempt hearing until Monday.

The union chief said word of the new mediation session was "good news."

The union may be required to show cause Wednesday why it should not be held in contempt for the present strike.

The end-strike injunction issued during the December walkout still is in force.

In its contempt action the government is seeking the names of every switchman who took part in the December walkout in an effort to show that absenteeism was limited almost exclusively to BRT members.

The union members claimed they failed to work because they were sick.

REVEAL

trial he did not tell where he got the money. "I was really protecting Dozenberg," he said. He admitted he knew Dozenberg was mixed up in Soviet espionage.

Burtain related that Dozenberg, who he said had been passing the counterfeited in Berlin. He said Dozenberg wanted his help in getting it converted in large blocks into sound money.

Burtan said Dozenberg planned to use the proceeds to finance the "cover" corporation and various "fronts" for his activities.

Burtan brought into the plot a German, Hans Daschan Von Buelow, whom he described as a hardup "adventurer of the world" who "knew everybody and everything" and was probably a Nazi.

It was Von Buelow's idea, so Burtan said, that the bills should be given to an unnamed Guatemalan finance minister who, for a cut of the proceeds, would put them into a safe and take out good U.S. or Guatemalan money. The theory, Burtan said, was that the substitution would not be uncovered for "many years."

But Burtan related that the idea never was carried out.

Instead Burtan said, Von Buelow had another scheme which he first learned about during the trial. He related that Von Buelow had a friend in Chicago, a private detective, named Smiley, who engages "underground characters."

"These underground characters distributed the money," said Burtan.

When one got caught he "squealed," the witness added.

He related that Von Buelow was tried separately and served one hour in jail. He had acted as a government witness.

Meanwhile, the instigator, Dozenberg, according to his own statement, was busy on other matters for his Russian masters.

He was ordered back to Moscow in 1933. He was sent on an espionage mission into China. He returned to New York in 1937 under instructions to set up a "cover" in Manila. But that proved more difficult than expected and in July, 1938, he was in Washington, D.C., broke.

"But a "contact" turned up with $1000 and instruction that he go back to Moscow. The Russians wanted him to return to the United States and set up "a cover" business for Soviet agents in this country. He refused and the Soviets gave him $600 to come back.

Dozenberg was mystified as to why he was allowed to leave Moscow after his refusal to do the Soviets' bidding.

"After this break" he went to Bend, Ore., where in 1939 he acquired a small grocery store, his statement went one. He was arrested in December, 1939, for obtaining a passport under false pretenses and on a plea of guilty was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary at Lewisburg.

About 1939, Burtan said, he told the FBI the "real facts" in the counterfeit plot, and he said he believed Dozenberg was never prosecuted in that case because the statute of limitations applied.

smaller communities were in their fourth day.

Regular telephone service between New Orleans and Shreveport, Alexandria and Monroe remained suspended. Emergency lines were up to these cities, however.

Although it was too early for an estimate, damage through the area will probably total more than $250,000 in crops, property and other damages.

MYSTERY

the reply that his department would be open Monday morning.

The mystery of his whereabouts came amid unconfirmed reports that changes were pending in official levels of the government and the Communist party.

Clementis who is 49, is a Slovak and a longtime Communist. During World War II he was in London with the Czech government - in-exile headed by the late President Eduard Benes. He was made foreign minister in 1948, serving until last March.

Premier Antonin Zapotocky announced at a cabinet meeting March 14 that Clementis had been relieved of his duties at his own request. No reason for this move was given at the time, but western sources here had suspected for some time that the ousted foreign minister bore a "western taint" because of his wartime work in London.

At the ninth congress of the Slovak Communist party in Bratislava last May, Clementis was accused of "bourgeois nationalism" and enmity toward the Soviet Union. It was disclosed he had recanted but that his recantation had not been accepted.

In July, however, he was given the post of head of the securities department of the state bank. Clementis is known to have been working in that post as late as three weeks ago.

There have been plausible reports lately that changes are being made in the ministry of foreign trade and less plausible stories that the government itself is headed for a high-level shakeup.

Some shifts in personnel and the line of the Communist party in Czechoslovakia are expected to emerge at a meeting of the full central committee soon to be held, according to party sources. These informants said the meeting was to have been last week but was postponed because of "hesitancy" over policy.

One big change is reliably reported to have taken place already. Mrs. Svermova, widow of a Communist wartime resistance leader, Jan Sverma, is said to have been arrested and dropped from the job of second deputy secretary - general of the party. Usually well informed sources said Mrs. Svermova was involved in the case of Otto Sling, Erstwhile party secretary for the Brno region, who was arrested last october.

Published charges against Sling have listed only "harmful practices" and neglect of prewar Communists in the distribution of party jobs. Unofficially he is reported widely to have been accused of an elaborate foreign exchange racket. One well placed informant said the indictment would list treason and espionage.

Clementis' name has not been linked with Sling's.

Clementis, a lawyer and journalist, became a member of the Communist party of Czechoslovakia at its establishment in 1921. He was elected to parliament in 1935. When the Germans occupied Bohemia in 1939 he went to Paris and later to London. In the British capital he became a member of the legal council of the Czech exile government and directed Slovak language broadcasts from the British Broadcasting Corp.

In April, 1945, Clementis became a member of the re-established Czechoslovak government as deputy foreign minister. After Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk was found dead beneath a ministry window in March, 1948, Clementis took his place.

Clementis' name was still on the directory in the lobby of his apartment house tonight. In accordance with custom in some households here, his wife's name, Lida Clementisa is on the door of their apartment.

A woman who answered the door for reporters said she did not want to deal with them. A young man could be seen just inside. Another, who appeared from outdoors to investigate the arrival of visitors, answered questions with "We can't help you."

ing steel, but no change is expected in the price of steel itself.

3. A reduction of eight per cent was ordered in the amount of new rubber available for civilian production in February and March. As for meat, DiSalle informed a reporter.

"There have already been rumors of black markets in meat. We haven't established whether these are facts or only rumors.

"I feel sorry for the first man we catch. He'll be made a national example."

He didn't smile when he said it. The FBI and other government agencies are helping the small enforcement division of DiSalle's office of price stabilization (OPS).

Penalty for violating freeze on meat prices could range up to a maximum of a year in jail, $10,000 fine and civil suits to recover damages.

Officials of the office of price stabilization (OPS) said the order curbing slaughterers probably will be issued Monday or Tuesday.

It will probably limit each slaughterer to the same proportion of the supply of each type of meat that he had in 1950.

The agriculture department now has the authority to prescribe quotas for slaughterers. It is expected to delegate this power to the OPS.

Some wholesalers are accusing some packers of having made one or two isolated sales at high prices during the Dec. — Jan. 25 "base period" on which present ceilings are based on doing this with the sole object of gaining higher ceiling after the freezing of prices at price order was issued Jan. 26 beriod.

It seems doubtful today that the OPS will take any action on these charges, because the agency has not yet been able to tell whether it is really a serious problem.

This would free ginners from price control and would also lift the freeze from operations on the cotton exchanges. The exchanges have been closed ever since the price order was issued Jan. 26 because of great confusion about its application.

The cotton men's proposal also was reported to include an "escalater clause" under which the price of textiles could go up or down with changes in the price of raw cotton. The OPS is considering the recommendations.

be penalized by late registration fees, Mr. Slater said.

According to Saturday's enrollment figures students registering for the first time and transfer students comprised about 15 per cent of the enrollment, thus far. This ratio also applied to the number announced at the end of Friday's enrollment.

Veterans already registered represent about 17 percent of the total figure. Veterans of last semester comprise about 10 percent of the student body, making a considerable rise in the number of GI's normally attending.

Saturday's registration included several teachers who are interested in the formation of late afternoon or Saturday morning classes. Trailer courses are being offered this semester so that students entering as freshmen will be able to schedule the full load of classes.

Thirty-three junior and senior courses will supplement subjects given at the college during the second term, and additional offerings are made with special emphasis upon courses in education, fine arts, business administration and science.

SIX MISSING IN SEA DISASTER

Army Boat Capsizes Off Golden Gate Throwing Crew Into Water

San Francisco, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A 50-foot army boat capsized in rough water off the golden gate this afternoon, throwing its crew, estimated at from 16 to 21 men, into the sea.

The coast guard reported that at least 14 had been rescued.

The steamer Jermiah S. Black inbound radioed the coast guard that crewmen had seen the boat overturn.

The accident happened five or six miles west of the point where the hospital ship benevolence was rammed and sunk at the entrance to the golden gate last year.

Reports received at the Fort Point coast guard station indicated that most of the passengers aboard the army tug, designated "T-6," were air force personnel.

As darkness fell, the coast guard rescue service still had not accounted for six of the men aboard the tug and, presumably, they were lost.

The tug itself, which never sank, was being towed to Fort Point. Its cabin was reported "smashed," which puzzled the coast guard. Officers said merely capsizing shouldn't have smashed the cabin.

Just what caused the accident had not been determined. The coast guard reported it had not been able to decide the cause from any of the information received thus fas.

It was known that huge swells were running and this, generally, was regarded as the most likely cause. There were rumors, however, that the tug had hit a buoy or something in the water.

Ten of the 14 rescued were brought to the Fort Point coast guard station by private vessels. The yacht "Aloyd" owned by Lloyd A. Lundstrom of Oakland, picked up five, all suffering from shock and immersion in the chill waters. One had a broken arm.

"The tug capsized five or six miles west of the Benevolence Hulk," reported Lundstrom.

The five he rescued were:

Major William K. Matheson, commanding officer of the 1117 special air mission squadron at Hamilton field air base.

Capt. Donald R. De Foe

Capt. Edwin E. Buchanan.

Capt. James E. Bridwell.

Lieutenant Cullen (first name not available immediately).

The second rescue boat, the Jerry II, skippered by Harry J. Murphy of (91 Central Ave.), San Francisco, brought in these five:

Col. J. F. Mears, commanding officer of the special air mission group, Washington, D. C.

Master Sgt. Robert H. Reagin.

Staff Sgt. Elmer K. Koonts.

Master Sgt. F. H. Roarke.

Capt. Harry Roberson.

Four of the rescued were landed at Fort Baker on the north side of the Golden Gate:

Capt. J. H. Burlingame.

Capt. M. W. Baker.

Capt. G. A. Dunn.

Staff Sgt. B. Watson.

Reported by the army as still missing were six others:

Capt. W. A. Krushap.

Captain Sexton (no first name available immediately.)

Warrant officer Reese (no first name.)

Sergeant Hartenstein (no first name, skipper of the tug.)

Sgt. C. C. Goodwin, tug crewman.

Corple Buswell (not first name), tug crewman.

The fishing party had departed from Fort Baker a few hours before the accident, which was attributed to extremely rough water off the gate.

The freighter Jeremiah S. Black, inbound, was the first vessel to report the capsizing. Several coast guard boats, an army crash boat from Fort Baker and a number of private pleasure and fishing craft aided in the rescue work.

Coulter McKeever, aboard his yacht "Safari," said in a radio report that weather at the scene was clear but heavy swells were running.

Dr. Kiefer Named To Direct Defense

Washington, Feb. 3 —(AP)— Dr. Norvin C. Kiefer was named today to direct civilian defenses against atomic, biological and chemical attack.

The announcement from civil defense administration headquarters said he had been appointed director of the health services and special weapons defense division.

An officer of the United States public health services, Dr. Kiefer has been director of the health resources office of the national security resources board. He is the author of a number of published works in the medical field, including one of the standard volumes on rehabilitation in tuberculosis.

"Friendly, Courteous Service Always At Silverstein's"

Of Course... there's a difference!

You be the judge . . . that look of perfection isn't luck . . . it's planned. Your makeup may be perfect, your shoes new, your hose straight, but look at your clothes. Perhaps they are spotlessly cleaned, but that trimness, that style and fashion come from careful buying. That is the difference. If you are label conscious (and you should be) you know you can depend on nationally advertised clothes to give you the immaculate look, good service, and long wear that you desire. Here at SILVERSTEIN'S we strive always to give you fashion and tailoring at its best. And we have learned through the years that we, too, can depend on nationally advertised apparel to give the never-failing satisfaction that our customers demand.

MARCH OF DIMES SHORT OF GOAL

Drive Is Ended But Anyone Wishing To Do So May Mail Checks

The 1951 March of Dimes drive ended the past week short of the anticipated goal, reported B. B. Martin, chairman of the drive.

"However, anyone in the Twin Cities or Ouachita parish who feel that they want to help can still mail their checks to the March of Dimes, Monroe, La., or if you have not sent in your dime cards that were received through the mail please return them to the headquarters and the donations will be kindly received, said Martin.

The Shriners head the list of daily collections with the highest amount received for any days work of $1,450. The city firemen ran second on the list with the city bus drivers placing third.

Martin stated that he wished to thank all of the above organizations and also those, whether they be small or large for their wonderful work and assistance in the drive. The chairman said that the following people also gave much of their time and energy in the annual campaign: Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Parry, Mrs. Robert Bentz, Mrs. Harold Breard, Mrs. B. B. Martin, Mrs. Shakelford, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Swaggert, Sam Decote, O. K. Bailey, Ed Lohan, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hesketh, Miss Marjorie Oliver, Miss Crissie Williams, Professor Carroll and Henry Hoston, and all others that lent a hand in this worthy project.

"There are still a number of collections and checks to be picked up within the next few days which we have not been able to finish up due to the weather conditions. We are very thankful for the fact that we have been able to raise a sizeable amount of which we do not have the exact total yet but it will do a lot of good to help the unfortunate victims," asserted Martin.

Last, but not least, we wish to thank the newspapers and radio staffs for their wonderful cooperation in helping us to present this Polio Drive to the public.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

The play after being postponed this week when snow, sleet and sub-zero weather halted rehearsals, will definitely start its run on Monday February 12 and will be presented at Little Theatre playhouse Selman Field February 12 through 17.

Gwenn Blauvelt Little Theatre's lovely telephone voice, will be on duty to take reservations Sunday February 11 and everyday there after during the run of "Rope" from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Among the many things postponed this week when 'ole man winter went on the rampage, was the delivery of the beautiful Hemmenway furniture for the set which was to have been delivered to Little Theatre stage on Friday. Everything is all set though and it will be on its way out there come next Friday. Incidentally, has anyone noticed the advertisement and pictures of Hemmenway's very lovely and plush saloon recently opened in New Orleans. They can be found in the national magazines "Town and Country," "House and Garden" and "Antique."

RANDOM NOTES. . . . Little Theatre member Lon Heuer is doing all the decorations for the Mardi Gras ball to be held at Bayou DeSiard country club on Tuesday next. The theme is the San Francisco Gold Coast and if the reports we hear is true he is really going to have a knock-out. Jim Reynolds and Director Stocker Fontelieu have done more than a bit to give him a helping hand. . . . speaking of that trio of young bachelors, we hear that their very smartly decorated little North First street Bungalow will be opening at the seams come week-end after next. Visitors are coming from all directions Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Fontelieu, of New Orleans, old visitors to Monroe by now, are coming up to see what "Rope" is all about. One of Lon Heuer's best friend an Ensign stationed at Pensacola airbase and a friend of the Ensign's will be on hand the same week-end. And as for Jim Reynolds, on the same week-end we understand he will be host to two of New York's loveliest damsels who are touring the country by motor. One of the young ladies, Judy Finer, is the neice of Richard Rodgers of the fabulous Rodgers-Hammerstein team. Looks like partying ahead for this group who will get together on the week-end that "Rope" closes. . . . June Shultz is giving Beth Breese a helping hand in the direction of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club style revue that was postponed until February 9 . . Jack Ansell, Jr. from the cast of "Boy Meets Girl" surprised us with another interesting column in last Sunday's World. It is all about books and music and is just as readable, informative and interesting as his "Tabs" that appears weekly on the Industrial page.

Capt. Tatum Says He's Seen Far Worse Frigid Wave Here

If anyone thinks that we have experienced some Arctic weather and conditions, he should talk to venerable Capt. Ben F. Tatum, now of Morobay, Ark., but until last fall agent for George H. McFadden & Bros. in Monroe who right now is registered at Hotel Frances.

The captain, although retired from business life since last September, is alert of mind and body and enjoys telling of what has happened in his active career.

In his opinion there has never been as cold a wace or one as long enduring as the one that struck this area February 13, 1899. With temperature 8 below zero and the river frozen for 60 feet out from the bank on each side of the stream, it was something to write home about, during the week or more that conditions lasted.

"Why", declared the captain, "you could take a glass of water and throw at someone and before it hit the other fellow it would be frozen. Chickens froze on their perches and either would fall dead to the ground of the chicken house or would schooch up and die as they clung to the rounds of the roost," he said.

Following his steamboat career on the Ouachita, starting with the "Josie W" in 1892, he later went with the McFadden Company where he was associated for 29 years ending upon retirement in September 1950.

He is now living in a strictly modern duplex in Morobay on the Ouachita river, many miles north of Monroe by river but far less, by highway from here.

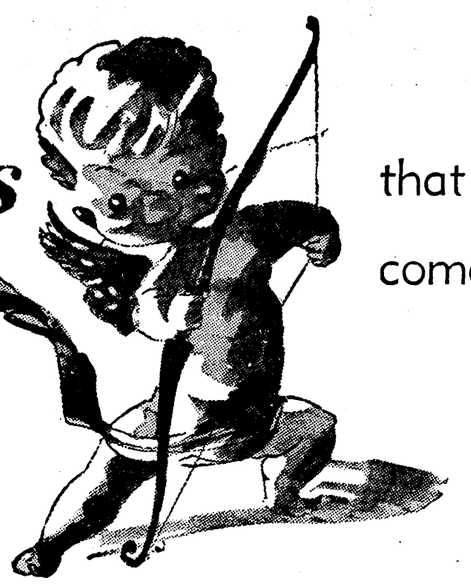

His present trip was made on business and after he arrived here and registered at Hotel Frances, the bad weather began and he will not return until weather moderates.

"Only thing bad about Morobay is that the mail service is not too good. A letter mailed there today will reach Monroe the next morning, but mail a letter in Monroe and it takes two days to reach destination. But for all of that I take the Monroe papers even if by the time they reach me the news is a bit stale. I just have to have 'em anyway," he concluded.

Editorials and Comment

No Answer To Inflation

From the moment the general price-wage freeze was imposed, it was clear it was intended to be only an imperfect weapon against inflation.

Price and wage officials in Washington will progressively modify the basic control order to give it "flexibility." Already marked for approval are wage increases previously negotiated but not in effect at freeze time. Some price boosts also are due for early endorsement.

In contrast, Price Administrator DiSalle ays he hopes to achieve some actual price rollbacks from the freeze level.

Since numerous adjustments are certain to take place, the freeze is really a temporary stage. What the government appears to be seeking is stability rather than absolute rigidity in the price-wage structure.

This would repeat the pattern of World War II. For, despite all the declarations about "holding the line," it was often breached then in accord with an elastic formula.

We consumers, wondering how to impress our grocer these days, may well regret that the lid was clamped on the economy so late and at such a high level. The freeze actually stuck many prices at their highest peaks of all time.

But it won't do us much good to lament this now. We'll have to be satisfied with what we've got, since there's not a chance in the world of forcing prices back around pre-Korean levels.

We can be forgiven for voicing disappointment, too, that food prices will be affected so little. Existing law governing farm price supports bars ceilings on many basic farm commodities. The stabilization agencies can't do anything about that. Only congress can provide the protection the people need in that field.

With so many holes and soft spots, it isn't surprising to hear a lawmaker like Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Republican minority leader in the house, describe the action as freezing the "hole in every family's pocketbook."

If this is the best we can get in price-wage controls, the country apparently is going to have to rely more heavily on other anti-inflation weapons like higher taxes, further credit regulation, and increased production.

Nobody likes taxes or credit restrictions, but most of us know they're pretty effective curbs on spending. You can't spend money that goes for taxes, and what's left won't stretch so far when narrow limits are placed on credit.

The government itself must be subjected to spending controls if they are to be effective. Unnecessary outlays and financing through borrowing build up strong inflationary pressures by multiplying the volume of cash and credit available.

All this makes a bitter prescription, especially when we are still nominally at peace except in Korea. But the alternative is a price-wage spiral which will rob us of our money anyway, and vastly heighten the cost of the vital war materials upon which our very safety may depend.

The Farmer's Future

The future of American agriculture as foreseen by Waters S. Davis, president of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts, is quite different from the future of American agriculture as it was seen by most observers only six or eight months ago. Speaking at a recent meeting of the Louisiana Association of Soil Conservation District Supervisors, Davis predicted another 25 years or more of heavy demand on American agricultural resources. He told American farmers that the best way they can defend freedom is to prove that a free agriculture can increase production to meet the need.

And only as recently as the first part of 1950, the talk was all of acreage controls, marketing quotas, price supports and surpluses. The contrast between conditions then and the long period of high demand now foreseen by Davis and many others is most striking. Farmers are as ready to meet the new situation as they were to meet the old, but in view of the recent, sudden change in the farm outlook, some wonder whether the outlook might change again with equal rapidity.

Another reversal of the trend is possible but not probable. High demand will continue as long as the tension between East and West continues and as long as our national defense program and the defense programs of other western countries continue. Barring a first-class miracle in the field of international relations, that will be quite a long while. During this time, farmers, like industrialists, will be asked to produce as much as possible and to make as efficient use of labor and machinery as possible.

Fortunately, for most farmers this will mean no more or less than increased emphasis on the good farming methods they already are using to increase production per acre and per animal. In time of surpluses and falling prices, good farming is important because it means more economical and efficient farming. In time of shortages and high prices, good farming is still important because it means more economical and efficient farming and also because it means greater production per worker, per acre and per animal. During the next 25 years as in the past, good farming will continue to be a cornerstone of our economic system.

Notes of a Girl Friday.

Dear Mr. W: Ethel Merman says she fears Monday's lead item has folks thinking she's enceinte, which she ain't. That it may hurt the "Call Me Madam" advance sale, if they think she'll be out of the show, etc. Would you straighten it out? She knows you didn't mean mean "blessed-eventing." The source says the item will be confirmed and you will have another "Oops!" for those printing denials. . . . You would have been proud over the way the "Guys and Dolls" event was handled. The distinguished audience witnessed how the Runyon fund swiftly allocates the money. The $59,500 from that performance was distributed between acts to cancer labs and hospitals by Miss Truman from the stage. The whole thing took about 5 minutes. . . . There's been talk about a romance between Barbara Hutton and Prince Henri de la Tour d'Auvergne. You can say with authority that there is no romance, never has been, never will be, just good family friends .

Warn motorists that in Harrison, N. Y., signs now say: "Speed Checked by Radar, Drive Carefully. The town's radio cop merely awaits a radar signal of an approaching car exceeding the 30-mile speed law and Boom! The fine is $25. . . . The British papers always refer to Faye Emerson's groom as Lyle, never Skitch. Too informal, y'know. . . . Last year Dan Dayton didn't have enough admission coin to go into the Capitol and Paramount theatres. This year he appears in "Army" (at the Para) and at the Capitol in the Bogart hit. . . . The Bond waterfall sign owner says "you got it!" Just name it.

Cable from French star Henri Salvador's manager: "Paris: Winchell, Mirror, USA: I have refused to honor the Monte Proser contract on Broadway. Got calls from several sportswriters happy about your "Hello, Bill" Sunday night to 78-year-old umpire Bill Klem, so very ill, who heard U. P. strike him out earlier in the week. They are convinced it was your salute to him that helped his doctor announce: "Mr. Klem took a turn for the better over the week end." . . . Most editors feel that price and wage controls were too long delayed. Some editors think that substantial rollbacks in some prices, if not wages, may be achieved. But majority opinion hopes for little more now than a general stabilization at or somewhat above present average price and wage levels.—Most editors are hopeful that, with increased production and eventual leveling off of the military program, price and wage controls will be required for only one to two years. Denver (Colo.) Post (Ind.): "It would be best to roll prices and wages back to a point before the beginning of the Korean war—when there was some honesty in them. BASCOM TIMMONS

Warren R. Austin, United States ambassador to the United Nations, had the Chinese to thank for his first success. In 1916, then 39 years old, he went to China on behalf of a couple of American corporations to negotiate two loans to the Chinese Republic, one of $100,000,000 for the benefit of the national railway system and another of $30,000,000 for national conservation and the dredging of the Grand Canal.

There is no record as to how much of that $130,000,000 has been repaid, but it can be said that stroke of business launched the young unknown on the road to fame. Fifteen years later he was representing Vermont in the United States senate. He has never been a backward sort. When he had taken his oath as senator, he went to the majority leader, Sen. Charles L. McNary (Rep.-Ore.) and said:

"Senator, I am the leading member of the bar in my state of Vermont. I think I am entitled to be on the committee on judiciary."

McNary looked at him quizzically and said in quiet sarcasm: "Senator that is very interesting. Perhaps I can have you made chairman of judiciary."

"That would be more than I had hoped for," said the freshman senator. Then he realized he was being joshed, and turned and stalked angrily from the room. But McNary put the newcomer on the judiciary committee, where freshmen seldom land. In 1944, Austin was ranking Republican member of the committee and would have been chairman had he hung on until the 80th congress, when the Republicans carried the senate. But in that year, he suddenly asked to be transferred to the senate foreign relations committee, on which he became the lowest ranking Republican, under the seniority rule.

Meanwhile, Senator Austin had undergone a sort of metamorphosis unusual in the U. S. senate. In the '30s he was the darling of the Republican Conservatives, a New Deal hater; but as the threat of war grew he became an equally intense internationalist, one of Wendell Willkie's most zealous supporters. Republican isolationists tried to prevent him from serving as assistant minority leader, but McNary, before taking a leave of absence that ended in his death, ruled that Austin should be acting Republican leader while he was away.

That uncompromising record, together with his friendship with Sen. Harry S. Truman, led to his appointment as American representative in the United Nations. His acceptance did not increase his popularity among the large faction of Republicans who disliked him, but it is now generally conceded that he has carried out orders from Washington well. His harsh, accusing voice on television has become the symbol, at least for television listeners, of U. S. demands in the general assembly.

But Ambassador Austin, like U. S. forces in Korea, has gradually been forced to retreat, as his U. N. Allies yield under Communist pressure. Ironically, only the refusal of the Chinese Reds to negotiate for a "cease fire" agreement under any acceptable terms has saved Austin from the humiliation of having to face an appeasement, or of following the Russian example of withdrawal while new dispositions in Asia are being considered. If that happens Austin's withdrawal will probably be permanent. He doesn't take humiliation easily.

In international affairs, he has not enjoyed the same success he has had with apples. His hobby is grafting the native strains of American apples to one another to develop new non-commercial types and to build up their strength. But in the international field, that sort of grafting apparently won't work.

In this case cheaper too—Sen. Edward Martin (Rep. - Pa.) praised the virtues of Benjamin Franklin in the senate on the occasion of the famed Pennsylvanian's 245th birthday.

Chiming in, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, (Rep.-Mass.) recalled that Franklin was born in Boston, and added that when the great statesman and diplomat was serving the United States abroad, a small American community, with which he was familiar, wrote and asked him to contribute a bell for the new town hall.

Franklin answered:

"Sense is better than sound. I am sending you a gift of books from London."

The Nation Today

Washington, Feb 3 —(AP)—Don't stay awake trying to figure how much your tax is going to be increased. All you can be sure of at this time is that the tax is going up.

Generally, the full house approves the bill put together by its members on the committee.

But such a bill isn't whipped together in a minute and the hearings aren't over in a day. They may go on for weeks and weeks, with a lot more people besides Snyder giving his views to the committee

And the committee will have more than personal income taxes to worry about since Mr. Truman also asked for $3,000,000,000 in corporation taxes and an equal increase in excise taxes.

There are government excise taxes now on things like furs, jewelry cosmetics So the committee will feel its way along gingerly before it slaps excise taxes on new items, perhaps automobiles.

All in all, this is going to take time, probably months. And pretty much the same thing will have to be done by a committee over on the senate side of the capitol.

But when it's all through, and congress approves the increases, the boss will take a deeper bite out of your salary in the size of the tax he withholds for the government.

While all this is going on there'll be protests among a lot of congressmen about stepping carefully on tax increases until the cost of running the government at home has been cut down.

This is the cry every year, anyway: Let's cut the cost of government spending And the air is filled with extremely positive statements by senators and congressmen on how government spending can be cut.

Somehow though, it always seems that when congress is through its work for the year, government expenses haven't been cut much, it at all.

One thing is certain: Before 1951 is over you'll be able to buy less than you did in 1950, and for a couple of reasons:

1. You'll have less money to spend because more of it will go into taxes

2. There'll be less stuff to buy, since so many materials that went into civilian goods are going into defense goods.

The watchword of Camp Fire Girls, Inc., is Wohelo, from the first two letters of the words work, health, love.

New York Day By Day

New York — NBC-TVs Robert Montgomery recently assembled a squad of friends and daughters for a fox-trotting session in the Stork. But when these proud fathers took to the hardwood for a whirl with their offspring, the lassies requested the current rage, a Charleston. Although Montgomery pleasantly surprised his Elizabeth by stomping out a variety of energetic kicks, Pop came off the floor all steamed up like a blast furnace coal-heaver.

When they returned to the table, three lads across the room forwarded a jesting note, offering to sub for Bob during the next set, Mrs. Montgomery showed us the missive, glanced at her over-heated but beaming husband, then scribbled in reply: "Afraid we'll have to turn down the gallant rescue offer. We are not yet ready to throw in the second team."

Two-way stretch: Ham Fisher, the Joe Palooka creater, shared the Stork Club's video camera with Vera Scott, a visiting British blond, lovely enough to wheedle a permanent visa out of a jammed quota. Unaware that her government earlier in the day had joined other anti-Soviet countries in branding Red China an aggressor in Korea, Miss Scott jestingly observed during supper: "Diplomatic relations between London and Washington seem so strained, I expect to be interned any moment.

Sights and sounds: Bandman Tommy Dorsey took an eyeful and earful of opera recently, observed plunging necklines that would frighten Faye Emerson and opined: "If fashions dip any deeper, music lovers will no longer follow the librettos. They'll be too busy following the sopranos.' . . . Abbe Lane, dark-eyed heart stimulant, headline-sharer and vocalist with Xavier Cugat's bongo beaters, was scheduled to be queen of Rio de Janeiro's carnival during Cugie's South American tour next month. His new powder-blue convertible has a six-note musical horn that plays "Where Did You Get That Hat?"

Exclusively yours: Otto Soglow, the Little King's portrayer, Ernie ("Nancy") Bushmiller, Bob ("Little Mary Mixup") Brinkerhoff, and Whitney Darrow, Jr. gloatingly confided to me at the Dutch Treat Club luncheon, weekly stag roundup of stars in the seven lively arts, that sketchers and comic-strippers are about to take their places alongside of Rembrandt, Titian and Rubens. The snobby Metropolitan Museum, for the first time in history, will lend its hallowed walls to the nations foremost cartoonists for a vast exhibit to premiere early in May and continue through the summer.

Songbird Rosemary Clooney, who used to be No. 1 escort for crooner Richard Hayes has now moved back "one giant step." When Hayes soon marries Peggy Ann Garner, Rosemary will be maid of honor. She introduced them. . . . And now that draft physical requirements are to be lowered laughman Frank Marlowe figures somebody will make a fortune—vulcanizing punctured eardrums.

Choker: A neophyte stagehand on Tex and Jinx's television time charged into a tavern next door to the studio theater the other day and excitedly ordered a Swiss cheese on white in a hurry. "I've got only two minutes," he shakily urged.

"Sure, Mac, but why such panic?" the barman inquired, suspiciously eveing his customer. The prop-man mopped his head and explained He had missed lunch, spotted a sandwich on a table backstage, thought it was left over from an earlier program—and "ate the commercial" for Tex and Jinx's bread - sponsored show which was about to go on the air!

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

CHURCH AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Continuing the discussion of the covenant on human rights which the United Nations seeks to perpetrate, I should like to quote John Locke's definition of a church:

"A church then I take to be a voluntary society of men, joining themselves together of their own accord, in order to the public worshipping of God, in such a manner as they judge acceptable to Him, and effectual to the salvation of their souls.'

The state is not included in this definition. John Locke probably influenced the founding fathers more than any single person. Jefferson, Madison and Mason were deeply steeped in Locke's philosophy. His concept of society became the basis for both the declaration of independence and the constitution. Thus, he said:

"As the magistrate has no power to impose by his laws, the use of any rites and ceremonies in any church, so neither has he any power to forbid the use of such rites and ceremonies as are already received, approved, and practised by any church: Because if he did so, he would destroy the church itself; the end of those institution is only to worship God with freedom, after its own manner."

Further, he says:

" . . . Thus if solemn assemblies, observations or festivals, public worship, be permitted to any one sort of professors; all these things ought to be permitted to the Presbyterians, Independents, Anabaptists, Arminians, Quakers, and others, with the same liberty. Nay if we may openly speak the truth, and as becomes one man to another, neither Pagan nor Mahumetan, nor Jew, ought to be excluded from the civil rights of the commonwealth, because of his religion. The gospel commands no such thing. . . ."

Out of such a concept of the relations of church and man and of the restraints placed upon the state developed the basic philosophy of American life which is so simply but firmly stated in the declaration of independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Jefferson, in his first draft, had used the adjectives "sacred and undeniable" to modify "those truths."

The endowment by the creator was of the greatest significance to the founding fathers as otherwise their whole political philosophy would fall apart. For what, of necessity, impelled them was the basic assumption that it was not man or any institution devised by man that provided these inalienable rights, but that they descended supernaturally from God.

Now compare all this with the curiously worded clause in the covenant on human rights:

"Freedom to manifest one's religion or beliefs shall be subject only to such limitations as are pursuant to law and are reasonable and necessary to protect public safety, order, health, or morals or the fundamental rights and freedoms of others."

As a matter of fact, this clause is a modification, a limitation of the freedom of religion which has been a characteristic of our system of life since the earliest days upon this continent. Under it, any government official could apply all sorts of restrictions upon the conscience of men. He could find, if he wished, some excuse for limiting the expression of religious faith. It has been done before. .

The trouble with all this is not that a commission of the United Nations met for a long time, argued, compromised, and finally passed a draft which the member nations must ratify before it affects anybody.

Our difficulty is that once the senate ratifies this treaty, it becomes the law of the land, even amending the constitution. Do we wish to delegate to the United Nations the power to legislate for us?

Freedom is a delicate instrument that must be vigilantly guarded. It is possible to lose all our freedoms through carelessness, even by default. It is when we do not know what we are doing that we achieve the greatest harm.

The United Nations is legislating for the United States. Under our constitution, only congress can legislate for Americans. But U. N. does legislate by means of writing treaties that are supported by a huge propaganda for peace which is actually unrelated to the subject.

Unless the churches of this country study their position in this covenant on human rights, the politicians might ratify it and risk our liberties.

No Answer To Inflation

From the moment the general price-wage freeze was imposed, it was clear it was intended to be only an imperfect weapon against inflation.

Price and wage officials in Washington will progressively modify the basic control order to give it "flexibility." Already marked for approval are wage increases previously negotiated but not in effect at freeze time. Some price boosts also are due for early endorsement.

In contrast, Price Administrator DiSalle ays he hopes to achieve some actual price rollbacks from the freeze level.

Since numerous adjustments are certain to take place, the freeze is really a temporary stage. What the government appears to be seeking is stability rather than absolute rigidity in the price-wage structure.

This would repeat the pattern of World War II. For, despite all the declarations about "holding the line," it was often breached then in accord with an elastic formula.

We consumers, wondering how to impress our grocer these days, may well regret that the lid was clamped on the economy so late and at such a high level. The freeze actually stuck many prices at their highest peaks of all time.

But it won't do us much good to lament this now. We'll have to be satisfied with what we've got, since there's not a chance in the world of forcing prices back around pre-Korean levels.

We can be forgiven for voicing disappointment, too, that food prices will be affected so little. Existing law governing farm price supports bars ceilings on many basic farm commodities. The stabilization agencies can't do anything about that. Only congress can provide the protection the people need in that field.

With so many holes and soft spots, it isn't surprising to hear a lawmaker like Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Republican minority leader in the house, describe the action as freezing the "hole in every family's pocketbook."

If this is the best we can get in price-wage controls, the country apparently is going to have to rely more heavily on other anti-inflation weapons like higher taxes, further credit regulation, and increased production.

Nobody likes taxes or credit restrictions, but most of us know they're pretty effective curbs on spending. You can't spend money that goes for taxes, and what's left won't stretch so far when narrow limits are placed on credit.

The government itself must be subjected to spending controls if they are to be effective. Unnecessary outlays and financing through borrowing build up strong inflationary pressures by multiplying the volume of cash and credit available.

All this makes a bitter prescription, especially when we are still nominally at peace except in Korea. But the alternative is a price-wage spiral which will rob us of our money anyway, and vastly heighten the cost of the vital war materials upon which our very safety may depend.

The Farmer's Future

The future of American agriculture as foreseen by Waters S. Davis, president of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts, is quite different from the future of American agriculture as it was seen by most observers only six or eight months ago. Speaking at a recent meeting of the Louisiana Association of Soil Conservation District Supervisors, Davis predicted another 25 years or more of heavy demand on American agricultural resources. He told American farmers that the best way they can defend freedom is to prove that a free agriculture can increase production to meet the need.

And only as recently as the first part of 1950, the talk was all of acreage controls, marketing quotas, price supports and surpluses. The contrast between conditions then and the long period of high demand now foreseen by Davis and many others is most striking. Farmers are as ready to meet the new situation as they were to meet the old, but in view of the recent, sudden change in the farm outlook, some wonder whether the outlook might change again with equal rapidity.

Another reversal of the trend is possible but not probable. High demand will continue as long as the tension between East and West continues and as long as our national defense program and the defense programs of other western countries continue. Barring a first-class miracle in the field of international relations, that will be quite a long while. During this time, farmers, like industrialists, will be asked to produce as much as possible and to make as efficient use of labor and machinery as possible.

Fortunately, for most farmers this will mean no more or less than increased emphasis on the good farming methods they already are using to increase production per acre and per animal. In time of surpluses and falling prices, good farming is important because it means more economical and efficient farming. In time of shortages and high prices, good farming is still important because it means more economical and efficient farming and also because it means greater production per worker, per acre and per animal. During the next 25 years as in the past, good farming will continue to be a cornerstone of our economic system.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Warren R. Austin, United States ambassador to the United Nations, had the Chinese to thank for his first success. In 1916, then 39 years old, he went to China on behalf of a couple of American corporations to negotiate two loans to the Chinese Republic, one of $100,000,000 for the benefit of the national railway system and another of $30,000,000 for national conservation and the dredging of the Grand Canal.

There is no record as to how much of that $130,000,000 has been repaid, but it can be said that stroke of business launched the young unknown on the road to fame. Fifteen years later he was representing Vermont in the United States senate. He has never been a backward sort. When he had taken his oath as senator, he went to the majority leader, Sen. Charles L. McNary (Rep.-Ore.) and said:

"Senator, I am the leading member of the bar in my state of Vermont. I think I am entitled to be on the committee on judiciary."

McNary looked at him quizzically and said in quiet sarcasm: "Senator that is very interesting. Perhaps I can have you made chairman of judiciary."

"That would be more than I had hoped for," said the freshman senator. Then he realized he was being joshed, and turned and stalked angrily from the room. But McNary put the newcomer on the judiciary committee, where freshmen seldom land. In 1944, Austin was ranking Republican member of the committee and would have been chairman had he hung on until the 80th congress, when the Republicans carried the senate. But in that year, he suddenly asked to be transferred to the senate foreign relations committee, on which he became the lowest ranking Republican, under the seniority rule.

Meanwhile, Senator Austin had undergone a sort of metamorphosis unusual in the U. S. senate. In the '30s he was the darling of the Republican Conservatives, a New Deal hater; but as the threat of war grew he became an equally intense internationalist, one of Wendell Willkie's most zealous supporters. Republican isolationists tried to prevent him from serving as assistant minority leader, but McNary, before taking a leave of absence that ended in his death, ruled that Austin should be acting Republican leader while he was away.

That uncompromising record, together with his friendship with Sen. Harry S. Truman, led to his appointment as American representative in the United Nations. His acceptance did not increase his popularity among the large faction of Republicans who disliked him, but it is now generally conceded that he has carried out orders from Washington well. His harsh, accusing voice on television has become the symbol, at least for television listeners, of U. S. demands in the general assembly.

But Ambassador Austin, like U. S. forces in Korea, has gradually been forced to retreat, as his U. N. Allies yield under Communist pressure. Ironically, only the refusal of the Chinese Reds to negotiate for a "cease fire" agreement under any acceptable terms has saved Austin from the humiliation of having to face an appeasement or of following the Russian example of withdrawal while new dispositions in Asia are being considered. If that happens Austin's withdrawal will probably be permanent. He doesn't take humiliation easily.

In international affairs, he has not enjoyed the same success he has had with apples. His hobby is grafting the native strains of American apples to one another to develop new non-commercial types and to build up their strength. But in the international field, that sort of grafting apparently won't work.

In this case cheaper too—Sen. Edward Martin (Rep. - Pa.) praised the virtues of Benjamin Franklin in the senate on the occasion of the famed Pennsylvanian's 245th birthday.

Chiming in, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, (Rep.-Mass.) recalled that Franklin was born in Boston, and added that when the great statesman and diplomat was serving the United States abroad, a small American community, with which he was familiar, wrote and asked him to contribute a bell for the new town hall.

Franklin answered:

"Sense is better than sound. I am sending you a gift of books from London."

The Nation Today

Washington, Feb 3 —(AP)—Don't stay awake trying to figure how much your tax is going to be increased. All you can be sure of at this time is that the tax is going up.

Generally, the full house approves the bill put together by its members on the committee.

But such a bill isn't whipped together in a minute and the hearings aren't over in a day. They may go on for weeks and weeks, with a lot more people besides Snyder giving his views to the committee.

And the committee will have more than personal income taxes to worry about since Mr. Truman also asked for $3,000,000,000 in corporation taxes and an equal increase in excise taxes.

There are government excise taxes now on things like furs, jewelry cosmetics. So the committee will feel its way along gingerly before it slaps excise taxes on new items, perhaps automobiles.

All in all, this is going to take time, probably months. And pretty much the same thing will have to be done by a committee over on the senate side of the capitol.

But when it's all through, and congress approves the increases, the boss will take a deeper bite out of your salary in the size of the tax he withholds for the government.

While all this is going on there'll be protests among a lot of congressmen about stepping carefully on tax increases until the cost of running the government at home has been cut down.

This is the cry every year, anyway. Let's cut the cost of government spending. And the air is filled with extremely positive statements by senators and congressmen on how government spending can be cut.

Somehow though, it always seems that when congress is through its work for the year, government expenses haven't been cut much, it at all.

One thing is certain: Before 1951 is over you'll be able to buy less than you did in 1950, and for a couple of reasons:

1. You'll have less money to spend because more of it will go into taxes.

2. There'll be less stuff to buy, since so many materials that went into civilian goods are going into defense goods.

The watchword of Camp Fire Girls, Inc., is Wohelo, from the first two letters of the words work, health, love.

New York Day By Day

New York — NBC-TVs Robert Montgomery recently assembled a squad of friends and daughters for a fox-trotting session in the Stork. But when these proud fathers took to the hardwood for a whirl with their offspring, the lassies requested the current rage, a Charleston. Although Montgomery pleasantly surprised his Elizabeth by stomping out a variety of energetic kicks, Pop came off the floor all steamed up like a blast furnace coal-heaver.

When they returned to the table, three lads across the room forwarded a jesting note, offering to sub for Bob during the next set. Mrs. Montgomery showed us the missive, glanced at her over-heated but beaming husband, then scribbled in reply: "Afraid we'll have to turn down the gallant rescue offer. We are not yet ready to throw in the second team."

Two-way stretch: Ham Fisher, the Joe Palooka creater, shared the Stork Club's video camera with Vera Scott, a visiting British blond, lovely enough to wheedle a permanent visa out of a jammed quota. Unaware that her government earlier in the day had joined other anti-Soviet countries in branding Red China an aggressor in Korea, Miss Scott jestingly observed during supper: "Diplomatic relations between London and Washington seem so strained, I expect to be interned any moment.

Sights and sounds: Bandman Tommy Dorsey took an eyeful and earful of opera recently, observed plunging necklines that would frighten Faye Emerson and opined: "If fashions dip any deeper, music lovers will no longer follow the librettos. They'll be too busy following the sopranos." . . . Abbe Lane, dark-eyed heart stimulant, headline-sharer and vocalist with Xavier Cugat's bongo beaters, was scheduled to be queen of Rio de Janeiro's carnival during Cugie's South American tour next month. Their latest adventures on page one may cost her the crown. . . . Walter Florell, the prankful bonnet designer, is giving midtown ladies a sharp turn of the head at traffic intersections. His new powder-blue convertible has a six-note musical horn that plays "Where Did You Get That Hat?"

Exclusively yours: Otto Soglow, the Little King's portrayer, Ernie ("Nancy") Bushmiller, Bob ("Little Mary Mixup") Brinkerhoff, and Whitney Darrow, Jr. gloatingly confided to me at the Dutch Treat Club luncheon, weekly stag roundup of stars in the seven lively arts, that sketchers and comic-strippers are about to take their places alongside of Rembrandt, Titian and Rubens. The snobby Metropolitan Museum, for the first time in history, will lend its hallowed walls to the nations foremost cartoonists for a vast exhibit to premiere early in May and continue through the summer.

Double-takes: Typewriter manufacturers are requesting return of used metal ribbon spools, anticipating shortages. . . . Billie Dove, a silent film goddess who gave me heart trouble in grade school, is now offered a wad to come back on another screen, as A TV chit-chatterer. . . . Comic Herb Shriner claims Hollywood's planning a new rolling enterprise—drive in funeral parlors. . . . Songbird Rosemary Clooney, who used to be No. 1 escort for crooner Richard Hayes has now moved back "one giant step." When Hayes soon marries Peggy Ann Garner, Rosemary will be maid of honor. She introduced them. . . . And now that draft physical requirements are to be lowered laughman Frank Marlowe figures somebody will make a fortune—vulcanizing punctured eardrums.

Choker: A neophyte stagehand on Tex and Jinx's television time charged into a tavern next door to the studio theater the other day and excitedly ordered a Swiss cheese on white in a hurry. "I've got only two minutes," he shakily urged.

"Sure, Mac, but why such panic?" the barman inquired, suspiciously eveing his customer. The prop-man mopped his head and explained He had missed lunch, spotted a sandwich on a table backstage, thought it was left over from an earlier program—and "ate the commercial" for Tex and Jinx's bread - sponsored show which was about to go on the air!

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

CHURCH AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Continuing the discussion of the covenant on human rights which the United Nations seeks to perpetrate, I should like to quote John Locke's definition of a church:

"A church then I take to be a voluntary society of men, joining themselves together of their own accord, in order to the public worshipping of God, in such a manner as they judge acceptable to Him, and effectual to the salvation of their souls.'

The state is not included in this definition. John Locke probably influenced the founding fathers more than any single person. Jefferson, Madison and Mason were deeply steeped in Locke's philosophy. His concept of society became the basis for both the declaration of independence and the constitution. Thus, he said:"

"As the magistrate has no power to impose by his laws, the use of any rites and ceremonies in any church, so neither has he any power to forbid the use of such rites and ceremonies as are already received, approved, and practised by any church: Because if he did so, he would destroy the church itself; the end of those institution is only to worship God with freedom, after its own manner."

Further, he says:

" . . . Thus if solemn assemblies, observations or festivals, public worship, be permitted to any one sort of professors; all these things ought to be permitted to the Presbyterians, Independents, Anabaptists, Arminians, Quakers, and others, with the same liberty. Nay if we may openly speak the truth, and as becomes one man to another, neither Pagan nor Mahumetan, nor Jew, ought to be excluded from the civil rights of the commonwealth, because of his religion. The gospel commands no such thing. . . ."

Out of such a concept of the relations of church and man and of the restraints placed upon the state developed the basic philosophy of American life which is so simply but firmly stated in the declaration of independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Jefferson, in his first draft, had used the adjectives "sacred and undeniable" to modify "those truths."

The endowment by the creator was of the greatest significance to the founding fathers as otherwise their whole political philosophy would fall apart. For what, of necessity, impelled them was the basic assumption that it was not man or any institution devised by man that provided these inalienable rights, but that they descended supernaturally from God.

Now compare all this with the curiously worded clause in the covenant on human rights:

"Freedom to manifest one's religion or beliefs shall be subject only to such limitations as are pursuant to law and are reasonable and necessary to protect public safety, order, health, or morals or the fundamental rights and freedoms of others."

As a matter of fact, this clause is a modification, a limitation of the freedom of religion which has been a characteristic of our system of life since the earliest days upon this continent. Under it, any government official could apply all sorts of restrictions upon the conscience of men. He could find, if he wished, some excuse for limiting the expression of religious faith. It has been done before.

The trouble with all this is not that a commission of the United Nations met for a long time, argued, compromised, and finally passed a draft which the member nations must ratify before it affects anybody.

Our difficulty is that once the senate ratifies this treaty, it becomes the law of the land, even amending the constitution. Do we wish to delegate to the United Nations the power to legislate for us?

Freedom is a delicate instrument that must be vigilantly guarded. It is possible to lose all our freedoms through carelessness, even by default. It is when we do not know what we are doing that we achieve the greatest harm.

The United Nations is legislating for the United States. Under our constitution, only congress can legislate for Americans. But U. N. does legislate by means of writing treaties that are supported by a huge propaganda for peace which is actually unrelated to the subject.

Unless the churches of this country study their position in this covenant on human rights, the politicians might ratify it and risk our liberties.

HOOVER DAM IS FREE FROM BOMB

Atomic Energy Commission Confidant Structure Can Resist Explosions

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)—The atomic energy commission is confident that although its experimental explosions in Nevada may rattle gambling tables in neighboring towns there is no danger of shaking up such things as the huge Hoover Dam on the Colorado river.

AEC officials were asked today by a reporter if the heavy shocks accompanying the blasts on the Frenchman flats proving grounds, about 70 miles from Las Vegas, might damage the Hoover dam, approximately the same distance away on the Nevada-Arizona border.

The AEC let it be known it wasn't worried. The commission took that, and all other possible danger factors, into consideration before selecting the Las Vegas air force gunnery and bombing range at the site for its atomic tests.

Moreover, the folks who run the dam were quite calm about the whole thing.

The bureau of reclamation said Hoover dam, as well as other major dams, is built to withstand "any earthquake or earth shock." Then: In a burst of extreme confidence, a reclamation bureau spokesman said he didn't think one dam would be damaged unless an atom bomb landed squarely on it — "and maybe not even then."

The AEC disclosed some months ago it had made estimates on the possible earth-shock effects of atomic explosions.

These calculations included an assumption that a bomb were exploded beneath the ground.

In general, the conclusion was that if a "nominal" atomic bomb (with power like that exploded over the Japanese cities in World War II) was set off underground the results would be these:

Destructive earth-shock effect would occur up to points 3,300 feet from the explosion. There would be "appreciable damage," to walls, chimneys and foundations up to 1,800 to 5,000 feet from the origin. The limits of even light damage would range roughly around 10,500 feet.

The earth - shock effect of conventional air bursts or bombs exploded on a tower, like the 1945 Almogordo, N. M., test, would be considerably less.

There has been nothing to indicate whether the current Las Vegas tests may include underground bursts.

However, because the tests obviously involve a series of things in addition to the actual explosive force of atomic weapons it is assumed the investigations may include the resistance of underground atomic air raid shelters.

The army corps of engineers have been making preliminary studies for more than two years at a location in Utah. There it has been used to determine explosive effects on rocks, soil and underground construction.

lize our inflation at the highest level it has yet reached."

Oakland (Calif.) Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "There is still a chance of rollbacks, inasmuch as the office of price stabilization, avoiding an over-all cutback, has chosen to freeze as of the moment and then take up the various items. This plan, in the end, could be nearer to fairness. In each field there are many complications and side-issues. . . . The wage freeze will be better understood and accepted with more grace when there is a rollback of those prices which can be shown as exorbitant. A program that was needed has been started. In better form it will be taking shape and size in days soon to come."

Youngstown (Ohio) Vindicator (Ind.-Dem.): "Some prices and wages will still rise, under formulas yet to be worked out. The aim is to slow down the soaring of rates and finally stabilize them on a plateau somewhat above the present level. . . . High taxes and lower credit are to cut down the demand for goods. A heavy increase in production is to increase the supply of goods. When the military program levels off after its present rapid expansion, the increased production will take care of a constant state of partial mobilization and still provide for civilian needs without controls."

Wall Street Journal (Ind.: "For better or for worse, we are going back to the days of O. P. A. This newspaper believes that both the economy as a whole and the people as individuals will find that it is for the worse. Our reasons for beliving so have been set forth many times. First, price control seriously impairs, if it does not destroy, the pricing mechanism by which the productive system operates and through which it adjusts itself to new and ever-changing conditions. The result is to freeze the economy into its present mold. And we do not believe that a frozen economy is a healthy one."

Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "The Wall Street Journal says the government should curb inflation 'by doing everything within its power to encourage more and more production of goods, for the supply of things to buy is the best antidote for the supply of money that can send prices sky-rocketing.' What the Journal seems to forget is that no matter how much encouragement the government provides to spur production of consumer goods production will drop far below normal in a war economy."

Chairman Raps New Tax Breaking Record

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)— The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee said today President Truman's record breaking tax program is "not enough and the budget cannot be reduced to make it fit."

Mr. Truman asked congress yesterday to add 10 billion dollars in new taxes to the estimated 55 billion already on the books He is expected to ask for more later.

The all-time tax income high is 43 billion dollars collected in 1945. Representative Cannon (D.-Mo.) told reporters the current request plus an expected six and one-half billion dollars still won't be enough to put the national defense effort on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Verbal Warfare Breaks Out Between McCarthy, Benton

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)—The war of words between Senators Benton (D.-Conn.) and McCarthy (R.-Wis.) flared anew today.

Benton touched off the latest outburst with a statement that McCarthy "arbitrarily" removed Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R.-Me.) from a key senate investigating subcommittee.

McCarthy countered with this:

"Benton's tirades may actually serve a good purpose. If he keeps speaking and Truman keeps Writing letters, the people of this nation will get a better picture of the mental misfits who have been setting the stage for so much agony, blood and tears."

It was the second time in a week that Benton and McCarthy had clashed.

Benton, a former assistant secretary of state, made a speech from the senate floor Thursday lashing out at MCarthy's appointment to a senate appropriations subcommittee which must pass on funds for the state department. Benton assailed MCarthy as a "ruthless propagandist" out to undermine the department.

The Connecticut lawmaker centered his attack today on what he called McCarthy's "arbitrary" removal of Mrs. Smith from another senate group which is the present counterpart to the wartime Truman investigating committee.

Under senate rules, MCarthy—as a ranking GOP member — has power to name Republican members of the group. Although Mrs. Smith has been critical of McCarthy's tactics in attacking men he calls "Communists in government," McCarthy has said there was nothing personal about the incident. He said Mrs. Smith was promoted to a better committee post.

Benton's blast on Thursday sharply criticized MCarthy's appointment to the appropriations committee and urged that the Republican committee on committees reconsider the action. He said today, however, that he was convinced the Wisconsin Republican's appointment "was wholly a matter of seniority and no other factors were involved."

The latter part of the statement dealing with "no other factors" was an obvious reference to McCarthy's repeated Communists-in-the-state department charges. But Benton also complained that the seniority system under which McCarthy received the appropriations post was "an example, perhaps, of blind devotion to a system which greatly endangers our national interests."

Then, without naming individuals, Benton assailed what he called "the national aspirations of certain Republican leaders in this congress (that) is blinding them to urgent need for cooperation in this nation's guidance of the free world."

Benton also made reference to a speech last week by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) that "there seems to be some hope that we may at long last achieve the purpose of acquiring a new secretary of state" replacing Dean Acheson.

Benton expressed belief that McCarthy's appointment Taft's speech and the removal of Mrs. Smith were somehow related.

"This chain of events seems more than mere coincidence of men whose destiny depends on achieving successful relations and understanding with the key men in congress who will determine our national policy in this crisis," Benton asserted.

McCarthy, in his reply to Benton's statement, said:

"My efforts to expose traitors and bunglers in the government will continue regardless of how high-pitched becomes the yapping of Benton at my heels. Benton was assistant secretary of state part of the time that Hiss was betraying America. He failed to raise his voice even to a whisper against any of the Hiss crowd in the state department."

"This makes it easier to understand his present screaming defense of those who would tear our flag down."

McCarthy referred to Alger Hiss one - time state department executive convicted of lying under oath when he said he never gave secret government papers to a Russian spy.

Inquiry Being Made Into Trade Magazine

Washington Feb. 3 —(AP)— An Air Force spokesman said today an inquiry is being made into publication in an aviation trade magazine of specifications for a possible new four-engined jet bomber of intercontinental range.

The spokesman told a reporter the "Air Force is making its own inquiry of the matter which has been reported by the inspector general as a possibly violation of security."

He added, however, that "it is Air Force policy for the inspector general to look into any reports" that might concern security. He added that in this instance it is not known so far whether "there is or is not a violation."

The inquiry is based on an article appearing in the January 29 issue of "Aviation Week" which discusses reported specifications by Douglas Aircraft Company for a new jet bomber.

Officials of the magazine could not be reached immediately for comment.

The magazine states the proposed plane design is designated 1211-J would have a range of 11,000 nautical miles, a speed of more than 450 knots and a combat altitude of over 55,000 feet. Its gross take-off weight (the weight of the airplane plus fuel and bombs) would be 322,000 pounds.

BRAHMAN CATTLE DIE IN FREEZE

Loss To Stock Raisers Estimated At $150,000; Toll Expected To Rise

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3. —(AP)—Two hundred and 50 crossbreed Brahman cattle, developed to withstand Florida's semi-tropical heat, were killed by the present cold snap.

The loss was placed by stock raisers at $50,000 and ranchers feared additional deaths among the hump-backed breed of Indian ancestry in the freeze predicted tonight.

The toll from exposure and trampling may climb as high as 800.

Many of the cattle were trampled to death as heards bunched around Lake Okeechobee during last night's icy rain.

Other victims, weakened by malnutrition, lay dead or dying on grassless muckland pastures. The winter's previous bitter cold spells had killed their pasture grass.

Scores of the Brahmas were reported suffering pneumonia.

The Brahmas were imported from India for cross breeding with other strains for the Florida clime. They are big, meaty animals and resist disease well.

Below freezing weather forecast for all of Florida tonight and early tomorrow threatened $106,000,000 worth of citrus fruit still on trees. Winter vegetable crops also may suffer. A low of 17 predicted for north Florida.

Home owners and winter visitors in some parts of the state faced the threat of electric power rationing. Users of other forms of fuel were urged to go slow.

In Miami, where thermometers dropped to 36 early today, the Florida Power and Light Company warned it may have to ration power unless the heavy usage of current is cut down.

Acheson Asked To Spell Out Troops

Washington, Feb. 3—(AP)—Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) said today he wanted Secretary of State Acheson to spell out the "modest U.S. air and ground strength General Dwight Eisenhower would give to Europe's defenses.

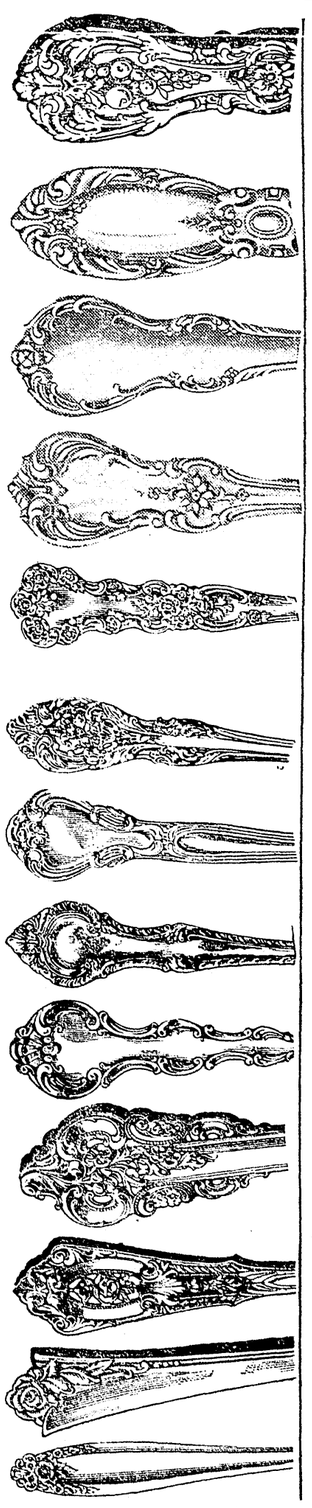

Wherry, who opposes sending additional foot soldiers to Europe, said he will demand that Acheson tell senate committees next week why commitments have already been made.

"I accept at face value General Eisenhower's statements that he has made no commitments," Wherry told a reporter.

"That leaves Acheson as the one man who could have made such agreements. He should tell congress whether any exists."

Destructive earth-shock effect would occur up to points 3,300 feet from the explosion. There would be "appreciable damage," to walls, chimneys and foundations up to 1,800 to 5,000 feet from the origin. The limits of even light damage would range roughly around 10,500 feet.

The earth - shock effect of conventional air bursts or bombs exploded on a tower, like the 1945 Almogordo, N. M., test, would be considerably less.

There has been nothing to indicate whether the current Las Vegas tests may include underground bursts.

However, because the tests obviously involve a series of things in addition to the actual explosive force of atomic weapons it is assumed the investigations may include the resistance of underground atomic air raid shelters.

The army corps of engineers have been making preliminary studies for more than two years at a location in Utah. There it has been used to determine explosive effects on rocks, soil and underground construction.

lize our inflation at the highest level it has yet reached."

Oakland (Calif.) Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "There is still a chance of rollbacks, inasmuch as the office of price stabilization, avoiding an over-all cutback, has chosen to freeze as of the moment and then take up the various items. This plan, in the end, could be nearer to fairness. In each field there are many complications and side-issues. . . . The wage freeze will be better understood and accepted with more grace when there is a rollback of those prices which can be shown as exorbitant. A program that was needed has been started. In better form it will be taking shape and size in days soon to come."

Youngstown (Ohio) Vindicator (Ind.-Dem.): "Some prices and wages will still rise, under formulas yet to be worked out. The aim is to slow down the soaring of rates and finally stabilize them on a plateau somewhat above the present level. . . . High taxes and lower credit are to cut down the demand for goods. A heavy increase in production is to increase the supply of goods. When the military program levels off after its present rapid expansion, the increased production will take care of a constant state of partial mobilization and still provide for civilian needs without controls."

Wall Street Journal (Ind.: "For better or for worse, we are going back to the days of O. P. A. This newspaper believes that both the economy as a whole and the people as individuals will find that it is for the worse. Our reasons for beliving so have been set forth many times. First, price control seriously impairs, if it does not destroy, the pricing mechanism by which the productive system operates and through which it adjusts itself to new and ever-changing conditions. The result is to freeze the economy into its present mold. And we do not believe that a frozen economy is a healthy one."

Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "The Wall Street Journal says the government should curb inflation 'by doing everything within its power to encourage more and more production of goods, for the supply of things to buy is the best antidote for the supply of money that can send prices sky-rocketing.' What the Journal seems to forget is that no matter how much encouragement the government provides to spur production of consumer goods production will drop far below normal in a war economy."

Verbal Warfare Breaks Out Between McCarthy, Benton

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)—The war of words between Senators Benton (D.-Conn.) and MCarthy (R.-Wis.) flared anew today.

Benton touched off the latest outburst with a statement that McCarthy "arbitrarily" removed Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R.-Me.) from a key senate investigating subcommittee.

McCarthy countered with this:

"Benton's tirades may actually serve a good purpose. If he keeps speaking and Truman keeps Writing letters, the people of this nation will get a better picture of the mental misfits who have been setting the stage for so much agony, blood and tears."

It was the second time in a week that Benton and McCarthy had clashed.

Benton, a former assistant secretary of state, made a speech from the senate floor Thursday lashing out at MCarthy's appointment to a senate appropriations subcommittee which must pass on funds for the state department. Benton assailed MCarthy as a "ruthless propagandist" out to undermine the department.

The Connecticut lawmaker centered his attack today on what he called McCarthy's "arbitrary" removal of Mrs. Smith from another senate group which is the present counterpart to the wartime Truman investigating committee.

Under senate rules, MCarthy—as a ranking GOP member — has power to name Republican members of the group. Although Mrs. Smith has been critical of McCarthy's tactics in attacking men he calls "Communists in government," McCarthy has said there was nothing personal about the incident. He said Mrs. Smith was promoted to a better committee post.

Benton's blast on Thursday sharply criticized MCarthy's appointment to the appropriations committee and urged that the Republican committee on committees reconsider the action. He said today, however, that he was convinced the Wisconsin Republican's appointment "was wholly a matter of seniority and no other factors were involved."

The latter part of the statement dealing with "no other factors" was an obvious reference to McCarthy's repeated Communists-in-the-state department charges. But Benton also complained that the seniority system under which McCarthy received the appropriations post was "an example, perhaps, of blind devotion to a system which greatly endangers our national interests."

Then, without naming individuals, Benton assailed what he called "the national asprations of certain Republican leaders in this congress (that) is blinding them to urgent need for cooperation in this nation's guidance of the free world."

Benton also made reference to a speech last week by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) that "there seems to be some hope that we may at long last achieve the purpose of acquiring a new secretary of state" replacing Dean Acheson.

Benton expressed belief that McCarthy's appointment Taft's speech and the removal of Mrs. Smith were somehow related.

"This chain of events seems more than mere coincidence of men whose destiny depends on achieving successful relations and understanding with the key men in congress who will determine our national policy in this crisis," Benton asserted.

McCarthy, in his reply to Benton's statement, said:

"My efforts to expose traitors and bunglers in the government will continue regardless of how high-pitched becomes the yapping of Benton at my heels. Benton was assistant secretary of state part of the time that Hiss was betraying America. He failed to raise his voice even to a whisper against any of the Hiss crowd in the state department."

"This makes it easier to understand his present screaming defense of those who would tear our flag down."

McCarthy referred to Alger Hiss one - time state department executive convicted of lying under oath when he said he never gave secret government papers to a Russian spy.

China Claims U. S. Blocked Peace Of World By Action

Tokyo, Feb. 3—(AP)—Red China's Premier today declared the United States "and its accomplices" had blocked the road to peace in Korea with their United Nations resolution branding the Peiping Regime an aggressor.

Chou En Lai number two man in Communist China, told the world in a broadcast statement that Peiping considered the United Nations resolution illegal, slanderous, null and void."

Chairman Raps New Tax Breaking Record

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)— The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee said today President Truman's record breaking tax program is "not enough and the budget cannot be reduced to make it fit."

Mr. Truman asked congress yesterday to add 10 billion dollars in new taxes to the estimated 55 billion already on the books He is expected to ask for more later.

The all-time tax income high is 43 billion dollars collected in 1945. Representative Cannon (D.-Mo.) told reporters the current request plus an expected six and one-half billion dollars still won't be enough to put the national defense effort on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Inquiry Being Made Into Trade Magazine

Washington Feb. 3 —(AP)— An Air Force spokesman said today an inquiry is being made into publication in an aviation trade magazine of specifications for a possible new four-engined jet bomber of intercontinental range.

The spokesman told a reporter the "Air Force is making its own inquiry of the matter which has been reported by the inspector general as a possibly violation of security."

He added, however, that "it is Air Force policy for the inspector general to look into any reports" that might concern security. He added that in this instance it is not known so far whether "there is or is not a violation."

The inquiry is based on an article appearing in the January 29 issue of "Aviation Week" which discusses reported specifications by Douglas Aircraft Company for a new jet bomber.

Officials of the magazine could not be reached immediately for comment.

The magazine states the proposed plane design is designated 1211-J would have a range of 11,000 nautical miles, a speed of more than 450 knots and a combat altitude of over 55,000 feet. Its gross take-off weight (the weight of the airplane plus fuel and bombs) would be 322,000 pounds.

BRAHMAN CATTLE DIE IN FREEZE

Loss To Stock Raisers Estimated At $150,000: Toll Expected To Rise

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3. —(AP)—Two hundred and 50 crossbreed Brahman cattle, developed to withstand Florida's semi-tropical heat, were killed by the present cold snap.

The loss was placed by stock raisers at $50,000 and ranchers feared additional deaths among the hump-backed breed of Indian ancestry in the freeze predicted tonight.

The toll from exposure and trampling may climb as high as 800.

Many of the cattle were trampled to death as heards bunched around Lake Okeechobee during last night's icy rain.

Other victims, weakened by malnutrition, lay dead or dying on grassless muckland pastures. The winter's previous bitter cold spells had killed their pasture grass.

Scores of the Brahmas were reported suffering pneumonia.

The Brahmas were imported from India for cross breeding with other strains for the Florida clime. They are big, meaty animals and resist disease well.

Below freezing weather forecast for all of Florida tonight and early tomorrow threatened $106,000,000 worth of citrus fruit still on trees. Winter vegetable crops also may suffer. A low of 17 predicted for north Florida.

Home owners and winter visitors in some parts of the state faced the threat of electric power rationing. Users of other forms of fuel were urged to go slow.

In Miami, where thermometers dropped to 36 early today, the Florida Power and Light Company warned it may have to ration power unless the heavy usage of current is cut down.

Acheson Asked To Spell Out Troops

Washington, Feb. 3—(AP)—Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) said today he wanted Secretary of State Acheson to spell out the "modest U.S. air and ground strength General Dwight Eisenhower would give to Europe's defenses.

Wherry, who opposes sending additional foot soldiers to Europe, said he will demand that Acheson tell senate committees next week why commitments have already been made.

"I accept at face value General Eisenhower's statements that he has made no commitments," Wherry told a reporter.

"That leaves Acheson as the one man who could have made such agreements. He should tell congress whether any exists."

Guardsmen Here Have Inspection

Members From Surrounding Towns Brave Foul Weather To Appear Before Rigid Scrutiny Of Army Officials

By Jim Reynolds
(Of the Morning World Staff)

With a military precision and a well-polished gleam that would Make any regular army unit proud, Company "I" of the Third Battalion, 199th Infantry, Louisiana National Guard, underwent its annual regular army inspection Wednesday night.

Heading the inspection team was Col. S. T. Hames, attached to the Inspector-General's department, Fourth Army headquarters, Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He was accompanied on his inspection tour by Col. G. W. Trousdale, regimental commander, Col. Gaston Eikel, regular army instructor for the battalion, Capt. Reneau Breard, battalion training officer, and Capt. Harry A. Lazarus, regimental adjutant.

More than 40 Guardsmen from the Twin Cities and surrounding towns braved heavy snow and sleet and the hazards of icy streets and highways to be in formation with their company.

Other units of the battalion, commanded by Col. W. H. Johnson, were inspected during the week. Headquarters company was inspected Monday, Feb. 29, and Company "K" Feb. 1.

Before the inspection, company commander Lt. J. L. Roberts, Lt. Jack Entrican, executive officer, and First Sergeant S. E. Holloway Jr. completed final pre-inspection checks and lined the parish troops into formation. Platoon I is under the command of Lt. Dwight Wadlow, with Sgt. H. L. Horstman as platoon sergeant. Lt. W. B. Rainer commands the weapons platoon, with Sgt. W. M. Williamson as platoon sergeant.

In addition to the personal inspection of the troops, the army group also checked the Guard unit's administration, supply and training programs, checked equipment and "sat in" on classes and training sessions.

Among the training classes inspected by the group were the class on the Garand M-1 rifle, the basic weapon of the infantry, conducted by Sgt. James P. Scalia and Sgt. Joe Lazuzo; the instruction class on the 60 mm mortar, conducted by Maj. G. P. Jordan and Corp. Philip A. Duncan; the class on operation of the new 57 mm recoilless anti tank rifle, conducted by Lt. Rainer and Sgt. Williamson; the .30 cal. machine gun course, conducted by Lt. Entrican and Sgt. Thomas Carter; the mass management course, under Sgt. Jack Williamson; and Sgt. Horstman's class for company truck drivers.

Martial music played over the armory loudspeaker system before the company fell in and broadcast during rest periods and "breaks" heightened the military background for the inspection.

Col. Hames addressed the company after the inspection had been completed, complimenting them on their bearing and training. Discussing the Korean war, he continued: "We know now the necessity of training, experience and military preparation. Let us hope that units such as this will reflect the best training, providing our country with a powerful force of good citizens and good soldiers.

The final report of the inspector will be drawn up upon his return to Fourth Army headquarters and forwarded to the commanding officer when completed.

Commenting on the inspection, Lt. Roberts lauded the Guard members who turned out for the inspection, praising their "spirit and determination in coming considerable distances through storm - clogged roads and bad weather conditions. "The spirit of these men," he said, "is a credit to the unit and to the Guard. They're infantrymen, and they have a right to be proud of it. The infantry, as the lesson of Korea shows, is the backbone of the army, a well-trained, tough bunch who are assigned to do a man's job. The few dollars in pay the Guard member gets would hardly be much of an inducement to come through weather such as we had inspection night. The men of Company "I" showed the determination that makes a good infantryman. We're proud of them."

Lt. Entrican announced that a few "choice openings" were available in Companies "I" and "K" and urged prospective volunteers to contact company officers or their representatives at the armory on South Grand Street.

WAR PRISONERS GIVEN FREEDOM

Release Of Former Nazis Follows Sweeping Revision Of Policy

Landsberg, Germany, Feb. 3—(AP)—Twenty-nine war crimes prisoners, including German Arms Magnate Alfried Krupp and four former generals were released from the American prison here today.

They filed through big open doors to freedom and into the arms of waiting relatives. Their release followed a sweeping revision of U.S. war crimes sentences announced Wednesday by High Commissioner John J. McCloy.

The prisoners came out in the gray, chill day wearing ill-fitting clothing. They blinked with surprise, when they saw the crowd of well wishers gathered at the prison's entrance. Their relatives greeted them with kisses and bouquets of jonquils and tulips.

Waiting automobiles whisked them away in less than five minutes.

Krupp, gray and drawn, was met by his younger brother, Berthold, who came from Essen, headquarters of the $500,000,000 Krupp Industrial empire. Earlier, Berthold told reporters that the arms king would take a little holiday, probably in Bavaria, "to get used to people again" before going back into business. He has been in prison for nearly six years.

Former Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm Speidel was met by his daughter, who clung to his arm as they laughed excitedly and hurried to a parked car. He is a brother of former General Hans Speidel, west German representative in rearmament negotiations with the Allies.

Just before the 29 were liberated a tall gray-haired woman with a strained, anxious face slipped inside the prison. She was Mrs. M. Oswald Pohl, whose husband is to be hanged for commanding Hitler's concentration camp system. His clemency plea was refused this week.

The mass clemency was ordered for the release of 33 convicted war criminals.

Typhus Once Again Becomes Danger To Fighting Armies

By Robert E. Geiger

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)— The Typhus fever that has struck enemy troops in Korea, plus some of its first-cousin diseases, have decided more military campaigns than all the generals in history.

That is the estimate of Hans Zinsser, former U. S. public health authority.

Zinsser said not only Napoleon but also Caesar and Hann Bal were virtually powerless in the face of epidemics among their troops, despite their brilliant military abilities.

Typhus always has been among the most formidable of the "military" diseases although it has lost most, if not all, of its terror for American armies.

U. S. forces have a vaccine for use against typhus. In addition they fight the disease with insecticides, killing the body lice that carry it. In World War II not a single American soldier was killed by typhus although it was epidemic in some of the battle areas, such as Africa, medical authorities say.

One authority said typhus and some other diseases such as bubonic plague—the black death — are much more of a threat to Asian armies than to American.

He said this is because the Asiatics would be less likely to have abundant materials—vaccine and insecticides—at Hadn to fight outbreaks than the United States. But he added that the Russians and probably the Chinese have adequate supplies to suppress outbreaks,

Typhus is carried by the common "cootie"—the body lice that infested the trench soldier of World War I. The louse contracts the disease by biting an infected human being.

This is the European and Asiatic type of the disease, the most deadly. U. S. public health service officials say it kills from 10 to 40 people out of every 100 it strikes. Another form, murine typhus, is far less deadly and is carried by fleas. These are carried by rats.

The human louse that carried the deadlier type of the disease is widely distributed in the world and thrives under winter conditions.

Authorities said it is a serious threat to soldiers who fail to bathe or otherwise practice good health rules in cold weather.

The vaccine that is used against the disease can be made readily and knowledge about how to make it is widespread among scientists of all nations, officials said.

Typhus fever is a common disease in Asia and American scientists believe the Chinese and Russians are sufficiently foresighted to have anticipated possible outbreaks.

The U. S. vaccine is produced in egg cultures and can be manufactured in large quantities. The Chinese had a cruder method of producing it many years ago, but may have turned to more efficient methods.

The disease makes a person ill for two weeks or longer and is deadliest among older persons.

It struck French, Britain and Russian troops in the Crimean war, 1853-56, with disastrous results. Zinsser estimates that typhus, cholera and dysentery killed 49,815 French troops, while 20,356 died of wounds. He says the British lost about 5,000 to wounds while 17,225 soldiers died of the diseases.

For the Russians disease and bullets were a 50-50 risk, each killing around 37,000 men.

NATIVE WOMAN ASKS KOREA AID

In-Ai-Yang To Receive Cooperation Of Clubs Under Altrusa Sponsorship

Shown in the accompanying picture is In-Ai Yang, native Korean who has twice visited Monroe and through her the Altrusa club of Monroe is sponsoring an inter-club project to help Korean refugees in need of warm clothing, bedding, medicine and other supplies. At this time this young woman is associated with the south Korean diplomatic mission at Tokyo as interpreter and director of the blood bank to aid fellow countrymen.

She was chosen as a project in international friendship by Altrusa Clubs of the seventh district which includes Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Guatemala, Mexico and Korea. A scholarship raised paid her way upon her selection to the school of nursing in the university in Seoul. Later she chose to work for an advanced degree in hospital management when in this country. This was taken at Vanderbilt University and she also did practical hospital work in a Texarkana hospital.

Local service clubs have been at this time invited by the International Relations committee of the Altrusa Club to cooperate in this practical project of good will —the aiding of Korean refugees with supplies. Clubs here invited are the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Civitans, Pilots, Quota Business and Professional, Exchange and Optimist groups. Religious organizations contacted include the Twin City Council of Women, the Y. W. C. A. and the Y's Men, the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, all of whom have been informed of the need for clothing. Members of the International Relations Committee of the Monroe Altrusa Club are Miss Agatha Burkett, Mrs. Adrienne Carr and Miss Mary Clay. Mrs. Erline Adams, Altrusa president, is working with her committee on the project.

IN-AI-YANG TO THE RESCUE

Shown above is a native Korean who through the aid of local and other civic clubs is seeking to assist fellow countrymen of Korea in their need for warm clothing and supplies. The Altrusa club of Monroe is asking aid from all the Twin City service clubs as the need is growing more serious every day.

He Used to Hide Out
when his creditors came

He was 'way behind with his bills—couldn't seem to catch up. So he took what he thought was the easy way out—dodging his creditors, avoiding a reckoning day.

Then, realizing one day that he was losing the respectable reputation he formerly enjoyed, he mustered up the courage to talk things over with his creditors. And he was relieved to find that it was not the ordeal he thought it would be.

In many cases, as in this one, people who cannot immediately pay their bills will find friendly counsel and cooperation from the Credit Manager, and from the local Credit Bureau Manager. These credit executives are interested in helping people to understand the sound use of credit, and glad to show them how to establish and maintain a good credit record.

If you are behind in your bills—and thus jeopardizing your credit privilege, see your creditors or the Credit Bureau Manager. They will help you straighten out your credit problems without embarrassment, annoyance and loss of "face." Guardsmen Here Have Inspection

By Jim Reynolds
(Of the Morning World Staff)

With a military precision and a well-polished gleam that would Make any regular army unit proud, Company "I" of the Third Battalion, 199th Infantry, Louisiana National Guard, underwent its annual regular army inspection Wednesday night.

Heading the inspection team was Col. S. T. Hames, attached to the Inspector-General's department, Fourth Army headquarters, Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He was accompanied on his inspection tour by Col. G. W. Trousdale, regimental commander, Col. Gaston Eikel, regular army instructor for the battalion, Capt. Reneau Breard, battalion training officer, and Capt. Harry A. Lazarus, regimental adjutant.

More than 40 Guardsmen from the Twin Cities and surrounding towns braved heavy snow and sleet and the hazards of icy streets and highways to be in formation with their company.

Other units of the battalion, commanded by Col. W. H. Johnson, were inspected during the week. Headquarters company was inspected Monday, Feb. 29, and Company "K" Feb. 1.

Before the inspection, company commander Lt. J. L. Roberts, Lt. Jack Entrican, executive officer, and First Sergeant S. E. Holloway Jr. completed final pre-inspection checks and lined the parish troops into formation. Platoon I is under the command of Lt. Dwight Wadlow, with Sgt. H. L. Horstman as platoon sergeant. Lt. W. B. Rainer commands the weapons platoon, with Sgt. W. M. Williamson as platoon sergeant.

In addition to the personal inspection of the troops, the army group also checked the Guard unit's administration, supply and training programs, checked equipment and "sat in" on classes and training sessions.

Among the training classes inspected by the group were the class on the Garand M-1 rifle, the basic weapon of the infantry, conducted by Sgt. James P. Scalia and Sgt. Joe Lazuzo; the instruction class on the 60 mm mortar, conducted by Maj. G. P. Jordan and Corp. Philip A. Duncan; the class on operation of the new 57 mm recoilless anti tank rifle, conducted by Lt. Rainer and Sgt. Williamson; the .30 cal. machine gun course, conducted by Lt. Entrican and Sgt. Thomas Carter; the mass management course, under Sgt. Jack Williamson; and Sgt. Horstman's class for company truck drivers.

Martial music played over the armory loudspeaker system before the company fell in and broadcast during rest periods and "breaks" heightened the military background for the inspection.

Col. Hames addressed the company after the inspection had been completed, complimenting them on their bearing and training. Discussing the Korean war, he continued: "We know now the necessity of training, experience and military preparation. Let us hope that units such as this will reflect the best training, providing our country with a powerful force of good citizens and good soldiers.

The final report of the inspector will be drawn up upon his return to Fourth Army headquarters and forwarded to the commanding officer when completed.

Commenting on the inspection, Lt. Roberts lauded the Guard members who turned out for the inspection, praising their "spirit and determination in coming considerable distances through storm - clogged roads and bad weather conditions. "The spirit of these men," he said, "is a credit to the unit and to the Guard. They're infantrymen, and they have a right to be proud of it. The infantry, as the lesson of Korea shows, is the backbone of the army, a well-trained, tough bunch who are assigned to do a man's job. The few dollars in pay the Guard member gets would hardly be much of an inducement to come through weather such as we had inspection night. The men of Company "I" showed the determination that makes a good infantryman. We're proud of them."

Lt. Entrican announced that a few "choice openings" were available in Companies "I" and "K" and urged prospective volunteers to contact company officers or their representatives at the armory on South Grand Street.

WAR PRISONERS GIVEN FREEDOM

Release Of Former Nazis Follows Sweeping Revision Of Policy

Landsberg, Germany, Feb. 3—(AP)—Twenty-nine war crimes prisoners, including German Arms Magnate Alfried Krupp and four former generals were released from the American prison here today.

They filed through big open doors to freedom and into the arms of waiting relatives. Their release followed a sweeping revision of U.S. war crimes sentences announced Wednesday by High Commissioner John J. McCloy.

The prisoners came out in the gray, chill day wearing ill-fitting clothing. They blinked with surprise, when they saw the crowd of well wishers gathered at the prison's entrance. Their relatives greeted them with kisses and bouquets of jonquils and tulips.

Waiting automobiles whisked them away in less than five minutes.

Krupp, gray and drawn, was met by his younger brother, Berthold, who came from Essen, headquarters of the $500,000,000 Krupp Industrial empire. Earlier, Berthold told reporters that the arms king would take a little holiday, probably in Bavaria, "to get used to people again" before going back into business. He has been in prison for nearly six years.

Former Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm Speidel was met by his daughter, who clung to his arm as they laughed excitedly and hurried to a parked car. He is a brother of former General Hans Speidel, west German representative in rearmament negotiations with the Allies.

Just before the 29 were liberated a tall gray-haired woman with a strained, anxious face slipped inside the prison. She was Mrs. M. Oswald Pohl, whose husband is to be hanged for commanding Hitler's concentration camp system. His clemency plea was refused this week.

The mass clemency was ordered for the release of 33 convicted war criminals.

Mardi Gras Will Be Observed Here

The X. Y. Z. Club, headed by Frank Perkins, will again stage a Mardi Gras for the colored people of the Twin Cities. McCain-Richards Company is sponsoring King Zule who will arrive on the customary yacht up the river and will be met at the foot of Pine street at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

At that point he will be met with many gaily colored automobiles and escorted through downtown Monroe to the Liberty Night Club where lines will disband.

A prize will be offered for the best decorated auto in the parade.

On Tuesday night there will be held the annual Mardi Gras in Liberty Night Club. The queen will be crowned and there will be a merry party.

Typhus Once Again Becomes Danger To Fighting Armies

By Robert E. Geiger

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)— The Typhus fever that has struck enemy troops in Korea, plus some of its first-cousin diseases, have decided more military campaigns than all the generals in history.

That is the estimate of Hans Zinsser, former U. S. public health authority.

Zinsser said not only Napoleon but also Caesar and Hann Bal were virtually powerless in the face of epidemics among their troops, despite their brilliant military abilities.

Typhus always has been among the most formidable of the "military' diseases although it has lost most, if not all, of its terror for American armies.

U. S. forces have a vaccine for use against typhus. In addition they fight the disease with insecticides, killing the body lice that carry it. In World War II not a single American soldier was killed by typhus although it was epidemic in some of the battle areas, such as Africa, medical authorities say.

One authority said typhus and some other diseases such as bubonic plague—the black death — are much more of a threat to Asian armies than to American.

He said this is because the Asiatics would be less likely to have abundant materials—vaccine and insecticides—at Hadn to fight outbreaks than the United States. But he added that the Russians and probably the Chinese have adequate supplies to suppress outbreaks.

Typhus is carried by the common "cootie'—the body lice that infested the trench soldier of World War I. The louse contracts the disease by biting an infected human being.

This is the European and Asiatic type of the disease, the most deadly. U. S. public health service officials say it kills from 10 to 40 people out of every 100 it strikes. Another form, murine typhus, is far less deadly and is carried by fleas. These are carried by rats.

The human louse that carried the deadlier type of the disease is widely distributed in the world and thrives under winter conditions.

Authorities said it is a serious threat to soldiers who fail to bathe or otherwise practice good health rules in cold weather.

The vaccine that is used against the disease can be made readily and knowledge about how to make it is widespread among scientists of all nations, officials said.

Typhus fever is a common disease in Asia and American scientists believe the Chinese and Russians are sufficiently foresighted to have anticipated possible outbreaks.

The U. S. vaccine is produced in egg cultures and can be manufactured in large quantities. The Chinese had a cruder method of producing it many years ago, but may have turned to more efficient methods.

The disease makes a person ill for two weeks or longer and is deadliest among older persons.

It struck French, Britain and Russian troops in the Crimean war, 1853-56, with disastrous results. Zinsser estimates that typhus, cholera and dysentery killed 49,815 French troops, while 20,356 died of wounds. He says the British lost about 5,000 to wounds while 17,225 soldiers died of the diseases.

For the Russians disease and bullets were a 50-50 risk, each killing around 37,000 men.

NATIVE WOMAN ASKS KOREA AID

In-Ai-Yang To Receive Cooperation Of Clubs Under Altrusa Sponsorship

Shown in the accompanying picture is In-Ai Yang, native Korean who has twice visited Monroe and through her the Altrusa club of Monroe is sponsoring an inter-club project to help Korean refugees in need of warm clothing, bedding, medicine and other supplies. At this time this young woman is associated with the south Korean diplomatic mission at Tokyo as interpreter and director of the blood bank to aid fellow countrymen.

She was chosen as a project in international friendship by Altrusa Clubs of the seventh district which includes Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Guatemala, Mexico and Korea. A scholarship raised paid her way upon her selection to the school of nursing in the university in Seoul. Later she chose to work for an advanced degree in hospital management when in this country. This was taken at Vanderbilt University and she also did practical hospital work in a Texarkana hospital.

Local service clubs have been at this time invited by the International Relations committee of the Altrusa Club to cooperate in this practical project of good will —the aiding of Korean refugees with supplies. Clubs here invited are the Rotary,, Kiwanis, Lions, Civitans, Pilots, Quota Business and Professional, Exchange and Optimist groups. Religious organizations contacted include the Twin City Council of Women, the Y. W. C. A. and the Y's Men, the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, all of whom have been informed of the need for clothing. Members of the International Relations Committee of the Monroe Altrusa Club are Miss Agatha Burkett, Mrs. Adrienne Carr and Miss Mary Clay. Mrs. Erline Adams, Altrusa president, is working with her committee on the project.

IN-AI-YANG TO THE RESCUE

Shown above is a native Korean who through the aid of local and other civic clubs is seeking to assist fellow countrymen of Korea in their need for warm clothing supplies. The Altrusa club of Monroe is asking aid from all the Twin City service clubs as the need is growing more serious every day.

He Used to Hide Out
when his creditors came

He was 'way behind with his bills—couldn't seem to catch up. So he took what he thought was the easy way out—dodging his creditors, avoiding a reckoning da;

Then, realizing one day that he was losing the respectable reputation he formerly enjoyed, he mustered up the courage to talk things over with his creditors. And he was relieved to find that it was not the ordeal he thought it would be.

In many cases, as in this one, people who cannot immediately pay their bills will find friendly counsel and cooperation from the Credit Manager, and from the local Credit Bureau Manager. These credit executives are interested in helping people to understand the sound use of credit, and glad to show them how to establish and maintain a good credit record.

If you are behind in your bills—and thus jeopardizing your credit privilege, see your creditors or the Credit Bureau Manager. They will help you straighten out your credit problems without embarrassment, annoyance and loss of "face." If temporarily distressed and unable to pay your bills in full, dodging your creditors won't help. Call on them and talk it over.

SAFETY COUNCIL MEETS MONDAY

Election Of President, Program Of Ensuing Year To Be Mapped

The Ouachita parish safety council will hold it's regular meeting, Monday night, 7:30 p.m., February 5th, in the court room of the West Monroe City Hall. R. M. Kettenring, council president, urges all members to be present at this meeting because this will be the meeting at which time committee chairmen will be selected for the year. Also an effort will be made to present a program for the ensuing year.

The safety council also wishes to bring following facts to the attention to the motoring public:

"Just now this nation is horrified at the casualty lists from Korea. Was is a grim business, which is waged to kill and destroy. But it is also a more horrifying fact that more men, women and children have been killed or injured than in all the wars of American history combined.

There never has been a justifiable automobile accident in this nation or any other country in the world. Accidents do not happen spontaneously and without cause. Accidents are the direct results of definite causes and the chief cause of all is utter carelessness. When two cars collide it is due to the violation of some basic and insufferable simple rule of caution. Someone violated a law that should have been observed. Someone ignored a common rule of courtesy. Someone, either ignorantly, viciously or in a drunken stupor disregarded a simple rule of safety, and the result is immediately translated into death, suffering, sorrow, economic loss and criminal waste of human potentials."

For years there has been waged an ever-expanding battle against automobile accidents. The Ouachita parish safety council has dedicated a part of it's program toward prevention of those accidents, and pleads with the public to make safety the individual responsibility of every resident of this area. Until this is accomplished the mad killing of men, women and children in auto accidents will go on unabated."

New Subpoenas Issued Workers

Chicago, Feb. 3. — (AP) — A fresh batch of suppoenas were issued today against Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen officials in the comtempt hearings on the "sick call" strike of railroad switchmen.

The subpoenas will be served on 53 members and officials of the [illegible] to appear in connection with the present walkout which started Jan. 29.

The current hearing in Chicago's federal court concerns the temporary restraining order issued Dec. 13, 1950, when the switchmen staged a walkout similar to the one now crippling the nation's transportation.

The hearing on the Jan. 29 walkout will start immediately after the conclusion of the hearings on the Dec. 13 contempt action.

Judge Michael Igoe today ordered the union to show cause next Wednesday why it should not be held in contempt for the latest walkout. But he said that if the present trial is not over, the Jan. 29 strike hearings will take place later.

The government hopes to show in both actions that there was "concerted action" among the union members and B. R. T. officials in the Dec. 13 and Jan. 29 walkouts.

Railroad officials appeared today to hand over to the government the names of those switchmen who reported off sick during the December walkout.

In each case, they were asked Union Attorney Walter N. Murray whether B. P. T. officials "cooperated in every way to end the strike at that time."

The witnesses admitted the chairmen of the union locals called on the members to report back to work after being contacted by the railroads.

One railroad official, Chief Clerk Roger A. Haslam of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, said Union Chairman Norman Spiegel had the switchmen return to work on the road on Dec. 16.

"I suggest then," said Judge Igoe, "that you get a hold of Mr. Spiegel now and have him get the men back to work while Mr. Kennedy (W. P. Kennedy, B. R. T. president) settles this thing in Washington."

Spectators in the courtroom, many of them union officials in the Chicago district, applauded loudly.

"I don't know how many representatives of the union conducted that applause," Igoe continued, "but if they are sincere they would go out and do a job and help America get along."

Government Permits Merit Pay Increases

Washington, Feb. 3 —(AP)— The government wage - salary freeze thawed out enough today to permit "merit" and "length of service" pay increases for millions of workers.

Officials emphasized, however, that the action was not a go-ahead for across the board wage or salary hikes.

A member of the nine-man board said it was designed entirely to permit what he called "normal day-to-day pay adjustments."

Old Aircraft Carrier Goes Down Quietly In Pacific

By Roy Essoyan

Honolulu, Feb. 3—(AP)—The atom-bombed hulk of the old aircraft carrier Independence turned on its side and sank only 40 miles off the Golden Gate without a sign of any weapons test, the captain of a nearby merchant ship said today.

The navy had announced when the old 10,000 - ton carrier was towed to sea Jan. 25 that it would be sunk about 500 miles offshore in February with a secret weapon that would be placed aboard.

"There was no explosion of any kind," Petterson said.

Asked if the Independence, smashed by two test atom bombings at Bikini in 1946, might have sunk while navy tugs were towing her, Petterson said:

"I don't know. We weren't close enough to see if the tow lines were still attached when she started going down."

J. H. Valentine of Oakland, Calif., second engineer of the Follis, said:

"There was no fire, no smoke, no nothing. We didn't see anything or hear anything.

"She went down like a tired old ship.

"I saw a lot of ships go down during the war. This one went down real quiet.

"One minute she was setting there. Then she just started to go down."

Petterson said the Follis was the only ship in the area at the time. The only other vessels nearby, navy or civilian, were the two tugs that towed the carrier.

The captain said the Follis ordinarily would have been off to the north but that a current had shoved it south of its great circle route.

"I saw the carrier in tow while I was out on deck," Petterson said. "She was about five miles away."

"Then I walked into my cabin. I was in there only a couple minutes when the first mate came in saying the carrier was sinking.

"By the time I got out, the Independence was on its side. She must have sunk in about 2,000 feet of water."

The Independence, a veteran of two years of fighting in the Pacific, was atom-bombed twice in the Bikini tests in 1946.

After extensive experimental use at the San Francisco naval shipyard, the smashed hulk was to have been sunk by some non-atomic weapon placed aboard.

The sinking was cloaked in secrecy by the navy. No newsmen or photographers were allowed to view it.

In World War II, the carrier's planes destroyed more than 100 Japanese planes and at least one ship, the cruiser Oyodo.

23 Persons Believed Dead In Boat Disaster

Panama Panama Feb. 3.—(AP)—Rough seas capsized a 45 - ton launch in Panama Bay in the darkness early Wednesday and all but four of the 27 persons aboard are believed to have perished.

The launch was the motor ship Josefina M. which was bound to Panama City from Jaque, Darien Province. All aboard were Colombians or Panamanians.

One passenger and a crewman, dispatched in a small boat for help, were picked up by a passing steamer Wednesday night.

A U. S. air force helicopter rescued two other passengers, a man and a woman, from the wind-driven wreckage 45 miles south of the Pacific entrance of the Panama Canal Friday after a long air hunt in which seven dead were sighted.

These two had clung to the wreckage 50 hours.

One was a Panamanian teacher, Marcos Medina. The woman, wide-eyed but too weak to talk, was Nemesia San Clemente. Both are in Santo Tomas hospital.

Medina, still too dazed to give a coherent account of the wreck, said the launch sank gradually. Passengers went aboard makeshift rafts. Some crazed by lack of water, leaped into the sea Thursday and vanished.

By Friday dawn, Medina said, only he and the woman still clung to the debris. They were sighted by American search planes at noon and the helicopter picked them up an hour later.

Truman Pays Tribute To Valiant Men

Philadelphia, Feb. 3. —(AP)— The task before the United States, President Truman said today, is to "restrain aggression before it bursts into another world war."

Mr. Truman, under wartime security guard, came to Philadelphia—birthplace of American liberty—to dedicate the chapel of the four chaplains, an inter -faith memorial to the heroism of four army chaplains who died in the sinking of the troopship Dorchester.

The $300,000 chapel, built with donations from more than 10,000 prrsons of all faiths, commemorates the memory of four army chaplains—a Jew, a Roman Catholic and two protestants—who went down with the transport Dorchester.

The ship was torpedoed and sank eight years ago today off Greenland with a loss of more than 600 lives. The four chaplains gave away their life belts to soldiers. They were last seen hands and voices joined in prayer aboard the sinking ship.

The four were the Rev. Clark Poling, Schnectady, N. Y., and the Rev George L. Fom, Jr., Sharon, Vt., protestant ministers; Rabbi Peamber D. Goode, York, Pa., a Jew, and the Rev. John P. Washington, Newark, N. J., a Roman Catholic priest.

Mr. Truman said: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

The president came here aboard his special train, accompanied by Defense Secretary Gen. George C. Marshal and Secretaries of the army, navy, and air force. He rode in his bullet-proof private car, and an armed guard was aboard the train when it left Washington at 12:16 p. m. (EST).

A special pilot train, testing the safety of the route as usual of presidential trips, was five minutes ahead of the chief executive's train. It ran 10 minutes behind one of the regular Pennsylvania railroad passenger trains which has been kept in operation despite the "sickness strike" of railroad yard workers and train crewmen which has drastically reduced freight service and curtailed passenger service between here and Washington.

Many regular passenger trains have been kept in operation through use of supervisory personnel to replace the strikers.

At another point he warned that the United States "cannot lead the forces of freedom from behind."

"Our men are in Korea because we are trying to prevent a world-wide war." Mr. Truman emphasized. "The men who have died in Korea have died to save us from the terrible slaughter and destruction another world war would surely bring.

"Their sacrifices are being made in the spirit of the four chaplains. . . In defense of the great religious faiths which make this chapel a place to worship."

Fathers of two of the hero chaplains shared in the brief non-denominational service marking dedication of the chapel.

They were the Rev. Daniel Poling, pastor of the chapel and father of the Rev. Clark Poling, and Rabbi H. S. Goodkowitz, father of Rabbi Goode. Relatives of Father Washington and Mr. Fox also were present.

DeWitt Mackenzie

MacKenzie's Column

The constant pressure from Europe for American aid, especially for military defense, naturally gives rise to the query of just how much these anxious nations are prepared to do for themselves in self-defense.

Constantly I run into doubters who feel that our Uncle Sam is being taken for a ride. They raise the not too complimentary inquiry of whether the suppliants as a whole will fight for themselves on a showdown. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, just back home from a tour of Europe to study the military situation, gave a categorical answer to this question in his speech to members of congress Thursday. He declared there is no question of western Europe's desire to resist aggression, and added:

"There is a spirit to resist. There is a determination to do their part — to take the risk."

That's testimony from high authority, but we really shouldn't have to call on General Ike to answer this important query. We should be able to answer it ourselves, with a little thought. Personally, having spent nearly a score of years in Europe and having had a close-up view of the two world wars, I feel confident western Europe again will give a good account of itself if worst comes to worst.

Many of these people not only have experienced the death and destruction of bombing, but their countries have been battlefields across which great mechanized armies have surged. Millions have undergone occupation by enemy forces.

These terrible experiences have left behind a heritage of anxiety.

Living in western Europe is like life on the slopes of an active volcano. Constantly there are the fearsome rumblings with warn of hidden dangers, and the worst feature of this is that there's no telling when the disaster may come.

Europe is in a state of perpetual suspense.

The strain is particularly severe in nations like Italy and France where communism has obtained a strong foothold. The Red parties in both these countries are capable of carrying out destructive sabotage in event of war with Russia, and have made it perfectly clear that they intend to do so.

These are circumstances which are bound to fray the nerves of any people. However, those of us who have seen two world wars launched across western Europe shouldn't have such short memories as to permit of doubts as to whether her peoples will fight in self-defense.

By and large they will fight with or without help, but it can't be overlooked that the ravages of two world wars — the last one not long past — have weakened them economically. So when the call for help in rearming, there probably is sound reason for the petition.

That's not to say that the U. S. A. doesn't get short-changed sometimes. We have seen that happen in cases where it was least excusable — but one exception doesn't disprove the rule.

Anyway, in this historic ideological war which is sweeping the whole world, the free nations must stand together or they will find themselves cut down one by one. It is a case of all nations contributing to the common cause — each according to his ability.

That means, I take it that the big fellow has to kick in with more than the little chap.

Plans To Make Canada Important Air Power

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(AP)—Plans to make Canada an important military air power are expected to be disclosed next week by Defense Minister Brooke Claxton.

In the House of Commons Monday or Tuesday he will make what officials are predicting will be a vital statement on Canadian defense.

Observers say he is expected to make these points:

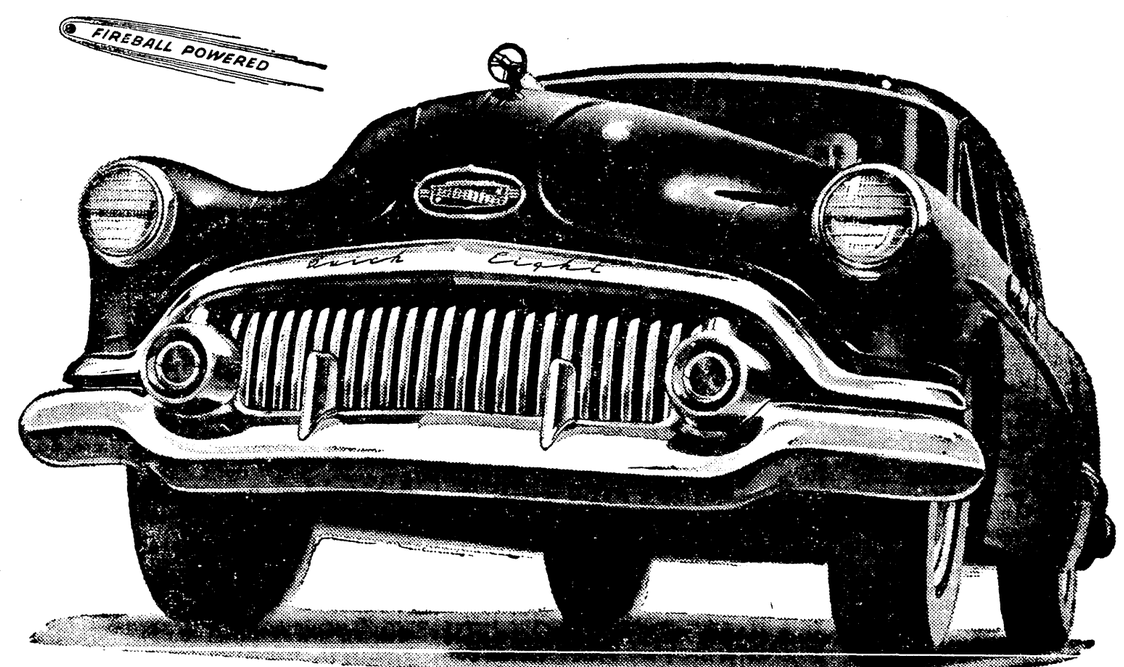

1. The cabinet will ask parliament to vote more than $1,500,000,000 for defense in the fiscal year starting April 1. A large portion of the money will go to produce fighter planes for Canada and her Allies, notably Britain.

2. The House will be asked to authorize the defense department to enter contracts worth more millions, with the bills to be paid in future years.

3. The air force, already the No. 1 service in point of spending and emphasis, will be built up rapidly until it is capable of instant fighter action in both north America and Europe. It is anticipated that Canada will have at least an air division—12 squadrons—in being in 1952.

MORNING COUGHS and Asthma

Do you cough and cough, especially mornings and at night? Do you choke, gasp for breath, wheeze and often can't sleep? The cause of these devitalizing symptoms may be recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma. In such cases, the very first dose of MENDACO usually starts right now, working through the blood and thus reaching lungs and bronchial tubes, to help relax that clogged up stuffy feeling in the bronchial tubes, then helps Nature loosen and clean out thick, strangling phlegm. This helps you get good fresh air into your lungs and promotes restful sleep. Ask your druggist for MENDACO. Satisfaction or money back guaranteed.

Long-term Investment that pays daily dividends

THESE are days when thoughtful people turn their minds to the durability of things they purchase—and that makes good sense at any time.

But you may have noticed that it's a rare occasion when doing your duty turns out to be the best way to satisfy your heart's desire.

That's what's so marvelous about this '51 Buick.

If you picked a car just for the lift it gives you—your pride in its power and pace—or its generous comfort and room—you couldn't make a better choice.

But make note of this:

That gleaming new push-bar forefront, which greets your eye with flashing beauty, contains 25 grille bars made of stamped steel, individually mounted to "give" and come back unharmed. Combined with a massive, wrap-around bumper, fortressed by two stalwart "bumper bombs" and two added uprights, it gives unsurpassed protection.

The springs of stout spiraled steel on all four wheels let your wheels dip and curtsey over uneven highways, while you ride level as a lance. But these springs also need no servicing, and breakage is virtually unknown.

Buick's great-powered engine is a Fireball, wondrously lively and eager at the mere touch of your toe—but it also wrings extra power from every drop of fuel, and has the mechanical perfection that comes only from years of experience with this basic design.

Dynaflow Drive gives every mile you drive effortless smoothness of control—but it also eliminates clutch repair bills, saves tires, puts less strain on the whole driving mechanism, from engine to differential.

The road-steady gait of a Buick gives you a sense of relaxed security—and is also evidence that you have a durable, deep-silled, X-braced frame beneath you.

However you check it, you'll discover this: The things that make you yearn for a Buick on first acquaintance, are the very same things that make Buick such a smart long-time buy.

Better make it a point to see your Buick dealer—soon.

Standard equipment, accessories and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

No other car provides all this:

DYNAFLOW DRIVE*—saves strain on driver and car
FIREBALL POWER—high-compression, valve-in-head engine gets more good from every drop of fuel
PUSH-BAR FOREFRONT—combines smart style and unsurpassed protection
WHITE-GLOW INSTRUMENTS—greater clarity at night
TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE—steadies ride, improves driving control

Election Of President, Program Of Ensuing Year To Be Mapped

The Ouachita parish safety council will hold it's regular meeting, Monday night, 7:30 p.m., February 5th, in the court room of the West Monroe City Hall. R. M. Kettenring, council president, urges all members to be present at this meeting because this will be the meeting at which time committee chairmen will be selected for the year. Also an effort will be made to present a program for the ensuing year.

The safety council also wishes to bring following facts to the attention to the motoring public:

"Just now this nation is horrified at the casualty lists from Korea. Was is a grim business, which is waged to kill and destroy. But it is also a more horrifying fact that more men, women and children have been killed or injured than in all the wars of American history combined.

There never has been a justifiable automobile accident in this nation or any other country in the world. Accidents do not happen spontaneously and without cause. Accidents are the direct results of definite causes and the chief cause of all is utter carelessness. When two cars collide it is due to the violation of some basic and insufferable simple rule of caution. Someone violated a law that should have been observed. Someone ignored a common rule of courtesy. Someone, either ignorantly, viciously or in a drunken stupor disregarded a simple rule of safety, and the result is immediately translated into death, suffering, sorrow, economic loss and criminal waste of human potentials."

For years there has been waged an ever-expanding battle against automobile accidents. The Ouachita parish safety council has dedicated a part of it's program toward prevention of those accidents, and pleads with the public to make safety the individual responsibility of every resident of this area. Until this is accomplished the mad killing of men, women and children in auto accidents will go on unabated."

New Subpoenas Issued Workers

Chicago, Feb. 3. —(AP)— A fresh batch of suppoenas were issued today against Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen officials in the comtempt hearings on the "sick call" strike of railroad switchmen.

The subpoenas will be served on 53 members and officials of the union to order them to appear in connection with the present walkout which started Jan. 29.

The current hearing in Chicago's federal court concerns the temporary restraining order issued Dec. 13, 1950, when the switchmen staged a walkout similar to the one now crippling the nation's transportation.

The hearing on the Jan. 29 walkout will start immediately after the conclusion of the hearings on the Dec. 13 contempt action.

Judge Michael Igoe today ordered the union to show cause next Wednesday why it should not be held in contempt for the latest walkout. But he said that if the present trial is not over, the Jan. 29 strike hearings will take place later.

The government hopes to show in both actions that there was "concerted action" among the union members and B. R. T. officials in the Dec. 13 and Jan. 29 walkouts.

Railroad officials appeared today to hand over to the government the names of those switchmen who reported off sick during the December walkout.

In each case, they were asked Union Attorney Walter N. Murray whether B. P. T. officials "cooperated in every way to end the strike at that time."

The witnesses admitted the chairmen of the union locals called on the members to report back to work after being contacted by the railroads.

One railroad official, Chief Clerk Roger A. Haslam of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, said Union Chairman Norman Spiegel had the switchmen return to work on the road on Dec. 16.

"I suggest then," said Judge Igoe "that you get a hold of Mr. Spiegel now and have him get the men back to work while Mr. Kennedy (W. P. Kennedy, B. R. T. president) settles this thing in Washington."

Spectators in the courtroom, many of them union officials in the Chicago district, applauded loudly.

"I don't know how many representatives of the union conducted that applause," Igoe continued, "but if they are sincere they would go out and do a job and help America get along."

Government Permits Merit Pay Increases

Washington, Feb. 3 —(AP)— The government wage - salary freeze thawed out enough today to permit "merit" and "length of service" pay increases for millions of workers.

Officials emphasized, however, that the action was not a go-ahead for across the board wage or salary hikes.

A member of the nine-man board said it was designed entirely to permit what he called "normal day-to-day pay adjustments."

Old Aircraft Carrier Goes Down Quietly In Pacific

By Roy Essoyan

Honolulu, Feb. 3—(AP)—The atom-bombed hulk of the old aircraft carrier Independence turned on its side and sank only 40 miles off the Golden Gate without a sign of any weapons test, the captain of a nearby merchant ship said today.

The navy had announced when the old 10,000 - ton carrier was towed to sea Jan. 25 that it would be sunk about 500 miles offshore in February with a secret weapon that would be placed aboard.

"There was no explosion of any kind," Petterson said.

Asked if the Independence, smashed by two test atom bombings at Bikini in 1946, might have sunk while navy tugs were towing her, Petterson said:

"I don't know. We weren't close enough to see if the tow lines were still attached when she started going down."

J. H. Valentine of Oakland, Calif., second engineer of the Follis, said:

"There was no fire, no smoke, no nothing. We didn't see anything or hear anything.

"She went down like a tired old ship.

"I saw a lot of ships go down during the war. This one went down real quiet.

"One minute she was setting there. Then she just started to go down."

Petterson said the Follis was the only ship in the area at the time. The only other vessels nearby, navy or civilian, were the two tugs that towed the carrier.

The captain said the Follis ordinarily would have been off to the north but that a current had shoved it south of its great circle route.

"I saw the carrier in tow while I was out on deck," Petterson said. "She was about five miles away."

"Then I walked into my cabin. I was in there only a couple minutes when the first mate came in saying the carrier was sinking.

"By the time I got out, the Independence was on its side. She must have sunk in about 2,000 feet of water."

The Independence, a veteran of two years of fighting in the Pacific, was atom-bombed twice in the Bikini tests in 1946.

After extensive experimental use at the San Francisco naval shipyard, the smashed hulk was to have been sunk by some non-atomic weapon placed aboard.

The sinking was cloaked in secrecy by the navy. No newsmen or photographers were allowed to view it.

In World War II, the carrier's planes destroyed more than 100 Japanese planes and at least one ship, the cruiser Oyodo.

Orleans Cotton Trading Still Under Suspension

New Orleans, Feb. 3. —(AP)—Trading will remain suspended on the New Orleans Cotton Exchange Monday, the board of directors announced today.

In an announcement today the board said it would meet Monday to hear a report from Creekmore and Merric. J. E. Gould, acting president, said it was deemed advisable to suspend trading Monday pending the report from its representative at the Washington meeting.

23 Persons Believed Dead In Boat Disaster

Panama Panama, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Rough seas capsized a 45 - ton launch in Panama Bay in the darkness early Wednesday and all but four of the 27 persons aboard are believed to have perished.

The launch was the motor ship Josefina M. which was bound to Panama City from Jaque, Darien Province. All aboard were Colombians or Panamanians.

One passenger and a crewman, dispatched in a small boat for help, were picked up by a passing steamer Wednesday night.

A U. S. air force helicopter rescued two other passengers, a man and a woman, from the wind-driven wreckage 45 miles south of the Pacific entrance of the Panama Canal Friday after a long air hunt in which seven dead were sighted.

These two had clung to the wreckage 50 hours.

One was a Panamanian teacher, Marcos Medina. The woman, wide-eyed but too weak to talk, was Nemesia San Clemente. Both are in Santo Tomas hospital.

Medina, still too dazed to give a coherent account of the wreck, said the launch sank gradually. Passengers went aboard makeshift rafts. Some crazed by lack of water, leaped into the sea Thursday and vanished.

By Friday dawn, Medina said, only he and the woman still clung to the debris. They were sighted by American search planes at noon and the helicopter picked them up an hour later.

Truman Pays Tribute To Valiant Men

Philadelphia, Feb. 3. —(AP)— The task before the United States, President Truman said today, is to "restrain aggression before it bursts into another world war."

Mr. Truman, under wartime security guard, came to Philadelphia—birthplace of American liberty—to dedicate the chapel of the four chaplains, an inter -faith memorial to the heroism of four army chaplains who died in the sinking of the troopship Dorchester.

The $300,000 chapel, built with donations from more than 10,000 prrsons of all faiths, commemorates the memory of four army chaplains—a Jew, a Roman Catholic and two protestants—who went down with the transport Dorchester.

The ship was torpedoed and sank eight years ago today off Greenland with a loss of more than 600 lives. The four chaplains gave away their life belts to soldiers. They were last seen hands and voices joined in prayer aboard the sinking ship.

The four were the Rev. Clark Poling, Schnectady, N. Y., and the Rev George L. Fom, Jr., Sharon, Vt., protestant ministers; Rabbi Peamber D. Goode, York, Pa., a Jew, and the Rev. John P. Washington, Newark, N. J., a Roman Catholic priest.

Mr. Truman said: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

The president came here aboard his special train, accompanied by Defense Secretary Gen. George C. Marshal and Secretaries of the army, navy, and air force. He rode in his bullet-proof private car, and an armed guard was aboard the train when it left Washington at 12:16 p. m. (EST).

A special pilot train, testing the safety of the route as usual of presidential trips, was five minutes ahead of the chief executive's train. It ran 10 minutes behind one of the regular Pennsylvania railroad passenger trains which has been kept in operation despite the "sickness strike" of railroad yard workers and train crewmen which has drastically reduced freight service and curtailed passenger service between here and Washington.

Many regular passenger trains have been kept in operation through use of supervisory personnel to replace the strikers.

At another point he warned that the United States "cannot lead the forces of freedom from behind."

"Our men are in Korea because we are trying to prevent a world-wide war," Mr. Truman emphasized. "The men who have died in Korea have died to save us from the terrible slaughter and destruction another world war would surely bring.

"Their sacrifices are being made in the spirit of the four chaplains. . . In defense of the great religious faiths which make this chapel a place to worship."

Fathers of two of the hero chaplains shared in the brief non-denominational service marking dedication of the chapel.

They were the Rev. Daniel Poling, pastor of the chapel and father of the Rev. Clark Poling, and Rabbi H. S. Goodkowitz, father of Rabbi Goode. Relatives of Father Washington and Mr. Fox also were present.

MONROE SPORTS PROGRESS WITH '51 PLANS

AL MAZUR SIGNS FOR 2ND SEASON AS LOCAL PILOT

Rebuilding Of Club Only Major Task Yet Facing Cotton States Entry

The Monroe Sports, their 1951 schedule complete and Manager Al Mazur rehired for his sophomore year as a baseball skipper, are now pointing toward rebuilding their second-place Cotton States League club for the campaign due to open April 17.

The schedule was adopted at a meeting of league directors with President Al Haraway at Greenville, Miss., last Sunday, and Mazur signed his 1951 contract with Club President Bonneau Peters, also owner of the Shreveport Sports of the Texas League, in Shreveport during the past week.

The national emergency is due to take its toll of younger members of the Monroe club, but Business Manager Paul Manasseh has already been busy with Peters and Mazur lining up new talent for the season. In addition, Manasseh got in some good work at Legion Memorial Stadium here (before the big freeze—weather that is) where the infield has been built up a good six inches and resodded, and the outfield has undergone similar improving treatment.

The Sports, as previously announced, will open the season at home with the Natchez Indians with a pair of games on April 17 and 18. They switch to Natchez for "second openers" April 19 and 20. Then the Sports return for a five game series, meeting Clarksdale in three games April 21-22-23 and Greenwood in two, April 23-24 before hitting the road eight games, three in Greenwood, three (including a Sunday double header) at Clarksdale and two at Natchez.

The order in which the rival clubs will be presented to Twin City fans and the number of games in the initial series here will be Natchez, two; Clarksdale, three; Greenwood, two; Pine Bluff, three; Hot Springs, two; El Dorado, two; and Greenville, two.

Only three home series will go as long as six games. The Sports' schedule includes five home stands of five games each, four of four games, one of three, and four of two.

The schedule, drawn up to close August 31, includes four double headers for the Sports, one each here with Clarksdale and Greenville, and two on the road at Clarksdale and Pine Bluff.

The Men of Mazur will be playing in their own park on ten Sunday dates. The July the Fourth game, played here with Natchez last year, will be played at the Mississippi city this summer.

Because the schedule has been worked toward an earlier closing date this season, there is no scheduled Labor Day game, although a playoff possibility could give Monroe such a holiday show.

Natchez comes to Monroe five times for two games each trip. All other clubs visit Monroe four times for two three-game and two two-game stands except Greenville which makes its four appearances here in a single four-game series and three of two games each.

AUBURN BLASTS GREENIES, 92-71

Plainsmen Lead All Way As George Hill Sets Fast Pace

Auburn, Ala., Feb. 3. — (AP) — Auburn's sharpshooting cagers routed Tulane in a Southeastern Conference basketball contest tonight, 92 to 71.

The Tigers' George Hill was the star of the battle, coming out of a three-game slump to pile up the top scoring total of 29 points.

Where he hit only one field goal out of 23 tries in three previous tilts, he sank 12 out of 17 from all over the court against the Greenies. He showed his usual deadly accuracy on free throws, netting five for a 100 per cent showing.

Praising his winning combination, Auburn's Coach Joel Eaves said the night's work was the best shooting the team has done in two years. The squad hit 45 per cent of its field goal attempts.

Auburn jumped into the lead at the start, and showed Tulane its heels all the way to the finish. The struggling visitors closed the margin to 34-33 with 17 minutes gone in the first half, then fell back again.

Tulane's Don Holt, six-foot seven-inch center, hooked in eight field goals. He led the Green Wave scoring with 24 points.

The Tiger uprising gave Auburn a conference standing of four wins and five losses.

Jockey Craig brought two other winners across the finish line, Halcyon Blue in the fourth and Silverware in the ninth.

Ohio State Expecting To Name Coach Feb. 12

Columbus O., Feb. 3—(AP)—Ohio State University neared the end of its string of candidates today in its search for a new head football coach.

Final selection of Wesley E. Fesler's successor is due Feb. 12.

Wayne Woodrow (Woody) Hayes, highly-successful mentor of Miami (O.) University's Redskins, spent several hours with the "screening committee" today, the seventh candidate to go on the witness stand. Only Sid Gillman of Cincinnati University, who did not apply for the job but who is coming up for a chat next Saturday, remains on the interview list.

Those already interviewed include Paul Brown, coach of the Cleveland pro team, and Harry Strobel, O.S.U. frosh coach.

In the last 12 years the team that won the National Hockey League championship has gone on to win the Stanley Cup seven times.

Double Main Event Tops Kallio's Tuesday Mat Card

ESTES BATTLES MOBLEY, CURTIS FACES STEDDUM

John Fulton, Well Known Athletic Trainer, Will Referee Match

A double main event show, featuring the talents of Balk Estes, Rex Mobley "Wild Bill" Steddum, and George Curtis has been scheduled by Promoter Gus Kallio for his regular Tuesday night wrestling program here.

Estes and Mobley, both former holders of the world's light heavyweight crown, will mix it up in one scramble while Steddum, the sly Texan, and Curtis, younger brother of Champion Jack Curtis, clash in the other half of the twin bill.

Estes, of Elk City, Okla., had been billed for his first appearance in months here last week, but was snowbound at Memphis, Tenn., Monday night, and Kallio succeeded in obtaining Mobley in time to meet Paddy Mack in Estes place last Tuesday night.

A nationally known trainer will be here to serve as referee for at least one of the matched, probably the night's final.

Kallio announced last night that John Fulton Charleston, W. Va., is presently located at Hot Springs Ark., and has agreed to come here Tuesday. Fulton was trainer for Jim Londos, world's heavyweight wrestler, in 1925; he was boxer Jack Dempsey's trainer in 1927, and in 1928 he was trainer for Kallio when the Monroe promoter was taking full command as king of the world's middleweight wrestlers, preparing Kallio for his important Chicago battle with Charley "Midget" Fischer.

The wrestling show opens at 8 o'clock, and each match will have a time limit of an hour and 15 minutes with two falls to win.

Texas Ags Shade Arkansas Cagers

College Station, Tex., Feb. 3—(AP)—A tip in shot by big Walt Davis with three seconds to play gave Texas A. and M. a 34-33 victory over Arkansas tonight and a share of first place in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

The Aggies are deadlocked with Texas, 53-43 victor over Texas Christian tonight.

Texas A. and M. came from behind to win in the see-saw battle that saw Arkansas' gangling Razorbacks hold a slight margin most of the way.

Arkansas led at the half, 21-20.

A free throw by Gene Lambert with 15 seconds to play broke a 32-32 deadlock and put Arkansas ahead. But with the game practically over Davis twisted up to sink a rebound shot and clinch the game.

The big Aggie center was almost the whole show for the ball control minded Aggies. He netted 13 points and held Bob Ambler and seven-foot Billy Hester to a combined total of 12 points.

D. L. Miller was high scorer for Arkansas with 11 points.

Dropo Ready For Second Campaign With Red Hose

Boston, Feb 3.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox tonight announced First Baseman Walt Dropo, the American League's outstanding 1950 rookie, had signed for the 1951 season.

Dropo, from Moosup, Conn., banged out 180 hits, including 34 homers, and drove in 144 runs during his spectacular season as a rookie.

Ted Narleski, UCLA's 162-pound tailback, comes from Collingswood, N. J.

Southern Methodists Sock Weary Tulsa Quint, 64-54

Dallas, Feb. 3. —(AP)— Southern Methodist finally met a basketball team that's no bigger than it is and the Mustangs beat Tulsa, 64-54, tonight.

The tight Methodist defense kept Tulsa in hand throughout the first half with S. M. U. holding a 33-22 lead at the intermission.

A crowd of 2,000 watched S. M. U. beat the travel-weary Tulsa team, which was playing its fifth game in eight nights, losing all of them.

Jack Brown S. M. U., was the game's top scorer with 15 points. Whitey Holm and Darrell Murphy of S. M. U. each had 14. Glenn Dille, the only tall man on the Tulsa team (he's 6 feet 7); Marquis Harrington, peppery forward, and Warren Shackelford, a guard, each got nine for Tulsa.

No complimentary tickets are issued to teams visiting the University of Wyoming. A limited number of reserved seats are held for them.

ALABAMA SINKS BAYOU BENGALS

L. S. U. Swamped In Last Eleven Minutes Of Game, 94 To 67

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Feb. 3—(AP)—Alabama blitzed Louisiana State with a tremendous second - half scoring surge in a Southeastern Conference basketball game tonight, 94-67.

The Tide quintet walloped in 56 points in the second period after leading the Bengals 38 to 30 at the rest period.

The winning total established a new Alabama scoring record. Paul Sullivan, tall Bama center, also broke the individual team scoring mark with 27 points.

Alabama, led by its free-wheeling jump man, broke loose only after L.S.U. fought briefly into the lead with seven minutes of the second stanza gone.

Boggess sank a free throw to put the Tigers out front for the last time 56-55. Then Alabama began its rampage, scoring 40 points in the last 11 minutes.

Joe Dean led L.S.U. efforts with 17 points, most of them in the first half.

Yellow Jackets Storm Through Vols, 71 To 57

Knoxville Tenn., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets grabbed an early lead and held it tonight to defeat Tennessee's Volunteers in a Southeastern Conference basketball game, 71-57.

A terrific scoring drive led by Tech's Forward Pete Silas and Guard Melvin Dold in the last four minutes of the first half stretched a six-point lead to 16 points at the intermission.

A Tennessee drive early in the second half failed to make up the difference, and the Volunteers never seriously threatened again.

Silas took individual scoring honors for the game by dropping in 10 field goals and two charity shots for 22 points. Tennessee's Guard Bob Garrison trailed him by only one point, however.

The player is Tommy Upton, shortstop who batted .237 last year. He is the fourteenth Brownie to sign a 1951 contract.

MANGRUM GRABS LEAD AT TUCSON

Two Newcomers, Watson And Max Evans, One Stroke Off Pace

Tuscon, Ariz., Feb. 3 —(AP)— Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago birdied the 18th hole today to take a one-stroke lead at the end of the third round of the $10,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament. He had a 54-hole score of 200, ten under par.

Bob Watson of White Plains N.Y., and Max Evans of Detroit, Mich., two newcomers to the tourney trail who refused to crack under pressure, were only one stroke behind with totals of 201. Neither has ever won a professional tournament.

Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N.Y., who had led the first round and was in a first place tie starting out today, and Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N.Y., ran into rouble but salvaged par 70 scores for totals of 202.

Within easy striking distance of the leaders were Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., John Bulla, Verona, Pa., and Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich., with totals of 203.

Mangrum forged to the front on the final three holes. Shooting a 67 he had three-putted the 14th green to go one over par on the hole and trailed Kroll for the tourney lead by one stroke. On the 15th Kroll missed a 14-inch putt and went over par. Mangrum blasted out of a trap and took a par three.

The two men were all even coming into the 513-yard 18th. Mangrum's second shot hit the green and stopped within three feet of the pin. He missed an eagle three by less than two inches but got the birdie. Kroll three-putted and went a stroke over par.

Mangrum's previous rounds were 68 and 65.

Watson and Evans each put together three of the best rounds of their careers to get their totals of 201. Watson has been a pro only a year and a half. He has finished in the money once while playing the winter circuit. He was in no trouble at all today, and carded a 66. Evans went over par on the 16th but still finsihed two under regulation figures with a 68. His tourney record to date includes eighth place in the St. Petersburg Open last year.

Turnesa, one of the famous golfing brothers, blew the lead on the last nine today. He turned one under par but missed a putt by two inches on the 10th. He finished with 70.

Kroll, who started the third round in a three-way tie for the lead with Turnesa and Bulla, also got into trouble on the second nine after making the turn in 33, two under par. He missed a short putt for par on the 18th, and wound up with a 70. Kroll's best performance to date was when he finished second in the Canadian Open last summer.

Bulla had said all along that he was going to win this tournament. He slipped badly today with a one-over-par 71. Faulty approaches and putts that wouldn't go in the cup cost him five strokes.

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco eagled the 18th to finish with a 65, the best score of the day. His total of 206 put him in a two-way tie for 12th position. Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., winner of last week's Phoenix Open, is showing the steadiest improvement. He had a first round score of 70, a 68 on the second day and 66 today.

Leaders after today's 18-hole third round:

Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, 68-65-67—200.

Bob Watson, White Plains, N. Y., 65-70-66—201.

Max Evans Detroit, Mich., 67-66-68—201.

By Harry Grayson

New York. —(NEA)— Dick Savitt was on the American Davis Cup team scrubs last summer.

Ted Schroeder and Tom Brown used the tall, dark, handsome and curly-haired Cornell graduate for batting practice.

But it's a different story now. Savitt's smashing performance in the Australian Singles Championship gives United States Davis Cup hopes a tremendous lift just when that is most needed.

One swallow maketh not summer, as someone once wrote. Much can happen between now and December, when the challenge round is to be next played Down Under, but right now Savitt is the new Mr. Big of American amateur tennis. That goes physically, too, for he stands six feet three and weighs 181½ pounds.

He beat the young men who have to be defeated if the trophy is to be returned to this country —Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor—made it unanimous as he went along by also rubbing out the veteran two-handed doubles dealer, John Bromwich.

U. S. brass were startled. Walter L. Pate is typical.

"Savitt must have improved tremendously," says the long-time non-playing captain of the American side.

"I regarded him as promising, but doubted that he would ever be outstanding. He was too methodical, the pace was always the same.

"He had fine ground strokes. He played a hard-driving game and came in, but the only way he seemed to know was to battle his way through and win by sheer power. He lacked finesse and a change of pace.

"He must have acquired finesse and a change-up while touring Australia with Art Larsen, for I cannot imagine anyone outpowering Sedgman."

Savitt, quiet, unassuming and 23 has had his eyes on the position he now holds for a long time, for he quit a promising basketball career at Ithaca at the start of his sophomore season to concentrate on tennis, after playing well in high school and as a freshman.

A knee and wrist injury prompted him to do this. Nothing was going to interfere with his tennis.

A resident of Orange, N. J., who went to high school in El Paso because his mother's health took her there, Savitt was bitterly disappointed at never having won the National Intercollegiate. He was leading Tulane's Jack Tuero, who went on to win in 1948, in the second when he had to retire because of sunstroke.

He went to the semi-finals of the national singles last summer, only to be eliminated by Herbie Flam.

Retarding Savitt somewhat no doubt was the lack of athletic speed. He had to improve it and has, is now of good speed afoot, although anything but cat-like.

As a collegian, he demonstrated his scrap building a reputation for coming from behind, pulling out important big matches when two sets to the bad.

Dick Savitt's phenomenal performance came as a distinct surprise to U. S. Lawn Tennis Association and American Cup bigwigs, as well as to Messrs. Sedgman, McGregor and Bromwich.

To one side, the surprise was highly pleasing, to the other shocking.

The Australians no doubt are still asking where this character came from.

They'd never heard of the bloke.

Princeton Swimmer Beats Record For Breast Stroke

Annapolis Md., Feb. 3—(AP)—Bob Brawner, 21-year-old Princeton swimmer from San Mateo, Calif., today bettered the world's record for the 200-yard breast stroke in the Naval Academy pool.

Brawner swam the course in two minutes 16:6 seconds. The recognized record was two minutes 19.8 seconds set by another Princeton swimmer, Dick Hough, in 1939.

Tiger, Lion Cagers Meet Again Tomorrow

The Neville High School Tigers and the Ouachita Parish High School Lions make their last scheduled basketball appearance against each other in a double header here tomorrow night in the Ouachita gymnasium. Both boys' and girls' teams are scheduled to play with the rival sextets taking the floor first at 7 O'clock.

The Neville girls will be after the first win over their hometown contenders, while Coach Lawrence Willey's Bengal quintet will be seeking to prove that the 67 to 53 upset of the Lions a little over a week ago shouldn't have been so surprising after all.

In two double headers last season the Ouachita basketeers claimed all games. In their first scheduled meeting this year, the Ouachita girls won, 54, to 25, while Tigers scored their first win over the Lion quint. Earlier this season, however, the O.P.H.S. quintet, meeting the Tigers in the finals of the Neville Invitational Tournament, socked the Willey outfit, 67 to 52. Then Neville just about reversed the score in their January 26 scheduled meeting on the Neville floor.

The rival outfits have been inactive the past week, postponing games because of the worst blast of wintry weather to hit this section during the twentieth century.

The Ouachita boys will enter their contest with a record of only three defeats in 18 games while Neville's quintet has won just five while losing eight.

Ouachita's Bob Carter, leading Class AA scorer with a total of 298 points, is practically certain to top the 300-mark against the Tigers. Harold Davis, Ouachita, has been gaining considerable ground of Carter's lead in recent games and sports a total of 227.

Joe Messina and Harold Bassett head the scoring parade in the camp of the Bengals with 146 and 122 points respectively. Neville's scoring has been fairly well spread through other members of the team.

Kenneth Bates, ailing Ouachita center who was out of action when the Lions dropped their first two games after running up a string of 13 consecutive wins, and who saw only limited action in the defeat by Neville, is expected to get into more action tomorrow, and Bates' return to form could go a long way toward putting the Lions back on the track with important Class AA conference games coming up with Byrd and Fair Park, both of Shreveport, as well as tomorrow's Tiger scrap.

Ouachita repays a visit to the Ruston Bearcats Tuesday night, and then both Neville and Ouachita basketeers will participate in the weekend Northeast Louisiana State College Invitational Tournament here.

It will be St. Valentine's Day before Ouachita gets another crack at Fair Park, only conference rival to beat Coach Herbert Holliman's boys. The Fair Park contest will be played here. Two days later, February 16, the Lions will go to Shreveport to face Byrd, and Byrd has yet to be rescheduled for the game postponed here from last Friday night.

Neville also postponed a meeting with Lake Providence Friday night, and a new date for the meeting hasn't been worked into the Tiger schedule.

Probable starting lineups for tomorrow's games:

Girls

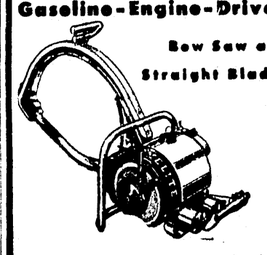

Neville: Frances Campbell, Mary Lou Kern, and Patsy Sellers, forwards, and J. Strauss, K. Guerriero and Noel, guards.

Ouachita: Alice George, Dumas and Donald, forwards, and Hughes Norell and Phillips, guards.

Boys

Neville: Ronnie Weller and Charles Calhoun, forwards; Bassett, center, and Messina and Donald Stewart, guards.

Ouachita: Carter and Davis, forwards; Bates or Lionel Crowell, center; and Bennett and Page, guards.

AL MAZUR SIGNS FOR 2ND SEASON AS LOCAL PILOT

Rebuilding Of Club Only Major Task Yet Facing Cotton States Entry

The Monroe Sports, their 1951 schedule complete and Manager Al Mazur rehired for his sophomore year as a baseball skipper, are now pointing toward rebuilding their second-place Cotton States League club for the campaign due to open April 17.

The schedule was adopted at a meeting of league directors with President Al Haraway at Greenville, Miss., last Sunday, and Mazur signed his 1951 contract with Club President Bonneau Peters, also owner of the Shreveport Sports of the Texas League, in Shreveport during the past week.

The national emergency is due to take its toll of younger members of the Monroe club, but Business Manager Paul Manasseh has already been busy with Peters and Mazur lining up new talent for the season. In addition, Manasseh got in some good work at Legion Memorial Stadium here (before the big freeze—weather that is) where the infield has been built up a good six inches and resodded, and the outfield has undergone similar improving treatment.

The Sports, as previously announced, will open the season at home with the Natchez Indians with a pair of games on April 17 and 18. They switch to Natchez for "second openers" April 19 and 20. Then the Sports return for a five game series, meeting Clarksdale in three games April 21-22-23 and Greenwood in two, April 23-24 before hitting the road eight games, three in Greenwood, three (including a Sunday double header) at Clarksdale and two at Natchez.

The order in which the rival clubs will be presented to Twin City fans and the number of games in the initial series here will be Natchez, two; Clarksdale, three; Greenwood, two; Pine Bluff, three; Hot Springs, two; El Dorado, two; and Greenville, two.

Only three home series will go as long as six games. The Sports' schedule includes five home stands of five games each, four of four games, one of three, and four of two.

The schedule, drawn up to close August 31, includes four double headers for the Sports, one each here with Clarksdale and Greenville, and two on the road at Clarksdale and Pine Bluff.

The Men of Mazur will be playing in their own park on ten Sunday dates. The July the Fourth game, played here with Natchez last year, will be played at the Mississippi city this summer.

Because the schedule has been worked toward an earlier closing date this season, there is no scheduled Labor Day game, although a playoff possibility could give Monroe such a holiday show.

Natchez comes to Monroe five times for two games each trip. All other clubs visit Monroe four times for two three-game and two two-game stands except Greenville which makes its four appearances here in a single four-game series and three of two games each.

AUBURN BLASTS GREENIES, 92-71

Plainsmen Lead All Way As George Hill Sets Fast Pace

Auburn, Ala., Feb. 3. — (AP) — Auburn's sharpshooting cagers routed Tulane in a Southeastern Conference basketball contest tonight, 92 to 71.

The Tigers' George Hill was the star of the battle, coming out of a three-game slump to pile up the top scoring total of 29 points.

Where he hit only one field goal out of 23 tries in three previous tilts, he sank 12 out of 17 from all over the court against the Greenies. He showed his usual deadly accuracy on free throws, netting five for a 100 per cent showing.

Praising his winning combination, Auburn's Coach Joel Eaves said the night's work was the best shooting the team has done in two years. The squad hit 45 per cent of its field goal attempts.

Auburn jumped into the lead at the start, and showed Tulane its heels all the way to the finish. The struggling visitors closed the margin to 34-33 with 17 minutes gone in the first half, then fell back again.

Tulane's Don Holt, six-foot seven-inch center, hooked in eight field goals. He led the Green Wave scoring with 24 points.

The Tiger uprising gave Auburn a conference standing of four wins and five losses.

Jockey Craig brought two other winners across the finish line, Halcyon Blue in the fourth and Silverware in the ninth.

The daily double combination of Blue Gem and Fiver paid $255.30. The 2,040 fans paid $115,825 through the mutuel windows.

In the last 12 years the team that won the National Hockey League championship has gone on to win the Stanley Cup seven times.

Double Main Event Tops Kallio's Tuesday Mat Card

John Fulton, Well Known Athletic Trainer, Will Referee Match

A double main event show, featuring the talents of Balk Estes, Rex Mobley "Wild Bill" Steddum, and George Curtis has been scheduled by Promoter Gus Kallio for his regular Tuesday night wrestling program here.

Estes and Mobley, both former holders of the world's light heavyweight crown, will mix it up in one scramble while Steddum, the sly Texan and Curtis, younger brother of Champion Jack Curtis, clash in the other half of the twin bill.

Estes, of Elk City, Okla., had been billed for his first appearance in months here last week, but was snowbound at Memphis, Tenn., Monday night, and Kallio succeeded in obtaining Mobley in time to meet Paddy Mack in Estes place last Tuesday night.

A nationally known trainer will be here to serve as referee for at least one of the matched, probably the night's final.

Kallio announced last night that John Fulton Charleston, W. Va., is presently located at Hot Springs Ark., and has agreed to come here Tuesday. Fulton was trainer for Jim Londos, world's heavyweight wrestler, in 1925; he was boxer Jack Dempsey's trainer in 1927, and in 1928 he was trainer for Kallio when the Monroe promoter was taking full command as king of the world's middleweight wrestlers preparing Kallio for his important Chicago battle with Charley "Midget" Fischer.

The wrestling show opens at 8 o'clock, and each match will have a time limit of an hour and 15 minutes with two falls to win.

Texas Ags Shade Arkansas Cagers

College Station, Tex., Feb. 3—(AP)—A tip in shot by big Walt Davis with three seconds to play gave Texas A. and M. a 34-33 victory over Arkansas tonight and a share of first place in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

The Aggies are deadlocked with Texas, 53-43 victor over Texas Christian tonight.

Texas A. and M. came from behind to win in the see-saw battle that saw Arkansas' gangling Razorbacks hold a slight margin most of the way.

Arkansas led at the half, 21-20.

A free throw by Gene Lambert with 15 seconds to play broke a 32-32 deadlock and put Arkansas ahead. But with the game practically over Davis twisted up to sink a rebound shot and clinch the game.

The big Aggie center was almost the whole show for the ball control minded Aggies. He netted 13 points and held Bob Ambler and seven-foot Billy Hester to a combined total of 12 points.

D. L. Miller was high scorer for Arkansas with 11 points.

Dropo Ready For Second Campaign With Red Hose

Boston, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox tonight announced First Baseman Walt Dropo, the American League's outstanding 1950 rookie, had signed for the 1951 season.

Dropo, from Moosup, Conn., banged out 180 hits, including 34 homers, and drove in 144 runs during his spectacular season as a rookie.

Ted Narleski, UCLA's 162-pound tailback, comes from Collingswood, N. J.

Southern Methodists Sock Weary Tulsa Quint, 64-54

Dallas, Feb. 3. —(AP)— Southern Methodist finally met a basketball team that's no bigger than it is and the Mustangs beat Tulsa, 64-54, tonight.

The tight Methodist defense kept Tulsa in hand throughout the first half with S. M. U. holding a 33-22 ead at the intermission.

A crowd of 2,000 watched S. M. U. beat the travel-weary Tulsa team, which was playing its fifth game in eight nights, losing all of them.

Jack Brown S. M. U., was the game's top scorer with 15 points. Whitey Holm and Darrell Murphy of S. M. U. each had 14. Glenn Dille, the only tall man on the Tulsa team (he's 6 feet 7); Marquis Harrington, peppery forward, and Warren Shackelford, a guard, each got nine for Tulsa.

No complimentary tickets are issued to teams visiting the University of Wyoming. A limited number of reserved seats are held for them.

ALABAMA SINKS BAYOU BENGALS

L. S. U. Swamped In Last Eleven Minutes Of Game, 94 To 67

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Feb. 3—(AP)— Alabama blitzed Louisiana State with a tremendous second - half scoring surge in a Southeastern Conference basketball game tonight, 94-67.

The Tide quintet walloped in 56 points in the second period after leading the Bengals 38 to 30 at the rest period.

The winning total established a new Alabama scoring record. Paul Sullivan, tall Bama center, also broke the individual team scoring mark with 27 points.

Alabama, led by its free-wheeling jump man, broke loose only after L.S.U. fought briefly into the lead with seven minutes of the second stanza gone.

Boggess sank a free throw to put the Tigers out front for the last time 56-55. Then Alabama began its rampage, scoring 40 points in the last 11 minutes.

Joe Dean led L.S.U. efforts with 17 points, most of them in the first half.

Yellow Jackets Storm Through Vols, 71 To 57

Knoxville Tenn., Feb. 3.—(AP)— Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets grabbed an early lead and held it tonight to defeat Tennessee's Volunteers in a Southeastern Conference basketball game, 71-57.

A terrific scoring drive led by Tech's Forward Pete Silas and Guard Melvin Dold in the last four minutes of the first half stretched a six-point lead to 16 points at the intermission.

A Tennessee drive early in the second half failed to make up the difference, and the Volunteers never seriously threatened again.

Silas took individual scoring honors for the game by dropping in 10 field goals and two charity shots for 22 points. Tennessee's Guard Bob Garrison trailed him by only one point, however.

MANGRUM GRABS LEAD AT TUCSON

Two Newcomers, Watson And Max Evans, One Stroke Off Pace

Tuscon, Ariz., Feb. 3 —(AP)— Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago birdied the 18th hole today to take a one-stroke lead at the end of the third round of the $10,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament. He had a 54-hole score of 200, ten under par.

Bob Watson of White Plains N.Y., and Max Evans of Detroit, Mich., two newcomers to the tourney trail who refused to crack under pressure, were only one stroke behind with totals of 201. Neither has ever won a professional tournament.

Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N.Y., who had led the first round and was in a first place tie starting out today, and Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N.Y., ran into rouble but salvaged par 70 scores for totals of 202.

Within easy striking distance of the leaders were Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., John Bulla, Verona, Pa., and Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich., with totals of 203.

Mangrum forged to the front on the final three holes. Shooting a 67 he had three-putted the 14th green to go one over par on the hole and trailed Kroll for the tourney lead by one stroke. On the 15th Kroll missed a 14-inch putt and went over par. Mangrum blasted out of a trap and took a par three.

The two men were all even coming into the 513-yard 18th. Mangrum's second shot hit the green and stopped within three feet of the pin. He missed an eagle three by less than two inches but got the birdie. Kroll three-putted and went a stroke over par.

Mangrum's previous rounds were 68 and 65.

Watson and Evans each put together three of the best rounds of their careers to get their totals of 201. Watson has been a pro only a year and a half. He has finished in the money once while playing the winter circuit. He was in no trouble at all today, and carded a 66. Evans went over par on the 16th but still finsihed two under regulation figures with a 68. His tourney record to date includes eighth place in the St. Petersburg Open last year.

Turnesa, one of the famous golfing brothers, blew the lead on the last nine today. He turned one under par but missed a putt by two inches on the 10th. He finished with 70.

Kroll, who started the third round in a three-way tie for the lead with Turnesa and Bulla, also got into trouble on the second nine after making the turn in 33 two under par. He missed a short putt for par on the 18th, and wound up with a 70. Kroll's best performance to date was when he finished second in the Canadian Open last summer.

Bulla had said all along that he was going to win this tournament. He slipped badly today with a one-over-par 71. Faulty approaches and putts that wouldn't go in the cup cost him five strokes.

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco eagled the 18th to finish with a 65, the best score of the day. His total of 206 put him in a two-way tie for 12th position. Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., winner of last week's Phoenix Open, is showing the steadiest improvement. He had a first round score of 70, a 68 on the second day and 66 today.

Leaders after today's 18-hole third round:

Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, 68-65-67—200.

Bob Watson, White Plains, N. Y., 65-70-66—201.

Max Evans Detroit, Mich., 67-66-68—201.

By Harry Grayson

New York. —(NEA)— Dick Savitt was on the American Davis Cup team scrubs last summer.

Ted Schroeder and Tom Brown used the tall, dark, handsome and curly-haired Cornell graduate for batting practice.

But it's a different story now. Savitt's smashing performance in the Australian Singles Championship gives United States Davis Cup hopes a tremendous lift just when that is most needed.

One swallow maketh not summer, as someone once wrote. Much can happen between now and December, when the challenge round is to be next played Down Under, but right now Savitt is the new Mr. Big of American amateur tennis. That goes physically, too, for he stands six feet three and weighs 181½ pounds.

He beat the young men who have to be defeated if the trophy is to be returned to this country —Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor—made it unanimous as he went along by also rubbing out the veteran two-handed doubles dealer, John Bromwich.

U. S. brass were startled. Walter L. Pate is typical.

"Savitt must have improved tremendously," says the long-time non-playing captain of the American side.

"I regarded him as promising, but doubted that he would ever be outstanding. He was too methodical, the pace was always the same.

"He had fine ground strokes. He played a hard-driving game and came in, but the only way he seemed to know was to battle his way through and win by sheer power. He lacked finesse and a change of pace.

"He must have acquired finesse and a change-up while touring Australia with Art Larsen, for I cannot imagine anyone outpowering Sedgman."

Savitt, quiet, unassuming and 23 has had his eyes on the position he now holds for a long time, for he quit a promising basketball career at Ithaca at the start of his sophomore season to concentrate on tennis, after playing well in high school and as a freshman.

A knee and wrist injury prompted him to do this. Nothing was going to interfere with his tennis.

A resident of Orange, N. J., who went to high school in El Paso because his mother's health took her there, Savitt was bitterly disappointed at never having won the National Intercollegiate. He was leading Tulane's Jack Tuero, who went on to win in 1948, in the second when he had to retire because of sunstroke.

He went to the semi-finals of the national singles last summer, only to be eliminated by Herbie Flam.

Retarding Savitt somewhat no doubt was the lack of athletic speed. He had to improve it and has, is now of good speed afoot, although anything but cat-like.

As a collegian, he demonstrated his scrap building a reputation for coming from behind, pulling out important big matches when two sets to the bad.

Dick Savitt's phenomenal performance came as a distinct surprise to U. S. Lawn Tennis Association and American Cup bigwigs, as well as to Messrs. Sedgman, McGregor and Bromwich.

To one side, the surprise was highly pleasing, to the other shocking.

The Australians no doubt are still asking where this character came from.

They'd never heard of the bloke.

Princeton Swimmer Beats Record For Breast Stroke

Annapolis Md., Feb. 3—(AP)—Bob Brawner, 21-year-old Princeton swimmer from San Mateo, Calif., today bettered the world's record for the 200-yard breast stroke in the Naval Academy pool.

Brawner swam the course in two minutes 16.6 seconds. The recognized record was two minutes 19.8 seconds set by another Princeton swimmer, Dick Hough, in 1939.

Tiger, Lion Cagers Meet Again Tomorrow

The Neville High School Tigers and the Ouachita Parish High School Lions make their last scheduled basketball appearance against each other in a double header here tomorrow night in the Ouachita gymnasium. Both boys' and girls' teams are scheduled to play with the rival sextets taking the floor first at 7 O'clock.

The Neville girls will be after the first win over their hometown contenders, while Coach Lawrence Willey's Bengal quintet will be seeking to prove that the 67 to 53 upset of the Lions a little over a week ago shouldn't have been so surprising after all.

In two double headers last season the Ouachita basketeers claimed all games. In their first scheduled meeting this year, the Ouachita girls won, 54, to 25, while Tigers scored their first win over the Lion quint. Earlier this season, however, the O.P.H.S. quintet, meeting the Tigers in the finals of the Neville Invitational Tournament, socked the Willey outfit, 67 to 52. Then Neville just about reversed the score in their January 26 scheduled meeting on the Neville floor.

The rival outfits have been inactive the past week, postponing games because of the worst blast of wintry weather to hit this section during the twentieth century.

The Ouachita boys will enter their contest with a record of only three defeats in 18 games while Neville's quintet has won just five while losing eight.

Ouachita's Bob Carter, leading Class AA scorer with a total of 298 points, is practically certain to top the 300-mark against the Tigers. Harold Davis, Ouachita, has been gaining considerable ground of Carter's lead in recent games and sports a total of 227.

Joe Messina and Harold Bassett head the scoring parade in the camp of the Bengals with 146 and 122 points respectively. Neville's scoring has been fairly well spread through other members of the team.

Kenneth Bates, ailing Ouachita center who was out of action when the Lions dropped their first two games after running up a string of 13 consecutive wins, and who saw only limited action in the defeat by Neville, is expected to get into more action tomorrow, and Bates' return to form could go a long way toward putting the Lions back on the track with important Class AA conference games coming up with Byrd and Fair Park, both of Shreveport, as well as tomorrow's Tiger scrap.

Ouachita repays a visit to the Ruston Bearcats Tuesday night, and then both Neville and Ouachita basketeers will participate in the weekend Northeast Louisiana State College Invitational Tournament here.

It will be St. Valentine's Day before Ouachita gets another crack at Fair Park, only conference rival to beat Coach Herbert Holliman's boys. The Fair Park contest will be played here. Two days later, February 16, the Lions will go to Shreveport to face Byrd, and Byrd has yet to be rescheduled for the game postponed here from last Friday night.

Neville also postponed a meeting with Lake Providence Friday night, and a new date for the meeting hasn't been worked into the Tiger schedule.

Probable starting lineups for tomorrow's games:

Girls

Neville: Frances Campbell, Mary Lou Kern, and Patsy Sellers, forwards, and J. Strauss, K. Guerriero and Noel, guards.

Ouachita: Alice George, Dumas and Donald, forwards, and Hughes Norell and Phillips, guards.

Boys

Neville: Ronnie Weller and Charles Calhoun, forwards; Bassett, center, and Messina and Donald Stewart, guards.

Ouachita: Carter and Davis, forwards; Bates or Lionel Crowell, center; and Bennett and Page, guards.

NORTHEAST TOURNAMENT PLANS COMPLETE

46 TEAMS READY FOR 13TH ANNUAL WEEKEND EVENT

Officials Named, Complete Pairings Made Three-day Show

Northeast Louisiana State College has completed all plans for its thirteenth annual invitational high school basketball tournament for boys and girls, beginning here Thursday night and running through Saturday. Final complete pairings and the list of tournament officials were announced yesterday.

Of course the weather conditions and icy roads of the past week that knocked out other scheduled tournaments and sporting events over this area are being counted on to improve during the next few days to permit promotion of the Northeast Invitational as planned.

Forty-six teams are entered in the meet that includes three divisions for boys and a single girls' tourney. Twenty girls' teams will participate, and 26 boys' teams are due to be on hand for two divisions of nine teams each and one of eight teams. The division of the boys into three events still makes it possible for a full scale operation without violation of state high school regulations limiting twelve teams to an invitational event for boys.

Under the setup this year three championship trophies will be awarded boys teams.

Competing in the girls' division will be Rayville, Kelly Mer Rouge, Calhoun, Holly Ridge, St. Paschal's of West Monroe, Collinston, Columbia, Ouachita of Monroe, Quitman, Ogden, St. Matthew's of Monroe, Joseph M. Davidson of St. Joseph, Bastrop, Oakaloosa, Chatham, Start, Neville of Monroe, Eros, and Baskin.

T. I., Kelley, Ogden, and Bastrop.

A. S. Huffman, physical director at Northeast and in charge of the boys' games, announced game officials as M. T. Cheeves, Natchitoches; Clyde Stallcup, Shreveport recreation director; Harold Parks, Bienville parish coach; Woody Boyles, Jim Malone, Ed Whatley, Elton Upshaw, B. S. Hammer and W. C. Honeycutt, faculty assistants of Northeast; and Doyle Craighead, Lamar Smith, Glen Gossett, El Plonsky, Greg LeBlanc, Johnny Goodwin, Robert Cole, Wayne Corkran, Kenneth Greer, "Buster" Crowley, Jason Johnson, and Oma Fleming.

Nationally rated officials will handle the girls' games, Miss Ada Bess Hart, women's physical director at Northeast, said. These include Mary Lea George, girls' educational director at Ouachita Parish High School, and Mrs. Colene Hart Mann, member of the Ouachita faculty and secretary of the northeast Louisiana rating board. Assisting Miss George and Mrs. Hart as umpires will be Billy Pierce, Billy Danley, Carrice Lindsey and Annette Vining. Other officials will be members of the women's Recreation Association at Northeast.

The complete pairings and starting times will be as follows:

Wildlife Group Meets Tuesday

The Ouachita unit of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation, which postponed a scheduled meeting here last Tuesday night, will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the ballroom of Hotel Virginia with the same program, including new additions, on tap.

Clyde Nash, unit president, yesterday said the meeting of the past week had been called off because of the adversed weather conditions, but that "regardless of the weather" the group will meet Tuesday night.

In addition to the showing of a color film of big game hunting in Alaska by Homer Houston, and the routine business of naming various committee chairmen, that reports will be made on such proposed projects as a Ouachita parish game preserve, duck refuge, and a "gate" to aid return of fish into Bayou DeSiard.

STANFORD PICKS 'CHUCK' TAYLOR

Assistant Forty-Niner Mentor Becomes New Indian Grid Coach

Palo Alto, Calif., Feb. 3 —(AP)— Stanford University today reached into the professional ranks and picked Charles A. "Chuck" Taylor as head football coach.

Taylor, Stanford alumnus and for the past year line coach of the San Francisco 49'ers, had been favored as the likely choice.

Only 31, Taylor is one of the youngest men ever to take over as head football mentor at a major university.

His appointment to the post was announced this morning by the Stanford athletic board.

From the beginning of the search for a new coach, begun five weeks ago following the resignation of Marchie Schwartz, Taylor was rated a prime contender.

Taylor, a red-haired, square-jawed gent, earned All-America rank as a guard on Stanford's 1942 squad. He made All-Pacific Coast teams three years running.

Taylor was graduated in 1943. He spent three years in the navy and, after his discharge as a lieutenant J.G., played a year of pro ball for the now defunct Miami Seahawks in the old All-America Conference.

In 1947 Taylor returned to Stanford as head freshman coach. He amassed an impressive record of three consecutive undefeated frosh teams. He was director of intramural athletics and rugby coach before he left the Palo Alto campus to join the 49ers.

Stanford Athletic Director Al Masters said the school "canvassed the field very carefully and arrived at the unanimous decision that Chuck is the best man....for the position."

"I feel that Chuck is a players' coach," said Masters, "and will do a splendid job for us."

University President Wallace Sterling said he was "pleased" at the appointment and would submit it to the Stanford board of trustees for approval, which was understood to be only a formality.

Marchie Schwartz said he thought Taylor an "excellent choice."

"I believe Chuck will do a very wonderful job," he said. Schwartz, head coach since 1942, passed up a five-year contract offer and announced his resignation Dec. 30 last year.

Taylor lives in nearby Menlo Park with his wife Margaret and their two children, Susan, 2, and Douglas, 7 months.

Terms of Taylor's contract were not announced.

Committee Sifts Choices For Ozar

New York, Feb. 3. —(AP)—The committee named to "screen" candidates for the job of commissioner of baseball will meet tomorrow to "sift" the list of names on file, Lou Perini, president of the Boston Braves announced tonight.

Indicating that the committee of which he is a member, probably will have nothing definite to report, Perini said that "we're meeting to see if we are going about the matter in the same way."

Earlier, he said that a successor to A. B. Chandler, the incumbent commissioner, probably will not be named until Chandler's contract, calling for $65,000 a year, expires in April, 1952.

"I have plenty of names, but no personal candidates," said Perini. "I was asked at our league meeting if I had any report to make, and I said no."

GREATEST PURSE TO GREAT CIRCLE

Claims Record Sum Of $144,325 From Rich Santa Anita Maturity

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 3. —(AP)— California - owned Great Circle won the world's richest horse race today in a surprise finish and collected the record sum of $144,325 out of a fantastic gross purse of $205,700.

The event was the fourth running of the Santa Anita Maturity, a fixture reserved for four-year-olds, and the windup of the mile and one quarter battle proved as thrilling as the tremendous money at stake.

Lotowhite raced second and Bed O'Roses, who with her stablemate, Next Move, was the heavy favorite in the betting, finished third.

Eleven four - year - olds went to the post in quest of this, the largest purse ever offered for a single thoroughbred race, and 52,500 fans the largest turnout of the season, thronged into Santa Anita Park to witness the event.

The winner races under the crimson silks of the Yolo stable of John De Blois Wack of Santa Barbara, Calif., and the triumphant jockey was Willie Shoemaker, co-riding champion of the nation in 1950.

The time for the hectic grind was 2.00 2-5 and the winner paid off in figures akin to the money awarded— $21.70, $11.70 and $3.70.

Lotowhite, owned by Thomas G. Benson of Skidmore, Tex., paid $9.90 and $3.70, and Bed O'Roses $2.20.

Great Circle closed with a rush after laying off the pace and rolled in to win the staggering purse by three quarters of a length over the suddenly threatening Lotowhite. A bare head behind was the pocketsize filly of the field, Bed O'Roses, the string of tiny pigtails adorning her mane flapping wildly in a belated move to get up first.

As expected, it was a battle all the way, but the windup was on the unexpected side.

Great Circle was bred at the Louis B. Mayer ranch at Perris, Calif., and foaled in Kentucky. UnderCalifornia racing rules, he is classed as a Kentucky bred.

Mayer, incidentally, pulled down $14,670 as the breeder of the winner.

Robinson Becomes 27th Dodger To Ink Contract

Brooklyn, Feb. 3. —(AP)— Jackie Robinson has signed his Brooklyn contract for a reported $35,000 salary, about the same money he got last year.

Lassoing of Robinson, league-leading second baseman and Dodger cleanup hitter, gave Brooklyn 27 signed players. Of the 13 unsigned only five are regulars—Gene Hermanski, Preacher Roe, Gil Hodges, Billy Cox and Carl Furillo. The others are Phil Haugstad, Clarence Podbielan, Billy Loes, Wayne Belardi, Tommy Brown, Eddie Miksis, Cal Abrams and Dom Thompson.

Door Is Opened To Frosh Again

Washington. Feb. 3.—(AP)—Freshmen will be eligible to play on Southern Conference varsity sports teams beginning next fall.

As an emergency measure, due to dwindling numbers of students because of the military draft and enlistments, the conference has voted to return to its World War II eligibility position.

The conference decision, announced here today by President Max Farrington, came after a mail vote among the 17 members. It is the first major conference to take such action.

Farrington, who also is athletic director at George Washington University here, announced this vote:

Eleven members favored eligibility for freshmen beginning next Sept. 1.

Five members favored eligibility for freshmen beginning next March 15.

One member opposed any eligibility for first year students.

The five voting for use of freshmen after March 15, Farrington said, saw a need for more manpower in sports this spring. Many colleges have reported losing large numbers of students through enlistments.

ANOTHER GROUP HITS AT BROWN

Auburn Alumni At FlorenceA Ala., Seek Removal Of Tiger Coach

Florence, Ala., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A group of Auburn alumni and supporters in this area today pressed a new attempt to dismiss Earl Brown as the school's head football coach.

A letter sent to Gov. Gordon Persons, who headed a recent unsuccessful attempt to remove Brown, said in part:

"Our strong conviction is that Coach Earl Brown should be relieved of his position at once and prompt steps should be taken to appoint in his stead an adequate and more capable successor.

"We are compelled to believe that three years is a sufficient period of time in which to prove one's self as a football coach. The record of incumbent Coach Brown is marked with a series of dismal failures on the football field.

"We most earnestly solicit your further and continuing efforts to secure the removal of Coach Brown . . . ."

The letter was signed by more than 70 alumni and supporters. In addition, copies were being circulated here for more signatures to be sent to the governor.

Persons announced shortly after taking office that he wanted to see Brown removed. He was voted down, however, at a closed meeting of alumni and school officials Jan. 19.

It was decided to permit Brown to finish out his contract, which expires in February, 1952. It was also decided that his staff be strengthened. Three assistant football coaches, John Williamson, Chuck Bernard and Ralph Slaten, resigned last Monday.

Since Brown came to Auburn in 1948, the team has won only three games, lost 22 and tied four. The Tigers lost every game last season for the worst football year in the school's history.

Indicating that the committee of which he is a member, probably will have nothing definite to report, Perini said that "we're meeting to see if we are going about the matter in the same way."

Earlier, he said that a successor to A. B. Chandler, the incumbent commissioner, probably will not be named until Chandler's contract, calling for $65,000 a year, expires in April, 1952.

"I have plenty of names, but no personal candidates," said Perini. "I was asked at our league meeting if I had any report to make, and I said no."

GREATEST PURSE TO GREAT CIRCLE

Claims Record Sum Of $144,325 From Rich Santa Anita Maturity

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 3. —(AP)— California - owned Great Circle won the world's richest horse race today in a surprise finish and collected the record sum of $144,325 out of a fantastic gross purse of $205,700.

The event was the fourth running of the Santa Anita Maturity, a fixture reserved for four-year-olds, and the windup of the mile and one quarter battle proved as thrilling as the tremendous money at stake.

Lotowhite raced second and Bed O'Roses, who with her stablemate, Next Move, was the heavy favorite in the betting, finished third.

Eleven four - year - olds went to the post in quest of this, the largest purse ever offered for a single thoroughbred race, and 52,500 fans the largest turnout of the season, thronged into Santa Anita Park to witness the event.

The winner races under the crimson silks of the Yolo stable of John De Blois Wack of Santa Barbara, Calif., and the triumphant jockey was Willie Shoemaker, co-riding champion of the nation in 1950.

The time for the hectic grind was 2.00 2-5 and the winner paid off in figures akin to the money awarded— $21.70, $11.70 and $3.70.

Lotowhite, owned by Thomas G. Benson of Skidmore, Tex., paid $9.90 and $3.70, and Bed O'Roses $2.20.

Great Circle closed with a rush after laying off the pace and rolled in to win the staggering purse by three quarters of a length over the suddenly threatening Lotowhite. A bare head behind was the pocketsize filly of the field, Bed O' Roses, the string of tiny pigtails adorning her mane flapping wildly in a belated move to get up first.

As expected, it was a battle all the way, but the windup was on the unexpected side.

Great Circle was bred at the Louis B. Mayer ranch at Perris, Calif., and foaled in Kentucky. UnderCalifornia racing rules, he is classed as a Kentucky bred.

Mayer, incidentally, pulled down $14,670 as the breeder of the winner.

Robinson Becomes 27th Dodger To Ink Contract

Brooklyn, Feb. 3. —(AP)— Jackie Robinson has signed his Brooklyn contract for a reported $35,000 salary, about the same money he got last year.

Lassoing of Robinson, league-leading second baseman and Dodger cleanup hitter, gave Brooklyn 27 signed players. Of the 13 unsigned only five are regulars—Gene Hermanski, Preacher Roe, Gil Hodges, Billy Cox and Carl Furillo. The others are Phil Haugstad, Clarence Podbielan, Billy Loes, Wayne Belardi, Tommy Brown, Eddie Miksis, Cal Abrams and Dom Thompson.

Door Is Opened To Frosh Again

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Freshmen will be eligible to play on Southern Conference varsity sports teams beginning next fall.

As an emergency measure, due to dwindling numbers of students because of the military draft and enlistments, the conference has voted to return to its World War II eligibility position.

The conference decision, announced here today by President Max Farrington, came after a mail vote among the 17 members. It is the first major conference to take such action.

Farrington, who also is athletic director at George Washington University here, announced this vote:

Eleven members favored eligibility for freshmen beginning next Sept. 1.

Five members favored eligibility for freshmen beginning next March 15.

One member opposed any eligibility for first year students.

The five voting for use of freshmen after March 15, Farrington said, saw a need for more manpower in sports this spring. Many colleges have reported losing large numbers of students through enlistments.

ANOTHER GROUP HITS AT BROWN

Auburn Alumni At FlorenceA Ala., Seek Removal Of Tiger Coach

Florence, Ala., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A group of Auburn alumni and supporters in this area today pressed a new attempt to dismiss Earl Brown as the school's head football coach.

A letter sent to Gov. Gordon Persons, who headed a recent unsuccessful attempt to remove Brown, said in part:

"Our strong conviction is that Coach Earl Brown should be relieved of his position at once and prompt steps should be taken to appoint in his stead an adequate and more capable successor.

"We are compelled to believe that three years is a sufficient period of time in which to prove one's self as a football coach. The record of incumbent Coach Brown is marked with a series of dismal failures on the football field.

"We most earnestly solicit your further and continuing efforts to secure the removal of Coach Brown . . ."

The letter was signed by more than 70 alumni and supporters. In addition, copies were being circulated here for more signatures to be sent to the governor.

Persons announced shortly after taking office that he wanted to see Brown removed. He was voted down, however, at a closed meeting of alumni and school officials Jan. 19.

It was decided to permit Brown to finish out his contract, which expires in February, 1952. It was also decided that his staff be strengthened. Three assistant football coaches, John Williamson, Chuck Bernard and Ralph Slaten, resigned last Monday.

Since Brown came to Auburn in 1948, the team has won only three games, lost 22 and tied four. The Tigers lost every game last season for the worst football year in the school's history.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Probably the most confused guys in town yesterday were midtown taxi drivers who were hailed by sports writers and told to drive to the Broadway Central Hotel for the national league's 75th anniversary party . . . neither the cabbies nor the writers had been in that part of the city in years . . . Rogers Hornsby, fanning with Ty Cobb, admits he wasn't much of a base-stealer in his playing days. "Maybe it was because I often ran all the way second from the bat. There was no need of stealing from second or third," says Rog . . . Now if somebody will figure out a statistic to give credit to base runners who can turn a single into a double, we'd like to hear about it . . . Three big reasons why the Yankees won the American league pennant last year were three of the smallest players in the big leagues — Phil Rizzuto, Yogi Berra and Whitey Ford . . . And all three were chased away by other clubs because of their size . . . It was Rizzuto who once was told: "Go get a box and start shining shoes," when he applied for a tryout.

Last Word

Red Jones, the former American league ump who likes to call the close ones against himself in the banquet circuit, tells this yarn . . . Red was asked to umpire a game at the Mississippi State Penitentiary and found the "home" team catcher was a tough looking character who squaked at every call . . . Trying to soften him up a bit between innings, Jones casually asked: "What have they got you in here for, pal?" . . . The catcher looked up and snarled: "For killing a big guy about your size" . . . After that, says Red, "He got all the close ones the rest of the day."

Sportsmention

Abe Saperstein, the Harlem Globe Trotters boss, is just back from Honolulu and leaves Wednesday for Paris. He doesn't fool around about that globe trotting . . . The Bears' Johnny Lujack will present a trophy to the Champaign-Urbana, Ill., Junior Chamber of Commerce Wednesday for launching the outstanding junior baseball program of 1950. . . . Gene Desautels, named to manage the Little Rock Travelers this season has been shifted 39 times in 19 years in organized baseball . . . Long Island's Clair Bee has been named to coach the east team in the annual Herald-Tribune east-west basketball game at the garden March 31 . . . If they want some real publicity for the event, they should select W. H. Kisner as referee . . . Leo Johnson, U. of Illinois track coach, predicts that his boy Dick Coleman will become the greatest lefthanded pole vaulter in history . . . Since most good vaulters are righties, that might be a left-handed compliment.

Weak End Notes

Word from Bartlesville, Okla., is that the Phillips Oilers have won 246 of their last 256 basketball games for a .965 percentage against tough opposition. But they're still looking for their first perfect season . . . The Louisiana State U. boxing team is co-captained by Jack Dyer and Evans "Blackie" Howell. These kids are so popular their schoolmates have organized a "Black-Jack" fan club.

ELIXIR CLAIMS BAHAMAS RACE

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Elixir, claimed by D. J. Scheider of New York for $7,000, survived a muddy stretch battle with Sam E. Wilson, Jr.'s Royal Mustang today to capture Hialeah Park's $7,500 added Bahamas Handicap by a nose.

Pur Sang, Spring Brook farm's nominee for the March 3 Flamingo Handicap, trailed Royal Mustang by three-quarters of a length in the seven furlong sprint for three-year - olds. Bugie Drums, the other half of the Wilson entry, trailed Pur Sang by two lengths.

The 13,713 chilled fans were kept waiting several minutes while the photo finish was studied by judges. The horses were so spattered with mud it was virtually impossible to tell with the naked eye which horse had won the race.

A six to one outsider, Elixir grabbed the lead at the three furlong post and under the expert handling of veteran Jockey Hedley Woodhouse matched stride for stride with Royal Mustang to the wire.

Count Turf, the favorite in the field of 12 sophomores, raced well at the start but faded in the stretch.

The victory more than doubled Elixir's total earnings. Schneider picked up $7,085 added money to add to the $3,915 the gelding earned in his only victory in three previous starts this year. As a juvenile Elixir earned only $925 in four starts. He registered his first racing victory Jan. 3 at Tropical Park.

The winner paid $14.50, $5.40 and $4 for a $2 ticket. Royal Mustang, who with Bugle Drums went off as a seven to two choice, paid $4.50 and $3.60. Pur Sang returned $4.40 for a show ticket.

Bee's Squawk At Arizona Stresses Difficult Job Of Cage Officiating

Split-Second Decisions Are Made On Run In Basketball Play

By Harry Grayson

New York — (NEA) — When his Long Island team was nosed out at Arizona, Clair Bee had a few thousand choice words to say.

No part of the coach's speech was complimentary to an official named W. H. Kisner.

"We wuz robbed," said Bee, in effect, adding that it was the worst he had seen in 40 years, give or take a season.

Outbursts such as the one by Bee, a rather conservative gentleman by the way, are not new in basketball. His just happened to be heard across the land.

When Philadelphia La Salle lost at North Carolina State, Ken Loeffler said it was the worst steal since the Louisiana purchase.

Squawks like these stress the difficulty of basketball officiating by far the toughest job of its nature.

Bill Grieve of the American League, who did both for years says calling balls and strikes is simple compared with officiating a basketball game.

In baseball, football and most games, a rule is a rule period. In baseball, for example, the ball is either over the plate or it isn't.

In basketball, the official has to make one split-second decision after another while on the run, most of them made more troublesome because usually it is a question of interpretation.

College basketball is as yet fully standardized only in the matter of equipment.

Rule infractions are viewed differently in various sections of the country.

Games such as those between L. I. U. and Arizona and La Salle and North Carolina State are bringing the sectors closer together in this regard, so the lamentations of the Bees and Loefflers serve some purpose.

Every spectator will tell you there is too much whistle-tooting.

If officials call the fouls tight, they ruin the game, slowing it down to a cakewalk.

If they call them loosely they are blamed for the rough play that inevitably follows as the laddybucks practically undress one another.

If the officials call too many fouls against the home team, they are imported crooks paid off by the visitors, and also related to the visiting coach.

If they detect a reasonable amount of fouls on the visitors, they are homing pigeons, with rabbit ears yet.

Ralph Warner of The Bradenton Herald points to a perfect example of the rather hopeless job of basketball officiating.

"We're being robbed," pantomimed Coach Doggie Julian of Dartmouth, in the Tampa gymnasium, without uttering a word.

At the same time, partisan Tampa fans were given the long boo to the men in the checkered shirts. Believe it or not, Tampa was being jobbed, too.

Fouls usually are the result of poor defensive play.

It's a proven fact that the side making the fewest fouls usually wins.

Why don't they grow up?

Texas Vs. North Carolina In Women's 4-Ball Finals

Hollywood Fla., Feb. 3.—(AP)—It'll be Texas vs. North Carolina in tomorrow's finals of the Women's International Four-Ball Golf Tournament at the Orange Brook Country Club.

The Texas team—Betsy Rawls of Austin and Betty Dodd of Fort Sam Houston—survived a late rally to defeat Dot Kielty of Los Angeles and Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore 2 and 1 in today's semi-finals.

The Carolina team—Mae Murray and Pat O'Sullivan of Southern Pines—tripped Carol Diringer of Tiffin, O. and Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., 1-up.

Tomorrow's finals are scheduled over the 36-hole route.

Steers Overpower Horned Frogs To Tune Of 53-43

Austin, Tex., Feb. 3.—(AP)—The University of Texas Longhorns stopped Texas Christian University's fast break tonight, licked the Horned Frogs 53 - 43, and dropped them out of a tie for the lead in the Southwest Conference race.

The victory left Texas and Texas A and M., 34-33 winner over Arkansas tonight, pacing the championship chase.

K-STATE SIFTING FOR SPORTS HEAD

Expect To Name Athletic Director Soon, Head Coach Later

Manhattan, Kan. Feb. 2.—(AP)—Kansas State's long-awaited decision on a new athletic director may come early next week.

The Big Seven Conference school has been looking for a new athletic director and a head football coach since November.

"We have been working on the task all the time," Eric Tebow, athletic council chairman, said last night. "We have done a lot of eliminating and are now down to a list of those under serious consideration."

He did not name the men on the list.

He said the football coach will be named shortly after an athletic director is selected.

"We will give the director our list of recommended football coaches and he can come up with his nomination, or he might suggest a different man," Tebow said.

Gomer Jones, University of Oklahoma line coach, said in Norman, Okla., that he will discuss the athletic directorship with K-State officials tomorrow. Jones receives an $8,000 salary. He was not given a raise when recently appointed assistant athletic director under Bud Wilkinson.

Jones said he wouldn't leave Oklahoma to take a coach's job.

Yesterday Bernie Witucki, assistant football coach at Tulsa University, talked with the K-State athletic council. He has been mentioned as a head football coach prospect.

Athletic Director Thurlo McCrady and Head Coach Ralph Graham resigned last year at the end of a poor season.

Sports Trail

By Whitney Martin

New York, Feb. 1 —(AP)— We don't see much of Fred Corcoran anymore. He's going around with the girls now.

That is, the former tournament manager for the male golf pros now is directing the tour of women pros, and his duties keep him far from the ice and snow. He shook the icicles out of his hair and left for Florida Thursday after a flying visit here.

Corcoran is sort of a one man promotion bureau. It might be called Corcoran, Corcoran, Corcoran and Corcoran all named Fred. The stocky Bostonian carries his office with him on his journeys toting the myriad details of his job right in his thick-thatched noggin.

He's been remarkably successful in his comparatively new promotional venture, and largely through his efforts women's open golf tournaments rapidly are gaining the public interest and the prestige long enjoyed by the men's open events.

Practically starting from scratch, thw women last year played in 13 tournaments for prize money totalling $50,000, and this year the program is even more ambitious. There are 15 events scheduled, with $60,000 in prize money, as well as a trip to England and France for the more successful players.

The trip, scheduled for July 9-24, will be the first ever attempted by women pros, and the six low scorers in the cross-country Weathervane Tournament will qualify. Others undoubtedly will go, Corcoran says, paying their own expenses, so a squad of eight or 10 girls is expected.

The trip is something of a triumph for Corcoran and the girls, as the favorable publicity they have received in this country has much to do with it. The ladies golf union of Great Britain never has recognized the feminine pros.

They haven't done so yet, in that they so far have not sanctioned an open tournament over there, but their interest has been needled enough so they are ready to welcome the American tourists, who will play a series of matches among themselves, as well as give exhibitions.

"We're drawing big galleries in all our tournaments," Corcoran says. "In some places the attendance exceeds that of the men's tournaments.

"The girls put on a fine show. They are capable golfers, and in addition to their skill there is plenty of glamour. The Bauer sisters, Marlene and Alice, have been a boon to the troupe. They are young and cute. The Britons particularly are anxious to see Marlene. They just can't imagine a girl of 16 playing as well as she does.

"Incidentally, Marlene and Alice grossed $30,000 in seven months last year after turning pro."

Corcoran, a little surprised himself at how well the women's golf venture has turned out, visions the feminine phase of the sport eventually rivaling the men's tournaments in general interest, much as women's tennis in the gaudy 20's, when Helen Wills Moody, Helen Jacobs and other top performers grabbed as much headlines as the Tildens and the Johnstons.

Nobody contends that the women golfers can match the men in scoring, although Babe Didrickson Zaharias can come close to it. But nobody contended that the women tennis players could match the men, either, but they drew the fans just the same.

But the girls play so casually, on such friendly relations with the galleries that one of their events assumes the aspect of a big party. There's none of this 'don't bother me, I'm thinking" attitude so common among the male pros as they march grimly around a course.

Anyway, the men had better look to their laurels. The gals may not be able to match their golf game, but they're better looking.

The official bird of Missouri and Idaho is the bluebird.

Investigators Differ On RFC Loans

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)— Senate investigators split sharply today over how to deal with what they describe as "influence" exerted upon RFC lending policies by an aide to President Truman and by other persons.

"The thing to do is replace the RFC's five-man board of directors with a single administrator," said Senator Fulbright (D. - Ark.), chairman of the senate banking subcommittee which investigated RFC operations.

But Senator Capehart (R.-Ind.), also a member of the subcommittee, called the Fulbright proposal "the wrong way to go about it." He said he favors retaining the board and granting more authority to the chairman.

Fulbright and Capehart differed, too, over whether the justice department ought to investigate the committee charges against the RFC, as suggested by Rep. Sutton (D.-Tenn.). Fulbright said he knew no reason for it at this time; Capehart said it might well be undertaken.

The full banking committee yesterday approved a report, which accused three of the five RFC directors of improperly yielding to outside influence in granting several multi-million dollar loans.

The board members criticized are Walter L. Dunham, William E. Willett and C. Edward Rowe. The report made no mention of RFC Chairman W. Elmer Harber or Walter Cosgriff, the other member. They are serving their first terms on the board.

Rowe and Dunham have denied the committee charges. Willett was reported out of town.

The committee also said that Donald Dawson, adviser to President Truman on personal matters, had some success in efforts "to dominate the RFC." Dawson is expected back from Brazil Monday.

Senator Capehart said in a radio interview today he "certainly would like to see Mr. Dawson appear at a public hearing . . . . I think he owes it to the American people." The committee offered to hold hearings for anyone who felt he had been injured unfairly by the report.

Interviewed in the broadcast by Bert Andrews of the New York Herald - Tribune, Capehart observed that the report was signed by all six committee members, four Democrats and two Republicans.

"I would suggest that this indicates that some of the goings-on in Washington are just too much for even the Democrats to stomach," he added.

"I think it is high time we were having a revival of moral indignation among our people. I . . . can remember when situations no worse than some we have in Washington would have caused people to be driven from public life . . . if they (the people) don't get mad, I honestly fear for the future of our Republic."

Fulbright has introduced legislation which would scuttle the RFC board and place an administrator in charge. He told a reporter public hearings on the bill will be held in two weeks. . . .

"We have two more reports we want to get out first," Fulbright said. "They will support and enlarge upon some of the material handled in only a general way in the original report."

Chairman William M. Boyle of the Democratic national committee issued a statement today in comment on references made to his staff in the report.

These references said there was evidence that Dunham, although a Republican, "cooperated freely" with Boyle and his staff, giving "special attention" to matters which interested them. It said Dunhams most frequent visitors, "judging from his office records," were introduced by Boyle's office.

Boyle said today:

"It is not unusual for people to come to Washington and call at the committee in order to find out where in the government they can obtain information with respect to their problems. All employes of the committee try to assist in directing such people to the department concerned with their matters. Such referrals are routine and are not an attempt to influence. The judgment of government officials, who treat each matter strictly on its merits. All officers and employes of the Democratic national committee are guided by this policy."

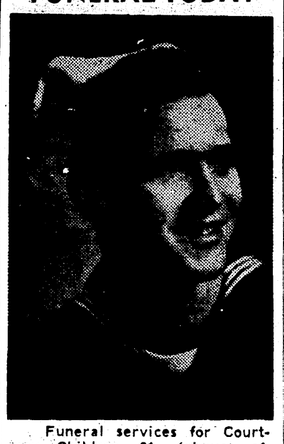

Barksdae Cpl. Breaks Leg Here

A Barksdale soldier slipped and broke his leg here yesterday while crossing the street near the intersection of North Sixth and Louisville.

He was identified at St. Francis Sanitarium as Cpl. Emmett J. Kidney, 28.

Kidney was picked up around 7 p.m. by a Mulhearn Ambulance. No other injuries were reported.

FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services for Courtney Childres, 21, (above) of West Monroe, will be held today. He was killed when he fell from a pole near Leesville Thursday. He was working 75 feet aloft when he fell while working during the frigid weather accompanying the severe ice and snow. He was a navy veteran.

SENATE GROUP IN FAVOR OF CEILING

Thinks That Congress Should Put Fix Number Of Troops To Europe

Washington, Feb. 3. —(AP)—Members of the senate foreign relations committee divided today on the question of putting a ceiling on the number of American troops to be sent to Europe.

Senator George (D.-Ga.), a veteran member of the committee, told reporters he believes congress should fix some limitation despite opposition by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to setting any mathematical ratio between U. S. and European divisions.

At the same time, Senator H. Alexander Smith (R.-N. J.) challenged the assertion by Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) that Eisenhower's testimony before the committee in a closed session this week had furnished "a complete answer to the Wherry resolution."

"I don't think the general put the kibosh on the Wherry resolution at all," Smith informed newsmen.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, has introduced a resolution to forbid the president to dispatch troops abroad until congress passes on the issue.

Smith said he didn't interpret Eisenhower's statements on the fixing of a mathematical ratio as barring future congressional troop ceilings.

Connally has opposed any such limitation but George said he thinks it will be necessary for congress to act on the matter later. He said a proposed affirmative resolution by Connaly to approve the sending of troops need not necessarily contain a ceiling, however.

I don't think we are going to get unity in this country unless congress has the power to pass on the number of troops that can be sent abroad," he said. "When youngsters are taken out of their home and put into an integrated international army that unity is going to be required."

Smith said he doesn't think there is much doubt that the United States will agree to supply some ground troops to the international defense setup for which Eisenhower has been named supreme commander.

He said it may be too early for congress to fix any ceiling, adding that he believes further reports from Eisenhower will be necessary.

Senator Hunt (D.-Wyo.), a member of the armed services committee, said he supports Eisenhower's contention that there must be "flexibility" in the American contribution.

Will Call For Grain To India

Washington, Feb. 3. — (AP) — Senator H. Alexander Smith (R. - N. J.) said today he expects to introduce next week legislation to authorize the sending of 2,000,000 tons of grain to India.

Smith said 14 senators and 14 house members have agreed to become co-sponsors of the bill. Some lawmakers have opposed the proposal on the grounds that India has not supported American policies in the United Nations.

Humanitarian factors outweigh such considerations, in his viewpoint, Smith said. Madame Pandit, Indian ambassador, has said the grain is needed to prevent starvation in India.

Five Children Burn To Death

Groveton, Va., Feb. 3. — (AP) — Five children were burned to death today in a fire that destroyed their frame home.

Pvt. Ebert Bradford of the Groveton substation of the Fairfax county police said the identity of the children had not been determined. He estimated their ages to range from two to eight or nine years.

The burned home was described as a two-family dwelling. Police said the adult occupants of the home had not been found.

Bradford said the dwelling was in a settlement of a half dozen homes bordering on U.S. highway No. 1, about one mile south of Groveton and four miles south of Alexandria.

Truck Driver Misses Death

Ocala, Fla., Feb. 3. —(AP)—A truck driver parked his tractor truck and trailer on a railroad crossing early today and went to sleep, Highway Patrolman W. T. Carlisle reported.

The east coast section of the Seaboard Airline passenger train smacked into the truck and trailer, damaging two of the Diesel - electric locomotive units of the train. The east coast section and the west coast sections of the Seaboard passenger trains were delayed four hours by the crash.

Carlisle said the truck driver, Alfred Frank Dykes, 31, Jacksonville, Fla., was awakened a short time before the train came along at 4:53 a.m., by J. B. Dees, of Ocala. He escaped before the crash.

Dykes said he did not know he was parked on a railroad track, the officer reported.

7-Year-Old Boy 'Quits Smoking'

Downey, Calif., Feb. 3. — (AP) — Stephen Allen has quit smoking. He said so himself today, with considerable emphasis.

Stephen was standing with a group of men on a street corner when one of them gave him a cigarette. He smoked it. Then they gave him another. They also offered him a chew of plug which he worked on awhile before lighting up a cigar.

Feeling sick by now, Stephen returned home and collapsed. It was several hours before he recovered, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Allen, turned in a complaint to the sheriff's office.

Stephen is seven years old.

Arms Shipments Arrive In Italy

Rome, Feb. 3—(AP)—United States arms aid to Italy has started arriving for 1951 at a rate of almost two shiploads a week—double the shipments averaged last year.

Included in the arms program for 1951, it was learned today, will be three of the newest American weapons off the postwar secret list: The big "tank killer" bazooka; the new infantry mortar and the recoilless light field gun.

Before the end of the year, new type American jet fighters will be arriving for the Italian air force, sources close to the arms aid program disclosed.

jective drive toward Seoul Jan. 25.

Uncounted in the total was an unknown number of Red casualties inflicted Saturday in a saturation raid by a large flight of B-26 medium bombers on an enemy troop and supply concentration about three miles square on the outskirts of Seoul.

As soon as the smoke and dust from the 500 - pound demolition bombs cleared, 24 Mustangs assaulted the same area with firebombs, rockets and machine guns.

Chinese Reds counterattacked at three places Saturday north and northwest of Suwon. That airbase city 17 miles south of Seoul was captured early in the allied drive.

Two Red counterblows were thrown back, one by a Turkish unit and the other by an American force.

Outcome of the third counterattack that struck a South Korean force north of Suwon before the Republican troops could dig in was still in doubt. Fighting there raged Saturday night.

The column held its ground, about 18 miles southeast of Inchon, against an enemy that was "giving us the works," as one American officer expressed it.

From the central front, Associated Press Correspondent William J. Waugh reported a buildup of about 1,500 Reds three miles north of Hoengsong and a roadblock by two platoons of Reds northeast of Wonju.

Hoengsong is 55 miles east of Seoul and ten miles north of Wonju. It is 33 miles south of the 38th parallel, once the arbitrary boundary of Red North and Republican South Korea.

U. S. patrols have entered Hoengsong several times but allies have not yet occupied the town.

Waugh said the Red troop concentration was in an area where French and American troops recently fought out of a Communist trap.

On the east-central front, U. S. units occupied Pyongchang, 25 miles east of Wonju, and sent patrols two miles northward into the village of Hupyong, 43 miles south of the 38th parallel.

Pyongchang controls an important east-west highway from Wonju to the Red-held east coast port of Kangnung.

An intelligence officer said small Red bands and individual soldiers were wandering through the hills around Pyongchang. "They fall back as we push forward," he said, "but they don't go back any further than we push them from day to day."

There was talk in the United States of what the United Nations forces should or should not do if they reach the 38th parallel, but there was no word of future plans from the Tokyo headquarters of the U. N. Commander, General MacArthur.

A Lake Success comment by a United States delegate to the UN, indicating that it was still up to MacArthur, was well received at his headquarters.

In Tokyo, Assistant Secretary of the Army Johnson said that the decision on what to do upon reaching the 38th parallel "is for a different level than the army."

"It will be up to the United Nations to decide, Johnson said.

However, he made his statement to correspondents before he had seen evening newspapers which quoted Ernest A. Gross, U. S. deputy in the UN, as saying there had been no new decision to stop at the parallel.

MacArthurs staff officers pointed out that the current drive to the north was not designed to regain lost real estate but to seek out and kill Communist troops.

The Eighth army has orders to hunt out the enemy "south of the Han river" and destroy him. The Han flows past Seoul's southern outskirts.

The allied command regards the shattered city as of some political but no military importance.

In Pusan, President Syngman Rhee of the Korean Republic declared UN actions against aggression in Korea must be "severe enough to stop aggression not only now but also in the future."

Rhee told Associated Press Correspondent Bill Shinn that lukewarm action would only serve to encourage further acts of aggression.

The 75 - year - old president stressed that he saw no reason for the UN forces to stop at the 38th parallel.

"I do not think anyone but Communists or pro-Communists would ever think of the imaginary line which has already been erased", he declared.

The Korean people, he added, would never accept any proposal for the creation of such a line again.

Commenting on the UN decision to brand Red China an aggressor, Rhee said, "I do not see why the same UN which decided within 48 hours to punish the North Korean Communists when they invaded the south last June should require nearly two months of discussion in order to brand the Chinese Communist invaders as aggressors, since the time they crossed the Yalu river to invade a neighbor nation.

"How many lives were sacrificed on the battle front, without counting the untold number of refugees dying daily, while the UN was debating.

"Now that the bandits have been condemned as criminals, which they are, the UN should announce its verdict and impose a penalty upon the criminal. I hope it will not take another month to arrive at a decision of the punishment."

The Red premier asserted there would be "no ceasefire," "no negotiations," and "no peaceful settlement."

The Reds struck hardest Saturday at a column led by Capt. A. Myers of Lander, Wyo, which bucked through three road blocks and stabbed to within seven miles of a point on the Han river.

FIRE ALARMS

Monroe Fire trucks 102, 104, and 111 answered a call at 8:18 a.m. Saturday to extinguish a house fire at 1501 South Third. The dwelling, which belonged to J. E. Williams was only slightly damaged after it caught on fire while the owner was thawing out frozen water pipes.

West Monroe firemen extinguished a house fire at 411 North Eighth street Friday at 6:07 p.m. Firemen stated that the fire was caused when the owner, Mrs. W. J. Stockstill, was trying to thaw out pipes under the house. The dwelling was considerably damaged.

the merits of the case," he said adding:

"So far there has been no decision."

keep the Chinese off balance, to search out their plans and to help pile up their casualties. It could be successful enough to extend UN defensive lines many miles northward but this would be the result, not necessarily the goal.

The allies are taking a calculated risk in pushing northward. Front reports for days have indicated an expectation that the Reds might be able and willing to hit back with a counter attack similar in intensity to their assault last November.

But high ranking American staff officers are confident their linked lines can beat off such an attack or at least fall back to avoid it without incurring the casualties of three months ago.

The advance has been careful and cautious. Speed has been sacrificed for relative safety. Instead of advancing so fast that enemy pockets are bypassed, the allies now are cleaning out all known enemy forces along the way.

The usually roadbound western troops have taken to the hills, to capture all of the dominating ridges that flank the main roads on which they depend. When advanced forces accomplish these missions, the whole allied line stretching across the peninsula moves forward to retain solid contact among the UN units. This minimizes the risk of exposing relatively small outfits to the dangers of encirclement, although this has happened since the drive started.

A staff officer said the advance would continue on this methodical pattern so long as the continuity of the line could be maintained.

What happens next may depend largely on the Chinese. If they attack they will run into better positioned and far stronger UN forces than they cracked in November. At that time the allies were split between the Eighth army on the west and the Tenth corps on the east coast.

The Chinese are believed to have considerable power around the Seoul area. They have had ample time to build supplies and manpower for an offensive.

But they also have been taking a heavy beating — the extend of which still can only be guessed. Airpower and artillery have raked Red concentrations. Frost bite has forced many foot soldiers out of ranks. Now disease, including typhus, is beginning to appear.

Whether these factors will cut down manpower and willingness to fight enough to influence the outcome of the next battle remains to be seen.

If the Chinese attack and are smashed, the UN forces probably will advance as fast as prudence dictates. But it is not yet clear whether it would be militarily advisable, under present conditions, to go as far as the 38th.

If Chinese pressure becomes too great, the allies doubtless will fall back to minimize their own casualties.

Optimism is apparent among high - ranking officers. They are confident that not only can their toehold be held but that offensive action can pound the Communists badly.

"Korea" said one of them "is one of the best places to pin down an army like the Chinese and cut it to pieces."

But none of them claims the present UN force is large enough to recapture a sizable portion of Korea from the numerically greater Red forces. And the advantage now being utilized by the allies would decrease as the lines move northward into the wide rugged terrain north of Seoul and as supply lines become longer and more difficult to maintain.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Feb. 3—(AP)—Probably the most confused guys in town yesterday were midtown taxi drivers who were hailed by sports writers and told to drive to the Broadway Central Hotel for the national league's 75th anniversary party . . . neither the cabbies nor the writers had been in that part of the city in years . . . Rogers Hornsby, fanning with Ty Cobb, admits he wasn't much of a base-stealer in his playing days. "Maybe it was because I often ran all the way second from the bat. There was no need of stealing from second or third," says Rog . . . Now if somebody will figure out a statistic to give credit to base runners who can turn a single into a double, we'd like to hear about it . . . Three big reasons why the Yankees won the American league pennant last year were three of the smallest players in the big leagues — Phil Rizzuto, Yogi Berra and Whitey Ford . . . And all three were chased away by other clubs because of their size . . . It was Rizzuto who once was told: "Go get a box and start shining shoes," when he applied for a tryout.

Last Word

Red Jones, the former American league ump who likes to call the close ones against himself in the banquet circuit, tells this yarn . . . Red was asked to umpire a game at the Mississippi State Penitentiary and found the "home" team catcher was a tough looking character who squaked at every call . . . Trying to soften him up a bit between innings, Jones casually asked: "What have they got you in here for, pal?" . . . The catcher looked up and snarled: "For killing a big guy about your size" . . . After that, says Red, "He got all the close ones the rest of the day."

Sportsmertion

Abe Saperstein, the Harlem Globe Trotters boss, is just back from Honolulu and leaves Wednesday for Paris. He doesn't fool around about that globe trotting . . . The Bears' Johnny Lujack will present a trophy to the Champaign-Urbana, Ill., Junior Chamber of Commerce Wednesday for launching the outstanding junior baseball program of 1950. . . . Gene Desautels, named to manage the Little Rock Travelers this season has been shifted 39 times in 19 years in organized baseball . . . Long Island's Clair Bee has been named to coach the east team in the annual Herald-Tribune east-west basketball game at the garden March 31 . . . If they want some real publicity for the event, they should select W. H. Kisner as referee . . . Leo Johnson, U. of Illinois track coach, predicts that his boy Dick Coleman will become the greatest lefthanded pole vaulter in history . . . Since most good vaulters are righties, that might be a left-handed compliment.

Weak End Notes

Word from Bartlesville, Okla., is that the Phillips Oilers have won 246 of their last 256 basketball games for a .965 percentage against tough opposition. But they're still looking for their first perfect season . . . The Louisiana State U. boxing team is co-captained by Jack Dyer and Evans "Blackie" Howell. These kids are so popular their schoolmates have organized a "Black-Jack" fan club.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3—(AP)—Elixir, claimed by D. J. Scheider of New York for $7,000, survived a muddy stretch battle with Sam E. Wilson, Jr.'s Royal Mustang today to capture Hialeah Park's $7,500 added Bahamas Handicap by a nose.

Pur Sang, Spring Brook farm's nominee for the March 3 Flamingo Handicap, trailed Royal Mustang by three-quarters of a length in the seven furlong sprint for three-year - olds. Bugle Drums, the other half of the Wilson entry, trailed Pur Sang by two lengths.

The 13,713 chilled fans were kept waiting several minutes while the photo finish was studied by judges. The horses were so spattered with mud it was virtually impossible to tell with the naked eye which horse had won the race.

A six to one outsider, Elixir grabbed the lead at the three furlong post and under the expert handling of veteran Jockey Hedley Woodhouse matched stride for stride with Royal Mustang to the wire.

Count Turf, the favorite in the field of 12 sophomores, raced well at the start but faded in the stretch.

The victory more than doubled Elixir's total earnings. Schneider picked up $7,085 added money to add to the $3,915 the gelding earned in his only victory in three previous starts this year. As a juvenile Elixir earned only $925 in four starts. He registered his first racing victory Jan. 3 at Tropical Park.

The winner paid $14.50, $5.40 and $4 for a $2 ticket. Royal Mustang, who with Bugle Drums went off as a seven to two choice, paid $4.50 and $3.60. Pur Sang returned $4.40 for a show ticket.

Bee's Squawk At Arizona Stresses Difficult Job Of Cage Officiating

Split-Second Decisions Are Made On Run In Basketball Play

By Harry Grayson

New York — (NEA) — When his Long Island team was nosed out at Arizona, Clair Bee had a few thousand choice words to say.

No part of the coach's speech was complimentary to an official named W. H. Kisner.

"We wuz robbed," said Bee, in effect, adding that it was the worst he had seen in 40 years, give or take a season.

Outbursts such as the one by Bee, a rather conservative gentleman by the way, are not new in basketball. His just happened to be heard across the land.

When Philadelphia La Salle lost at North Carolina State, Ken Loeffler said it was the worst steal since the Louisiana purchase.

Squawks like these stress the difficulty of basketball officiating by far the toughest job of its nature.

Bill Grieve of the American League, who did both for years says calling balls and strikes is simple compared with officiating a basketball game.

In baseball, football and most games, a rule is a rule period. In baseball, for example, the ball is either over the plate or it isn't.

In basketball, the official has to make one split-second decision after another while on the run, most of them made more troublesome because usually it is a question of interpretation.

College basketball is as yet fully standardized only in the matter of equipment.

Rule infractions are viewed differently in various sections of the country.

Games such as those between L. I. U. and Arizona and La Salle and North Carolina State are bringing the sectors closer together in this regard, so the lamentations of the Bees and Loefflers serve some purpose.

Every spectator will tell you there is too much whistle-tooting.

If officials call the fouls tight, they ruin the game, slowing it down to a cakewalk.

If they call them loosely they are blamed for the rough play that inevitably follows as the laddybucks practically undress one another.

If the officials call too many fouls against the home team, they are imported crooks paid off by the visitors, and also related to the visiting coach.

If they detect a reasonable amount of fouls on the visitors, they are homing pigeons, with rabbit ears yet.

Ralph Warner of The Bradenton Herald points to a perfect example of the rather hopeless job of basketball officiating.

"We're being robbed," pantomimed Coach Doggie Julian of Dartmouth, in the Tampa gymnasium, without uttering a word.

At the same time, partisan Tampa fans were given the long boo to the men in the checkered shirts. Believe it or not, Tampa was being jobbed, too.

Fouls usually are the result of poor defensive play.

It's a proven fact that the side making the fewest fouls usually wins.

Why don't they grow up?

The Maurey the Merrier With Penn State Matmen

Steers Overpower Horned Frogs To Tune Of 53-43

Austin, Tex., Feb. 3—(AP)—The University of Texas Longhorns stopped Texas Christian University's fast break tonight, licked the Horned Frogs 53 - 43, and dropped them out of a tie for the lead in the Southwest Conference race.

The victory left Texas and Texas A. and M., 34-33 winner over Arkansas tonight, pacing the championship chase.

K-STATE SIFTING FOR SPORTS HEAD

Expect To Name Athletic Director Soon, Head Coach Later

Manhattan, Kan. Feb. 2—(AP)—Kansas State's long-awaited decision on a new athletic director may come early next week.

The Big Seven Conference school has been looking for a new athletic director and a head football coach since November.

"We have been working on the task all the time," Eric Tebow, athletic council chairman, said last night. "We have done a lot of eliminating and are now down to a list of those under serious consideration."

He did not name the men on the list.

He said the football coach will be named shortly after an athletic director is selected.

"We will give the director our list of recommended football coaches and he can come up with his nomination, or he might suggest a different man," Tebow said.

Gomer Jones, University of Oklahoma line coach, said in Norman, Okla., that he will discuss the athletic directorship with K-State officials tomorrow. Jones receives an $8,000 salary. He was not given a raise when recently appointed assistant athletic director under Bud Wilkinson.

Jones said he wouldn't leave Oklahoma to take a coach's job.

Yesterday Bernie Wituckl, assistant football coach at Tulsa University, talked with the K-State athletic council. He has been mentioned as a head football coach prospect.

Athletic Director Thurlo McCrady and Head Coach Ralph Graham resigned last year at the end of a poor season.

Sports Trail

By Whitney Martin

New York, Feb. 1—(AP)— We don't see much of Fred Corcoran anymore. He's going around with the girls now.

That is, the former tournament manager for the male golf pros now is directing the tour of women pros, and his duties keep him far from the ice and snow. He shook the icicles out of his hair and left for Florida Thursday after a flying visit here.

Corcoran is sort of a one man promotion bureau. It might be called Corcoran, Corcoran, Corcoran and Corcoran all named Fred. The stocky Bostonian carries his office with him on his journeys toting the myriad details of his job right in his thick-thatched noggin.

He's been remarkably successful in his comparatively new promotional venture, and largely through his efforts women's open golf tournaments rapidly are gaining the public interest and the prestige long enjoyed by the men's open events.

Practically starting from scratch, thw women last year played in 13 tournaments for prize money totalling $50,000, and this year the program is even more ambitious. There are 15 events scheduled, with $60,000 in prize money, as well as a trip to England and France for the more successful players.

The trip, scheduled for July 9-24, will be the first ever attempted by women pros, and the six low scorers in the cross-country Weathervane Tournament will qualify. Others undoubtedly will go, Corcoran says, paying their own expenses, so a squad of eight or 10 girls is expected.

The trip is something of a triumph for Corcoran and the girls, as the favorable publicity they have received in this country has much to do with it. The ladies golf union of Great Britain never has recognized the feminine pros.

They haven't done so yet, in that they so far have not sanctioned an open tournament over there, but their interest has been needled enough so they are ready to welcome the American tourists, who will play a series of matches among themselves, as well as give exhibitions.

"We're drawing big galleries in all our tournaments," Corcoran says. "In some places the attendance exceeds that of the men's tournaments.

"The girls put on a fine show. They are capable golfers, and in addition to their skill there is plenty of glamour. The Bauer sisters, Marlene and Alice, have been a boon to the troupe. They are young and cute. The Britons particularly are anxious to see Marlene. They just can't imagine a girl of 16 playing as well as she does.

"Incidentally, Marlene and Alice grossed $30,000 in seven months last year after turning pro."

Corcoran, a little surprised himself at how well the women's golf venture has turned out, visions the feminine phase of the sport eventually rivaling the men's tournaments in general interest, much as women's tennis in the gaudy 20's, when Helen Wills Moody, Helen Jacobs and other top performers grabbed as much headlines as the Tildens and the Johnstons.

Nobody contends that the women golfers can match the men in scoring, although Babe Didrickson Zaharias can come close to it. But nobody contended that the women tennis players could match the men, either, but they drew the fans just the same.

But the girls play so casually, on such friendly relations with the galleries that one of their events assumes the aspect of a big party. There's none of this 'don't bother me, I'm thinking" attitude so common among the male pros as they march grimly around a course.

Anyway, the men had better look to their laurels. The gals may not be able to match their golf game, but they're better looking.

The official bird of Missouri and Idaho is the bluebird.

Investigators Differ On RFC Loans

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)— Senate investigators split sharply today over how to deal with what they describe as "influence" exerted upon RFC lending policies by an aide to President Truman and by other persons.

"The thing to do is replace the RFC's five-man board of directors with a single administrator," said Senator Fulbright (D. - Ark.), chairman of the senate banking subcommittee which investigated RFC operations.

But Senator Capehart (R.-Ind.), also a member of the subcommittee, called the Fulbright proposal "the wrong way to go about it." He said he favors retaining the board and granting more authority to the chairman.

Fulbright and Capehart differed, too, over whether the justice department ought to investigate the committee charges against the RFC, as suggested by Rep. Sutton (D.-Tenn.). Fulbright said he knew no reason for it at this time; Capehart said it might well be undertaken.

The full banking committee yesterday approved a report which accused three of the five RFC directors of improperly yielding to outside influence in granting several multi-million dollar loans.

The board members criticized are Walter L. Dunham, William E. Willett and C. Edward Rowe. The report made no mention of RFC Chairman W. Elmer Harber or Walter Cosgriff, the other member. They are serving their first terms on the board.

Rowe and Dunham have denied the committee charges. Willett was reported out of town.

The committee also said that Donald Dawson, adviser to President Truman on personal matters, had some success in efforts "to dominate the RFC." Dawson is expected back from Brazil Monday.

Senator Capehart said in a radio interview today he "certainly would like to see Mr. Dawson appear at a public hearing . . . I think he owes it to the American people." The committee offered to hold hearings for anyone who felt he had been injured unfairly by the report.

Interviewed in the broadcast by Bert Andrews of the New York Herald - Tribune, Capehart observed that the report was signed by all six committee members, four Democrats and two Republicans.

"I would suggest that this indicates that some of the goings-on in Washington are just too much for even the Democrats to stomach," he added.

"I think it is high time we were having a revival of moral indignation among our people. I . . . can remember when situations no worse than some we have in Washington would have caused people to be driven from public life . . . if they (the people) don't get mad, I honestly fear for the future of our Republic."

Fulbright has introduced legislation which would scuttle the RFC board and place an administrator in charge. He told a reporter public hearings on the bill will be held in two weeks. . . .

"We have two more reports we want to get out first," Fulbright said. "They will support and enlarge upon some of the material handled in only a general way in the original report."

Chairman William M. Boyle of the Democratic national committee issued a statement today in comment on references made to his staff in the report.

These references said there was evidence that Dunham, although a Republican, "cooperated freely" with Boyle and his staff, giving "special attention" to matters which interested them. It said Dunhams most frequent visitors, "judging from his office records," were introduced by Boyle's office.

Boyle said today:

"It is not unusual for people to come to Washington and call at the committee in order to find out where in the government they can obtain information with respect to their problems. All employes of the committee try to assist in directing such people to the department concerned with their matters. Such referrals are routine and are not an attempt to influence. The judgment of government officials, who treat each matter strictly on its merits. All officers and employes of the Democratic national committee are guided by this policy."

SENATE GROUP IN FAVOR OF CEILING

Thinks That Congress Should Put Fix Number Of Troops To Europe

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Members of the senate foreign relations committee divided today on the question of putting a ceiling on the number of American troops to be sent to Europe.

Senator George (D.-Ga.), a veteran member of the committee, told reporters he believes congress should fix some limitation despite opposition by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to setting any mathematical ratio between U. S. and European divisions.

At the same time, Senator H. Alexander Smith (R.-N. J.) challenged the assertion by Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) that Eisenhower's testimony before the committee in a closed session this week had furnished "a complete answer to the Wherry resolution."

"I don't think the general put the kibosh on the Wherry resolution at all," Smith informed newsmen.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, has introduced a resolution to forbid the president to dispatch troops abroad until congress passes on the issue.

Smith said he didn't interpret Eisenhower's statements on the fixing of a mathematical ratio as barring future congressional troop ceilings.

Connally has opposed any such limitation but George said he thinks it will be necessary for congress to act on the matter later. He said a proposed affirmative resolution by Connaly to approve the sending of troops need not necessarily contain a ceiling, however.

I don't think we are going to get unity in this country unless congress has the power to pass on the number of troops that can be sent abroad," he said. "When youngsters are taken out of their home and put into an integrated international army that unity is going to be required."

Smith said he doesn't think there is much doubt that the United States will agree to supply some ground troops to the international defense setup for which Eisenhower has been named supreme commander.

He said it may be too early for congress to fix any ceiling, adding that he believes further reports from Eisenhower will be necessary.

Senator Hunt (D.-Wyo.), a member of the armed services committee, said he supports Eisenhower's contention that there must be "flexibility" in the American contribution.

Will Call For Grain To India

Washington, Feb. 3. — (AP) — Senator H. Alexander Smith (R. - N. J.) said today he expects to introduce next week legislation to authorize the sending of 2,000,000 tons of grain to India.

Smith said 14 senators and 14 house members have agreed to become co-sponsors of the bill. Some lawmakers have opposed the proposal on the grounds that India has not supported American policies in the United Nations.

Humanitarian factors outweigh such considerations, in his viewpoint, Smith said. Madame Pandit, Indian ambassador, has said the grain is needed to prevent starvation in India.

The burned home was described as a two-family dwelling. Police said the adult occupants of the home had not been found.

Bradford said the dwelling was in a settlement of a half dozen homes bordering on U.S. highway No. 1, about one mile south of Groveton and four miles south of Alexandria.

Truck Driver Misses Death

Ocala, Fla., Feb. 3. —(AP)—A truck driver parked his tractor truck and trailer on a railroad crossing early today and went to sleep, Highway Patrolman W. T. Carlisle reported.

The east coast section of the Seaboard Airline passenger train smacked into the truck and trailer, damaging two of the Diesel - electric locomotive units of the train. The east coast section and the west coast sections of the Seaboard passenger trains were delayed four hours by the crash.

Carlisle said the truck driver, Alfred Frank Dykes, 31, Jacksonville, Fla., was awakened a short time before the train came along at 4:53 a.m., by J. B. Dees, of Ocala. He escaped before the crash.

Dykes said he did not know he was parked on a railroad track, the officer reported.

Stephen is seven years old.

jective drive toward Seoul Jan. 25.

Uncounted in the total was an unknown number of Red casualties inflicted Saturday in a saturation raid by a large flight of B-26 medium bombers on an enemy troop and supply concentration about three miles square on the outskirts of Seoul.

As soon as the smoke and dust from the 500 - pound demolition bombs cleared, 24 Mustangs assaulted the same area with firebombs, rockets and machine guns.

Chinese Reds counterattacked at three places Saturday north and northwest of Suwon. That airbase city 17 miles south of Seoul was captured early in the allied drive.

Two Red counterblows were thrown back, one by a Turkish unit and the other by an American force.

Outcome of the third counterattack that struck a South Korean force north of Suwon before the Republican troops could dig in was still in doubt. Fighting there raged Saturday night.

The column held its ground, about 18 miles southeast of Inchon, against an enemy that was "giving us the works," as one American officer expressed it.

From the central front, Associated Press Correspondent William J. Waugh reported a buildup of about 1,500 Reds three miles north of Hoengsong and a roadblock by two platoons of Reds northeast of Wonju.

Hoengsong is 55 miles east of Seoul and ten miles north of Wonju. It is 33 miles south of the 38th parallel, once the arbitrary boundary of Red North and Republican South Korea.

U. S. patrols have entered Hoengsong several times but allies have not yet occupied the town.

Waugh said the Red troop concentration was in an area where French and American troops recently fought out of a Communist trap.

On the east-central front, U. S. units occupied Pyongchang, 25 miles east of Wonju, and sent patrols two miles northward into the village of Hupyong, 43 miles south of the 38th parallel.

Pyongchang controls an important east-west highway from Wonju to the Red-held east coast port of Kangnung.

An intelligence officer said small Red bands and individual soldiers were wandering through the hills around Pyongchang. "They fall back as we push forward," he said, "but they don't go back any further than we push them from day to day."

There was talk in the United States of what the United Nations forces should or should not do if they reach the 38th parallel, but there was no word of future plans from the Tokyo headquarters of the U. N. Commander, General MacArthur.

A Lake Success comment by a United States delegate to the UN, indicating that it was still up to MacArthur, was well received at his headquarters.

In Tokyo, Assistant Secretary of the Army Johnson said that the decision on what to do upon reaching the 38th parallel "is for a different level than the army."

"It will be up to the United Nations to decide, Johnson said.

However, he made his statement to correspondents before he had seen evening newspapers which quoted Ernest A. Gross, U. S. deputy in the UN, as saying there had been no new decision to stop at the parallel.

MacArthurs staff officers pointed out that the current drive to the north was not designed to regain lost real estate but to seek out and kill Communist troops.

The Eighth army has orders to hunt out the enemy "south of the Han river" and destroy him. The Han flows past Seoul's southern outskirts.

The allied command regards the shattered city as of some political but no military importance.

In Pusan, President Syngman Rhee of the Korean Republic declared UN actions against aggression in Korea must be "severe enough to stop aggression not only now but also in the future."

Rhee told Associated Press Correspondent Bill Shinn that lukewarm action would only serve to encourage further acts of aggression.

The 75 - year - old president stressed that he saw no reason for the UN forces to stop at the 38th parallel.

"I do not think anyone but Communists or pro-Communists would ever think of the imaginary line which has already been erased", he declared.

The Korean people, he added, would never accept any proposal for the creation of such a line again.

Commenting on the UN decision to brand Red China an aggressor, Rhee said, "I do not see why the same UN which decided within 48 hours to punish the North Korean Communists when they invaded the south last June should require nearly two months of discussion in order to brand the Chinese Communist invaders as aggressors, since the time they crossed the Yalu river to invade a neighbor nation.

"How many lives were sacrificed on the battle front, without counting the untold number of refugees dying daily, while the UN was debating.

"Now that the bandits have been condemned as criminals, which they are, the UN should announce its verdict and impose a penalty upon the criminal. I hope it will not take another month to arrive at a decision of the punishment."

The Red premier asserted there would be "no ceasefire," "no negotiations," and "no peaceful settlement."

The Reds struck hardest Saturday at a column led by Capt. A. Myers of Lander, Wyo. which bucked through three road blocks and stabbed to within seven miles of a point on the Han river.

FIRE ALARMS

Monroe Fire trucks 102, 104, and 111 answered a call at 8:18 a.m. Saturday to extinguish a house fire at 1501 South Third. The dwelling, which belonged to J. E. Williams was only slightly damaged after it caught on fire while the owner was thawing out frozen water pipes.

West Monroe firemen extinguished a house fire at 411 North Eighth street Friday at 6:07 p.m. Firemen stated that the fire was caused when the owner, Mrs. W. J. Stockstill, was trying to thaw out pipes under the house. The dwelling was considerably damaged.

the merits of the case," he said adding:

"So far there has been no decision."

The mediation board conferences with both sides will resume at 10:30 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) Sunday.

Although there was considerable loud talking in the conference room tonight both sides parted on apparently amicable terms.

Tonight's joint session was set up at the invitation of the mediation board.

keep the Chinese off balance, to search out their plans and to help pile up their casualties. It could be successful enough to extend UN defensive lines many miles northward but this would be the result, not necessarily the goal.

The allies are taking a calculated risk in pushing northward. Front reports for days have indicated an expectation that the Reds might be able and willing to hit back with a counter attack similar in intensity to their assault last November.

But high ranking American staff officers are confident their linked lines can beat off such an attack or at least fall back to avoid it without incurring the casualties of three months ago.

The advance has been careful and cautious. Speed has been sacrificed for relative safety. Instead of advancing so fast that enemy pockets are bypassed, the allies now are cleaning out all known enemy forces along the way.

The usually roadbound western troops have taken to the hills, to capture all of the dominating ridges that flank the main roads on which they depend. When advanced forces accomplish these missions, the whole allied line stretching across the peninsula moves forward to retain solid contact among the UN units. This minimizes the risk of exposing relatively small outfits to the dangers of encirclement, although this has happened since the drive started.

A staff officer said the advance would continue on this methodical pattern so long as the continuity of the line could be maintained.

What happens next may depend largely on the Chinese. If they attack they will run into better positioned and far stronger UN forces than they cracked in November. At that time the allies were split between the Eighth army on the west and the Tenth corps on the east coast.

The Chinese are believed to have considerable power around the Seoul area. They have had ample time to build supplies and manpower for an offensive.

But they also have been taking a heavy beating — the extend of which still can only be guessed. Airpower and artillery have raked Red concentrations. Frost bite has forced many foot soldiers out of ranks. Now disease, including typhus, is beginning to appear.

Whether these factors will cut down manpower and willingness to fight enough to influence the outcome of the next battle remains to be seen.

If the Chinese attack and are smashed, the UN forces probably will advance as fast as prudence dictates. But it is not yet clear whether it would be militarily advisable, under present conditions, to go as far as the 38th.

If Chinese pressure becomes too great, the allies doubtless will fall back to minimize their own casualties.

Optimism is apparent among high - ranking officers. They are confident that not only can their toehold be held but that offensive action can pound the Communist badly.

"Korea" said one of them "is one of the best places to pin down an army like the Chinese and cut it to pieces."

But none of them claims the present UN force is large enough to recapture a sizable portion of Korea from the numerically greater Red forces. And the advantage now being utilized by the allies would decrease as the lines move northward into the wide rugged terrain north of Seoul and as supply lines become longer and more difficult to maintain.

JILTED LOVER KILLS WOMEN

Shoots Self After Slaying Two Women; Writes Guilty Note On Box

Hopewell, Va., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A rejected lover killed two women here early today with a shotgun and then scribbled a note of his guilt on a cardboard box after seriously wounding himself, police said.

Grady Ledford, 32-year-old machine operator at the Hercules Powder Company here, wrote out his confession in a local store to which he had walked five blocks with the lower part of his face blown away, police said.

Attendants at a Richmond hospital, to which Ledford was taken from a hospital here, listed his condition tonight as "satisfactory."

The shooting victims were identified as Mrs. Fannie Kendrick, 23, and Mrs. Louise McDiarmid, 35, both of whom lived at the home of Mrs. McDiarmid's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Moore.

Police said Ledford had been going with Mrs. Kendrick, divorced mother of a three-year-old son, but that the woman recently had made an effort to break off relations with him.

Charges had not been filed tonight, according to Police Chief F. C. Gwaltney, who said it was a case of double murder and attempted suicide. He said Ledford had no previous criminal record.

The two women were shot down as they were returning to the Moore home from a restaurant with Mrs. McDiarmid's brother, Lonnie Moore, of Washington, police said.

Moore was quoted by police as saying he heard a report "like a loud firecracker" as the trio mounted the one step to the porch and that he turned to see Mrs. Kendrick fall in a heap on the porch floor.

As he and his sister huddled in the doorway while their mother attempted to unlock the front door, Moore told officers, he heard another report and saw Mrs. McDiarmid sprawl to the floor.

Ledford then walked about 100 feet to a wooded area near the residence, placed the double-barrel shotgun in his mouth and pulled the trigger, police said, but he apparently recovered consciousness in a few minutes

The man then walked five blocks to a store where the proprietor got aid and took him to a hospital. Police said Ledford wrote his admission of guilt on a cardboard box while waiting to be taken for treatment.

Indiana had 75,000 population when it became a state in 1816, according to the National Geographic Society.

Acheson, Benton Differ On Program

Washington, Feb. 3 —(AP)— The "Voice of America" radio program produced a disagreement today between Secretary of State Acheson and Senator Benton (D-Conn).

Benton, formerly assistant secretary of state in charge of the far-flung "Voice" program, said it isn't measuring up to its opportunity of carrying to the world an expanded "campaign of truth" about America. He urged that it be put under an independent agency, relieving the state department of the burden of operating it.

Acheson cautioned against such a step, and asked that under the state department the Voice "has in fact become the vital part of our national strategy" its supporters believe it should be.

The difference of opinion was disclosed in an exchange of letters between the two men, made public by Benton.

The state department press officer issued a statement saying the department "not only welcomes, but is eager for, an opportunity to lay before appropriate representatives of congress the full story of the great progress that has been made in the world wide campaign of truth."

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Strikes, confusing controls and bad weather harassed business and industry this week, knocking down the high level of production for defense demands and civilian needs.

The "sick call" strike of railroad switchmen was the event that really threw a monkey wrench into the gears.

Industrial losses due to failure of the railroad men to report for work reached toward astronomical figures and mounted hourly.

The flow of raw materials to factories and delivery of finished goods to soldier and civilian consumers was all but halted in many sections.

As supplies dwindled hundreds of thousands of workers were sent home from automobile plants, steel mills and other factories.

Coinciding as it did with bad weather and tremendous demand, the railroad walkout became the final straw that hurt the economy seriously.

Joseph Short, presidential press secretary said he was speaking for President Truman when he told newsmen the walkout is "directly injuring our national security."

While the "sick call" strike was the biggest fly in the ointment, failure to clarify confusing price and wage controls quickly and bitter cold weather in many industrial sections had a hand in cutting back production.

Provisions of the price control order stumped many a commodity trader and dealings in cotton futures and in some other commodities were suspended.

The New York stock exchange remained open and issues hit new highs on four out of five days of the week.

There was abundant evidence that new inflationary forces were building up as the federal reserve bank agreed to 2½ per cent money and all military purchases were removed from price control.

Businessmen and industrialists interpreted the wage-price freeze provisions as best they could and their interpretations were as varied as the many different types of work they were engaged in.

Bad weather, meantime curtailed industrial gas service in some sections as bitter cold brought a heavy demand from residential consumers.

Heavy snow ganged up with subzero weather to keep workers from their jobs in other areas.

While production lagged, business loans hit a new high for the 18th week, department store sales continued to run well ahead of the previous year, the consumer continued spending.

It was difficult to put a finger on the detailed effects of the freeze. But many a price moved upward.

The government gave soft and hard coal producers a price increase and observers figured the cost to the consumers could be around $150,000,000.

International harvester restored a price increase it once rescinded at the request of the government.

Harvester raised some of its prices on farm implements, tractors and motor trucks in December, then rolled them back voluntarily to December 1 levels.

This week with permission of the government, some prices were increased, where a company spokesman said, "we were under water."

It was the railroad walkout that hit at the heart of production, however.

The assembly lines of the automobile industry slowed to a walk with more than 116,000 workers idle across the nation. Virtually all of the idleness was attributed to the railroad switchmen's strike.

The national tube works plant of the U. S. Steel Corp. at Lorain, O., was almost completely shutdown. This plant is the world's largest producer of seamless steel pipe.

Midland Steel Products Co., at Cleveland, Ohio, sent its workers home because it hadn't the railroad cars in which to ship its products.

William M. Rand, president of Monsanto Chemical Co., told the office of defense mobilization his company would have to close down its domestic operations if the rail strike continued.

Mail and express was embargoed. Many through trains were cancelled. Commuters in many sections were affected.

The tabulation of industrial and financial figures did not give a thorough picture because in many instances the latest figures available are for the period ended January 27, a week ago.

136,188 Prisoners Taken By U. N.

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)— The defense department spokesman said today a total of 136,188 prisoners have been taken by UN forces in the Korean war up to Jan. 10.

This total presumably includes both North Koreans, captured in large numbers in the UN offensive of last fall and some Chinese Communists prisoners captured in patrol activities since then.

On the other side of the ledger, 107 Americans are known to have been captured by the enemy and 8,276 have been reported missing in approximately the same period.

In addition, thousands of South Koreans have been captured, although there is no record here of the losses suffered by other than American forces.

The spokesman also indicated that there is new evidence that severe weather is taking a toll of enemy strength.

Of the prisoners seized who are "cold weather casualties," an estimated 44 percent have required some form of amputation, he told reporters. He did not disclose how many such prisoner - casualties have been taken since the Korean winter started.

JILTED LOVER KILLS WOMEN

Shoots Self After Slaying Two Women; Writes Guilty Note On Box

Hopewell, Va., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A rejected lover killed two women here early today with a shotgun and then scribbled a note of his guilt on a cardboard box after seriously wounding himself, police said.

Grady Ledford, 32-year-old machine operator at the Hercules Powder Company here, wrote out his confession in a local store to which he had walked five blocks with the lower part of his face blown away, police said.

Attendants at a Richmond hospital, to which Ledford was taken from a hospital here, listed his condition tonight as "satisfactory."

The shooting victims were identified as Mrs. Fannie Kendrick, 23, and Mrs. Louise McDiarmid, 35, both of whom lived at the home of Mrs. McDiarmid's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Moore.

Police said Ledford had been going with Mrs. Kendrick, divorced mother of a three-year-old son, but that the woman recently had made an effort to break off relations with him.

Charges had not been filed tonight, according to Police Chief F. C. Gwaltney, who said it was a case of double murder and attempted suicide. He said Ledford had no previous criminal record.

The two women were shot down as they were returning to the Moore home from a restaurant with Mrs. McDiarmid's brother, Lonnie Moore, of Washington, police said.

Moore was quoted by police as saying he heard a report "like a loud firecracker" as the trio mounted the one step to the porch and that he turned to see Mrs. Kendrick fall in a heap on the porch floor.

As he and his sister huddled in the doorway while their mother attempted to unlock the front door, Moore told officers, he heard another report and saw Mrs. McDiarmid sprawl to the floor.

Ledford then walked about 100 feet to a wooded area near the residence, placed the double-barrel shotgun in his mouth and pulled the trigger, police said, but he apparently recovered consciousness in a few minutes.

The man then walked five blocks to a store where the proprietor got aid and took him to a hospital. Police said Ledford wrote his admission of guilt on a cardboard box while waiting to be taken for treatment.

Bendel To Attend Defense Meeting

Dr. William L. Bendel, representative of this area on the state advisory board of the civil defense program, will attend a meeting of the state committee at Baton Rouge next Wednesday.

It is expected that the full state program will be mapped out at Wednesday's meeting and that plans for matching federal funds will be discussed. It has been reported that it is likely a special session of the state legislature will be called to devise methods of obtaining funds for the program. Lieut. Gov. William J. Dodd is head of the Louisiana civil defense group.

Indiana had 75,000 population when it became a state in 1816, according to the National Geographic Society.

Acheson, Benton Differ On Program

Washington, Feb. 3 —(AP)— The "Voice of America" radio program produced a disagreement today between Secretary of State Acheson and Senator Benton (D-Conn).

Benton, formerly assistant secretary of state in charge of the far-flung "Voice" program, said it isn't measuring up to its opportunity of carrying to the world an expanded "campaign of truth" about America. He urged that it be put under an independent agency, relieving the state department of the burden of operating it.

Acheson cautioned against such a step, and asked that under the state department the Voice "has in fact become the vital part of our national strategy" its supporters believe it should be.

The difference of opinion was disclosed in an exchange of letters between the two men, made public by Benton.

The state department press officer issued a statement saying the department "not only welcomes, but is eager for, an opportunity to lay before appropriate representatives of congress the full story of the great progress that has been made in the world wide campaign of truth."

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Strikes, confusing controls and bad weather harassed business and industry this week, knocking down the high level of production for defense demands and civilian needs.

The "sick call" strike of railroad switchmen was the event that really threw a monkey wrench into the gears.

Industrial losses due to failure of the railroad men to report for work reached toward astronomical figures and mounted hourly.

The flow of raw materials to factories and delivery of finished goods to soldier and civilian consumers was all but halted in many sections.

As supplies dwindled hundreds of thousands of workers were sent home from automobile plants, steel mills and other factories.

Coinciding as it did with bad weather and tremendous demand, the railroad walkout became the final straw that hurt the economy seriously.

Joseph Short, presidential press secretary said he was speaking for President Truman when he told newsmen the walkout is "directly injuring our national security."

While the "sick call" strike was the biggest fly in the ointment, failure to clarify confusing price and wage controls quickly and bitter cold weather in many industrial sections had a hand in cutting back production.

Provisions of the price control order stumped many a commodity trader and dealings in cotton futures and in some other commodities were suspended.

The New York stock exchange remained open and issues hit new highs on four out of five days of the week.

There was abundant evidence that new inflationary forces were building up as the federal reserve bank agreed to 2½ per cent money and all military purchases were removed from price control.

Businessmen and industrialists interpreted the wage-price freeze provisions as best they could and their interpretations were as varied as the many different types of work they were engaged in.

Bad weather, meantime curtailed industrial gas service in some sections as bitter cold brought a heavy demand from residential consumers.

Heavy snow ganged up with sub-zero weather to keep workers from their jobs in other areas.

While production lagged, business loans hit a new high for the 18th week, department store sales continued to run well ahead of the previous year, the consumer continued spending.

It was difficult to put a finger on the detailed effects of the freeze. But many a price moved upward.

The government gave soft and hard coal producers a price increase and observers figured the cost to the consumers could be around $150,000,000.

International harvester restored a price increase it once rescinded at the request of the government.

Harvester raised some of its prices on farm implements, tractors and motor trucks in December, then rolled them back voluntarily to December 1 levels.

This week with permission of the government, some prices were increased, where a company spokesman said, "we were under water."

It was the railroad walkout that hit at the heart of production, however.

The assembly lines of the automobile industry slowed to a walk with more than 116,000 workers idle across the nation. Virtually all of the idleness was attributed to the railroad switchmen's strike.

The national tube works plant of the U. S. Steel Corp. at Lorain, O., was almost completely shutdown. This plant is the world's largest producer of seamless steel pipe.

Midland Steel Products Co., at Cleveland, Ohio, sent its workers home because it hadn't the railroad cars in which to ship its products.

William M. Rand, president of Monsanto Chemical Co., told the office of defense mobilization his company would have to close down its domestic operations if the rail strike continued.

Mail and express was embargoed. Many through trains were cancelled. Commuters in many sections were affected.

The tabulation of industrial and financial figures did not give a thorough picture because in many instances the latest figures available are for the period ended January 27, a week ago.

136,188 Prisoners Taken By U. N.

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)— The defense department spokesman said today a total of 136,188 prisoners have been taken by UN forces in the Korean war up to Jan. 10.

This total presumably includes both North Koreans, captured in large numbers in the UN offensive of last fall and some Chinese Communists prisoners captured in patrol activities since then.

On the other side of the ledger, 107 Americans are known to have been captured by the enemy and 8,276 have been reported missing in approximately the same period.

In addition, thousands of South Koreans have been captured, although there is no record here of the losses suffered by other than American forces.

The spokesman also indicated that there is new evidence that severe weather is taking a toll of enemy strength.

Of the prisoners seized who are "cold weather casualties," an estimated 44 percent have required some form of amputation, he told reporters. He did not disclose how many such prisoner - casualties have been taken since the Korean winter started.

EAGLE SCOUTER OFF TO CAPITAL

Arthur Matthews Named To Group Of 12 In Nation To Visit Washington

Eagle Scout Arthur Matthews of Monroe will visit President Truman at noon Tuesday, February 6 along with eleven other outstanding Scouts from different sections of the nation. This report to the nation is one of the features of the 41st anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America which is being observed February 6-12 by more than 2,750,000 members of the organization.

Observed in every city and town and most villages and hamlets by more than 75,000 units, Boy Scout Week, (February 6-12), is the largest single birthday observance by young Americans.

Scouts of the Twin Cities will join this national celebration with many special activities this week. Among these activities are: Special troop and pack programs, window displays, civic club programs, Scout Sunday services in many churches on February 11, a district court of honor on Thursday, February 8.

On Thursday, February 8, the day that the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated at Washington, D. C., the entire membership will recommit themselves to the Scout oath or promise at 8:15 p.m., Scout Arthur Matthews will participate in a special Scout anniversary breakfast with national Scout leaders on this day.

"Strengthen Liberty" is the anniversary theme. The organization has completed two years of a program known as "Strengthen the Arm of Liberty" which already has made it possible for four hundred thousand additional boys to enter Scouting's ranks and for all members to enjoy a richer experience. There are now 831 Scout council camps totalling 288,545 acres valued at more than eleven million dollars in land and eighteen million dollars in facilities and equipment.

The largest single encampment ever held in the western hemisphere was the national jamboree last summer when 47,163 Scouts and leaders camped at historic Valley Forge, Penn. President Truman opened the jamboree and General Eisenhower, a member of the Boy Scouts' national executive board, spoke at a great Fourth of July celebration. A reunion of the large Ouachita Valley Council jamboree contingent is to be held Friday night, February 9, at the First Baptist Church in Monroe.

The jamboree, said Walter H. Annenberg, one of America's leading newspaper publishers, was a "series of unforgettable images of youth displaying its innate sense of sportsmanship, comradeliness, ingenuity and steady responsibility."

"There at Valley Forge," he said, "we saw the best hope of human freedom. We saw there the power and enthusiasm that can shape to its intended ends our still imperfectly achieved democracy."

"Report to the Nation"

The twelve Scouts will present a "Report to the Nation" to President Truman in the White House summing up the service projects undertaken by Scout units throughout America last year.

Nearly 100 leaders representing the cabinet, the senate, the house of representatives and national organizations will attend a breakfast in Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, February 7, with the twelve Scouts. Following sightseeing in the nation's capital and visits with notables, the Scouts will go to New York to take part in other Boy Scout Week observances.

Community Celebrations

Representatives of churches, business and local government will share in anniversary observances with their Scouts in thousands of communities. There will be unit "open house" parties at which parents, relatives, and leaders of institutions chartering Scouting will hear the year's accomplishments, programs, service projects, and membership gains.

Civil defense and conservation of the nation's natural resources will claim a major share of the Scouts' attention this Boy Scout Week. Members will also inspect their homes to make certain no hazards exist. Scout efficiency in emergencies, will be tested through surprise mobilizations.

Boy Scout Sunday will be observed February 11 in many churches with Scouts and leaders attending services in uniform.

Men In Armed Service

Lt. James S. Rutledge of West Monroe was called into service January 17 as an active reservist. He is son of Mrs. S. M. Rutledge, teacher in Crosley School. He is married and has a four-year-old son, Bobby.

LAKE PROVIDENCE

One of the delightful affairs of the midwinter season was the tea on Thursday afternoon of the past week from 3:30 to 5, at the Legion home honoring Mrs. C. T. Humphrey, visitor from Columbus, Miss., and Mrs. John Dean, who leaves early in February to make her home in Brinkley, Ark.

The hostesses, Mrs. Grady Wyly, Mrs. W. H. Maben and Mrs. R. S. Reed welcomed callers standing within the French doors leading to the spacious club lounge. Mrs. Wyly was gowned in grey crepe with matching lace collared inset sprinkled with rhinestones blending with the heirloom diamond sunburst at the throat. Her shoulder corsage was of Kumaska camellia tied with rainbow hued ribbons. Mrs. Maben's deep tucked model, in bodice and skirt, was effective with cut steele edging. She added a single strand of pearls and shoulder corsage of Pink Perfection camellias. Mrs. Reed wore a gown of moss green with inserted pleated insets encircling bodice and peplum. Rhinestone buttons were a decorative theme. Shoulder corsage was a coral lily. Mrs. Humphrey's royal blue model was effectively braided in white outlining the inset yoke and overlapping cuffs. Her shoulder corsage was of Debutant camellias. Mrs. Deen's two piece grey suit dress had tan buttons fronting the jacket, tan belt and scarf, in chic tailleur. Mrs. Slagle's choice was black faille enhanced by choker of velvet and pearls. Her shoulder corsage was of Alba Plena camellias.

The spacious lounge, so comfortable for guest grouping, was effective in potted decoration of colocasia esculentas, and ivies.

Mrs. William Norris Wyly and Mrs. James Henry Gilfoil, III, presided at the refreshment table which was overlaid with lace cloth in leaf design and centered with silver tray of Prof. Sargent camellias. Mrs. Wyly presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Gilfoil served the individual cakes crested with pink rosebuds and green leaves.

Forty guests were entertained during the afternoon.

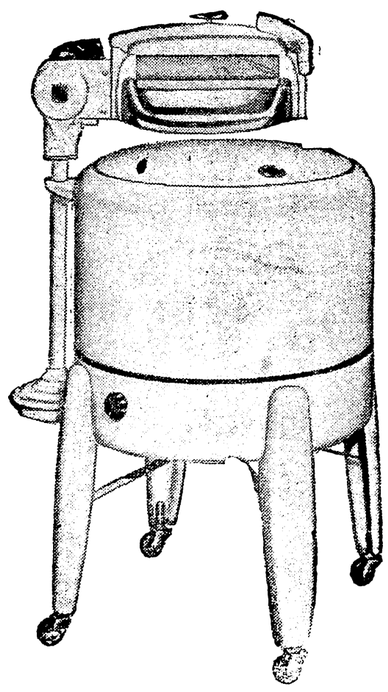

Mrs. J. Martian Hamley and mother, Mrs. F. X. Ransdell have returned from St. Martinville where they visited Mrs. Hamley's son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Bernard de Mahy and children.

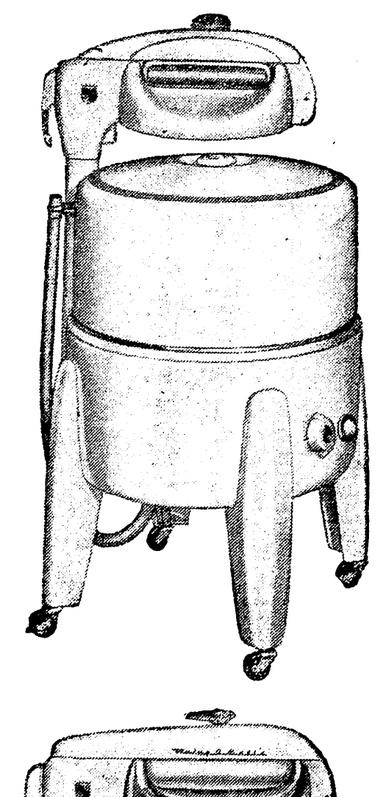

The trip was made south when Mrs. Hamley, accompanied by Mrs. Ransdell, motored to Napoleonville to take Miss Elizabeth Hamley back to resume teaching at the close of the Christmas holidays.

A prominent wedding of the New Year was that of Miss Rosalie Riley and Mr. Fredrick Fudickar, Jr., which was celebrated on Wednesday, January 24, at four-thirty o'clock in the afternoon at Saint Matthew's Church. Monseignor J. C. March officiated in the impressive double-ring service.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Joseph Riley and the late Mr. Riley, and the bride groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Fudickar.

The three alters, covered with gold alter cloths, were decorated with a profusion of white calla lilies and illumined by the soft glow of cathedral tapers which burned in graduated gold candelabra.

Serving as alter boys were Patrick James Riley brother of the bride, and Richard Burgoyne.

A concert of pre-nuptial music was rendered by Mr. Leon Hammond, who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Charles Biggar, as he sang "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus." Girl Scout News

Lucky is the troop that has a good troop commitee behind it, most of us would agree, and so we though you'd be interested in hearing about a troop that's starting out to keep that interest. At Troop 33's investiture last week the troop presented each member of the troop committee with a corsage, which her own daughter was allowed to pin on her. With such thoughtfulness shown them to start with, we think the following will enjoy being the troop committee for Troop 33: Mrs. Cecilia Coulter, chairman, Mrs. J. P. Smith, Mrs. J. C. Steele, Jr., Mrs. O. Rowland and Mrs. Walter Dean.

Under the leadership of Mrs. J. L. Field and Mrs. F. B. Davis, the following girls of the fifth grade at Mitchell school have completed Tenderfoot requirements and received their membership cards:

Barbara Blalock, Lillian Nelle Coulter, Patricia Davis, Linda Gay Dean, Ginger Downey, Lynda Estep, Margaret Field, Nelda Kay Gould, Janet Faye Gross, Rosemary Head, Peggy Ann Johnson, Joanna Lalonde, Jane Rogers, Frances Rowland, Jan Smith, Linda Steele, Mildred Way.

As part of their badge work in the community life field the girls of Troop 28, with their leaders, Mrs. Tom Davenport and Mrs. Henry Hinkle, made a trip to the courthouse to learn about the duties of the people who manage the affairs of our parish. Learning at first hand instead of from school books is not only more fun but much more effective, their leaders say.

For Brownie Scouts, activities in the community life field often consist of visits to businesses which help us in our everyday life. One such visit was that of Troop 25, fourth grade Brownie of Millsaps School, to the telephone office where they saw how our new dial system works and had a chance to ask all the questions they wanted to.

Troop 40, also fourth graders, from Sherrouse school, with their leaders, Mrs. Andy Conoway, and Mrs. R. W. Rogers, visited Bond's bakery on their last meeting day. The girls saw how bread was made and were impressed by the cleanliness and order they found in such a big kitchen.

With the icy weather last week and no school, few troops, if any, had meetings, but we hope in their days at home that the Brownie Scouts were able to use a little of the Brownie magic and that the older girls found opportunity to practice Scouting at home.

Girl Scout News

Lucky is the troop that has a good troop commitee behind it, most of us would agree, and so we though you'd be interested in hearing about a troop that's starting out to keep that interest. At Troop 33's investiture last week the troop presented each member of the troop committee with a corsage, which her own daughter was allowed to pin on her. With such thoughtfulness shown them to start with, we think the following will enjoy being the troop committee for Troop 33: Mrs. Cecilia Coulter, chairman, Mrs. J. P. Smith, Mrs. J. C. Steele, Jr., Mrs. O. Rowland and Mrs. Walter Dean.

Under the leadership of Mrs. J. L. Field and Mrs. F. B. Davis, the following girls of the fifth grade at Mitchell school have completed Tenderfoot requirements and received their membership cards:

Barbara Blalock, Lillian Nelle Coulter, Patricia Davis, Linda Gay Dean, Ginger Downey, Lynda Estep, Margaret Field, Nelda Kay Gould, Janet Faye Gross, Rosemary Head, Peggy Ann Johnson, Joanna Lalonde, Jane Rogers, Frances Rowland, Jan Smith, Linda Steele, Mildred Way.

As part of their badge work in the community life field the girls of Troop 28, with their leaders, Mrs. Tom Davenport and Mrs. Henry Hinkle, made a trip to the courthouse to learn about the duties of the people who manage the affairs of our parish. Learning at first hand instead of from school books is not only more fun but much more effective, their leaders say.

For Brownie Scouts, activities in the community life field often consist of visits to businesses which help us in our everyday life. One such visit was that of Troop 25, fourth grade Brownie of Millsaps School, to the telephone office where they saw how our new dial system works and had a chance to ask all the questions they wanted to.

Troop 40, also fourth graders, from Sherrouse school, with their leaders, Mrs. Andy Conoway, and Mrs. R. W. Rogers, visited Bond's bakery on their last meeting day. The girls saw how bread was made and were impressed by the cleanliness and order they found in such a big kitchen.

With the icy weather last week and no school, few troops, if any, had meetings, but we hope in their days at home that the Brownie Scouts were able to use a little of the Brownie magic and that the older girls found opportunity to practice Scouting at home.

THE BONHOMIE CLUB MEETS IN THE HOME OF MRS. E. L. HOSKINS

Mrs. E. L. Hoskins and Mrs. L. H. Leverett were recently hostesses to the Bonhomie Club in the home of the former on Stone Avenue

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. B Pilaut, who led the group in the reading of the collect. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and the roll called by the secretary, Mrs. Hal Laymon. Guests welcomed by the president were Mrs. R. H. Dollar and Mrs. Wayne Warren. A letter of appreciation was read by the International Relationship chairman, Mrs. H. M. Rhodes, expressing thanks for the Christmas box sent to Helsinki, Finland by the Bonhomie Club. Following the business session with reports from committees the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. Warren Breard then introduced Mrs. Dollar, who gave a vivid review of grandma Moses. Grandma Moses is the art "find" of this decade. A half dozen years ago the eighty-six year old woman was selling her pictures at country fairs, exhibiting them along with her jellies and preserves. The price of a Grandma Moses then varied with the size of the canvas, but you could buy a fairly large one for five hundred dollars. Today her paintings are exhibited in the country's finest galleries, and are sold for thousands of dollars.

By classification the pictures are primitive. Grandma Moses is untaught, indeed, she did not start painting until she was past the age when most people have retired and she paints largely from a memory that is filled with the best of life and living, and somehow, in a very simple way moves full and untouched through her hands and brush to the canvas.

After the program refreshments were served by Mrs. Hoskins and Mrs. Leverette to the following members and guests: Mrs. O. L. Lanier, Mrs. R. H. Dollar, Mrs. Roland Waldroup, Mrs. George Forman, Mrs. Wayne Warren, Mrs. Warren Breard, Mrs. Paul Bauer, Mrs. W .D. Womack, Jr., Mrs. O. Willis, Mrs. Melvin Harrison, Mrs. H. M. Rhodes, Mrs. A. J. McCready, Mrs. Robert Irby Mrs Hal Laymon and Mrs. R. B. Pilaut.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Harbuck greeted the guests at the door. The bride and groom, their mothers and the bridal attendants received the guests.

The mantel in the reception room held an artistic arrangement of pink tinted aspin with magnolia leaves. A pair of tall pink candles in silver candelabra burned at one end, casting a soft glow over the arrangement.

The bride's table in the dining room was covered with a rose pink organdy cloth made with a deep set in pleat at each corner. These pleates were artistically filled with pink perfection camellias. At one end of the table was the beautiful square tiered pink wedding cake embossed with cala lilies, roses and lilies of the valley topped with a basket of these flowers. A large pink satin bow adorned the center of the table and was flanked on each side by silver candelabra with tall pink tapers.

Mrs. H. C. McDaniel of Timpson, Texas and Mrs. Richard Menefee of Center, Texas, both aunts of the bride, served the wedding cake. Assisting in the serving courtesies were Miss Pat Boyet, Miss Jean Gentry, Miss Joyce Toler and Mrs. James Spillers. Miss Dorothy Ann Mitchell presided over the brides book.

Others assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. C. J. Phelps, Mrs. Mike John, Jr., Mrs. Frank Spivey and Mrs. Guy DuPriest.

Later the couple left for a wedding trip to New Orleans. For her going away costume, Mrs. Sanders wore a two tone brown spring suit with brown lizzard shoes and bag and a small fitted white felt hat trimmed with pearls and sequins. Her gloves were white and a white orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. C. D. McElfatrick, grandmother of the bride and Mrs. H. C. McDaniel of Timpson, Texas; Mrs. Richard Menefee of Center, Texas; Mrs. Guy Hatcher, anut of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Crawford of Memphis, Tenn.,; Mrs. C. J. Hostesses for this occasion, who greeted guests in the foyer of the club, were Miss Libby Siegle, Miss Betty Richardson and Mrs. Charles M. Brunson. Miss Siegle was charming in dusty rose and brown dinner dress. A brown taffeta dinner dress was worn by Miss Richardson. Mrs. Brunson's attire was of midnight blue satin.

The private dining room was made especailly inviting with a profusion of Governor Mouton camellias and ivy centering the entire length of the Table. Branched candelabra holding white tapers were used to complete the decoration.

Before the guests were seated the bride-elect presented her attendents with handsome miniature silver vanities. Gold tie clasps were received from Mr. Hilary Sanders by his attendants. Miss Harbuck's gift to the groom-to-be was initialed gold cuff links. The groom-elect presented his bride-to-be with a beautiful strand of pearls.

Miss Harbuck was very striking in black crepe dinner dress of ballerina length, with overskirt of black and pink nylon net. The soft net stole effect neckline was accented with a corsage of pink flowers.

THE BONHOMIE CLUB MEETS IN THE HOME OF MRS. E. L. HOSKINS

Mrs. E. L. Hoskins and Mrs. L. H. Leverett were recently hostesses to the Bonhomie Club in the home of the former on Stone Avenue.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. B Pilaut, who led the group in the reading of the collect. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and the roll called by the secretary, Mrs. Hal Laymon. Guests welcomed by the president were Mrs. R. H. Dollar and Mrs. Wayne Warren. A letter of appreciation was read by the International Relationship chairman, Mrs. H. M. Rhodes, expressing thanks for the Christmas box sent to Helsinki, Finland by the Bonhomie Club. Following the business session with reports from committees the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. Warren Breard then introduced Mrs. Dollar, who gave a vivid review of grandma Moses. Grandma Moses is the art "find of this decade. A half dozen years ago the eighty-six year old woman was selling her pictures at country fairs, exhibiting them along with her jellies and preserves. The price of a Grandma Moses then varied with the size of the canvas, but you could buy a fairly large one for five hundred dollars. Today her paintings are exhibited in the country's finest galleries, and are sold for thousands of dollars.

By classification the pictures are primitive. Grandma Moses is untaught, indeed, she did not start painting until she was past the age when most people have retired and she paints largely from a memory that is filled with the best of life and living, and somehow, in a very simple way moves full and untouched through her hands and brush to the canvas.

After the program refreshments were served by Mrs. Hoskins and Mrs. Leverette to the following members and guests: Mrs. O. L. Lanier, Mrs. R. H. Dollar, Mrs. Roland Waldroup, Mrs. George Forman, Mrs. Wayne Warren, Mrs. Warren Breard, Mrs. Paul Bauer, Mrs. W .D. Womack, Jr., Mrs. O. Willis, Mrs. Melvin Harrison, Mrs. H. M. Rhodes, Mrs. A. J. McCready, Mrs. Robert Irby Mrs Hal Laymon and Mrs. R. B. Pilaut.

Miss Beatryce Bruscato Weds Mr. Gene Joseph Uhrbach

Miss Beatryce Bruscato, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Charles Bruscato, became the bride of Mr. Gene Joseph Urbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Uhrbach, of Natchitoches, on Tuesday morning, the 26th day of December, 1950, at ten o'clock at Saint Matthew's Catholic Church at nuptial mass.

Msgr. Marsh read the double ring ceremony before the alter adorned with poinsettias, Christmas greenery, and myriads of lighted candles.

Mrs. Della Williamson, organist, played nuptial music and accompanied Miss Pat Cameron of Beaumont, Tex., who sang "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus."

Frank Vincent Scalia and Vincent Marsala, Jr., served as alter boys.

The radiant bride given in marriage by her father wore an exquisite wedding gown of white satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice, long sleeves and a gathered skirt. Deep ruffles of exquisite Chantilly lace trimmed the round yoke at the neck and trimmed the skirt. Her finger tip veil of illusion fell gracefully from a starched lace cap and she carried a bouquet of caila lilies tied with satin ribbons.

The bride's attendants, Mrs. Arnold Tucker, matron of honor, Miss Beth McGuffy maid of honor and little Dana Tucker, flower girl, were attractively gowned in April green satin gowns, styled identically, with fitted bodices, long sleeves and full hoop skirts. Their small hats of folded satin and their gloves matched their ensembles and they carried bouquets of red American Beauty roses.

Jerry West served the groom as best man. Arnold Tucker was groomsman, and Gene Flores and Buddy Bruscato were the ushers.

The bride's mother chose a becoming black dress worn with an ice blue jacket and black accessories. The groom's mother was lovely in a black dress worn with a winter white hat and white accessories. Their corsages were lavender baby orchids.

An informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a delicious luncheon was served White carnations and chrysanthemums with white candles furnished attractive decoration for the reception rooms.

The bride's table, laid with an exquisite banquet cloth, was adorned with the three-tiered wedding cake in white, topped with rose buds lilies of the valley, and tiny wedding bells. The silver coffee service was placed at one end of the table.

WARS PRODUCE DEVILS

Guy Bertini, an Italian-American, slips incognito into a small Italian village to "make a deal," on behalf of the U. S. army, with his gangster brother, Bartolomeo. The army wants Bartolomeo to "arrange" that the bridge entering town be kept intact during the American advance from the south. Bartolomeo, who ten years earlier was deported from the U. S. as head of a nationwide syndicate, is a venomous Fascist who demands that the army return him to his adopted country grant full citizenship rights, pay him some $50,000 and allow him to open disreputable hostels when the Americans enter the town.

As the army's spokesman, Guy Bertini has a fated assignment: it was he who had once aided in deporting his brother from the United States And it is this conflict of morality and immorality which supplies the main element of suspence in Elliot Arnold's new novel, "Walk With the Devil." But within this personal framework is the entire allegory of war and moralism.

In fighting a war, a general in Mr. Arnold's book declares, the only sin is defeat: "You are permitted, in time of great danger, to walk with the devil until you have crossed the bridge." There is a world of thought behind these words which Mr Arnold has only sketchily covered But he has written a provocative tale, especially timely in view of the wars and devils which cross the shaky bridges in today's uncertain world. (WALK WITH THE DEVIL. By Elliot Arnold. 266 pp. New York: Alfred A. Knopf. $3.00.)

A WORD ABOUT LEWIS

The death of Sinclair Lewis has started a rush among readers to re-discover the Nobel Prize winner's famous works. Such American familiars as Dodsworth, Arrowsmith, Elmer Gantry and the classic Babbitt are again finding their way into print and conversation. And, along with their persons, the disputable question, was Sinclair Lewis a great writer? Many readers contend he was great because he was the "bone of our bone." And just as many say he was not even a very good writer, but revolutionary thinker. Whatever the opinion, this corner pays its own humble homage to a gigantic figure: Sinclair Lewis and his Main Streets can never be divorced from the progress of American letters.

HORNS AND HUNGRY CATS

Young Man With A Horn, which Columbia recorded from the movie, has Doris Day vocalizing against the high-noted talents of trumpeter Harry James. The album's selections are as familiar as sweet potato pie, and Miss Day's renditions of such songs as "With A Song In My Heart" and "The Very Thought of You" do them justice. Her caramel coating makes easy listening As for the trumpet backgrounds, Harry James has his own inimitable style. Followers of the Bix Beiderbecke era take pleasure in snubbing what they call the "James mimicry," but in the realm of blues Mr James is too good to be ignored He's at his best in one of the album's instrumental numbers "Limehouse Blues." (YOUNG MAN WITH A HORN. Columbia 33, 45, and 78.)

Tweety Pie is rapidly becoming another national fad. "I tink I tee a putty tat" (chirped by little bird called Tweety Pie) has added more glory to Mel Blanc already famous voice. Capitol has secured his talents for a delightful children's recording, in words and music, of an episode in the life of Tweety and Sylvester the Cat. The music is pleasant, the narrative is well-times and Tweety himself will please mama and papa as much as he does your junior. TWEETY PIE. Capitol. 33 45 and 78.)

RETURN TO NANKI-POO

Reviving interest in the comic operas of Gilbert and Sullivan has evolved from occasional productions and home musicales to an amazing avalanche. Today there are performances springing throughout the country, with a production of "The Mikado" in New York leading the way.

As far as this column is concerned, any revival of Gilbert and Sullivan is always justified. While music critics in their own erudite laughed and sang every delightful score, they also predicted that such timely music was destined to go the way of most forgotten tunes. These critics were not only wrong; they overlooked the basic need for airs that grow happier the more they are played and sung.

Two portfolios of Gilbert and Sullivan, Amsco and Schirmer, are again finding themselves at the piano. Both contain the familiar selections from such classics as "Patience," "H. M. S. Pinafore" "Trial By Jury" and "The Pirates of Penzance." But the Amsco album has a continuity which lifts modern sheet music contains. Selections are divided by scenes and the necessary voices are indicated with each scene, as well as a description of the scene and the opera itself.

Probably the most pleasing idea behind the Amsco selections is that anyone can sing such parts as the modern major-general, Koko and Yum-Yum and acutually feel himself a part of the entire Gilbert and Sullivan plan. At any rate with this rousing revival—the Twin Cities can boast many a new Nanki-Poo (GILBERT AND SULLIVAN. New York: Schirmer $1.50. Amsco. $1.25.) J.

MR. AND MRS. O. M. ARNETTE CELEBRATE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

On the side of things charming was the celebration on Tuesday evening, January 23rd of the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Arnette in their home on Alexander avenue.

Beautiful gifts of flowers in shades of gold formed a lovely setting for this happy couple as they stood to receive the guests. A beautiful arrangement of golden blossoms adorned the mantel in the living room, and were reflected in the handsome mirror. A similar arrangement on the buffet in the dining room created an air of beauty and distinction.

The refreshment table overlaid with a beautiful imported lace cloth held the punch bowl and was centered with the wedding cake, placed on a large circular reflector, beautifully iced and decorated with golden roses entwined with golden ribbons. Atop this confection was a golden wedding bell with the numerals 50. Golden candles in crystal holders were placed at the four corners.

Mrs. J. B. Young in a lovely gown of soft blue with a corsage of pink perfection camellias presided over the punch bowl. MR. AND MRS. O. M. ARNETTE CELEBRATE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

On the side of things charming was the celebration on Tuesday evening, January 23rd of the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Arnette in their home on Alexander avenue.

Beautiful gifts of flowers in shades of gold formed a lovely setting for this happy couple as they stood to receive the guests. A beautiful arrangement of golden blossoms adorned the mantel in the living room, and were reflected in the handsome mirror. A similar arrangement on the buffet in the dining room created an air of beauty and distinction.

The refreshment table overlaid with a beautiful imported lace cloth held the punch bowl and was centered with the wedding cake, placed on a large circular reflector, beautifully iced and decorated with golden roses entwined with golden ribbons. Atop this confection was a golden wedding bell with the numerals 50. Golden candles in crystal holders were placed at the four corners.

Mrs. J. B. Young in a lovely gown of soft blue with a corsage of pink perfection camellias presided over the punch bowl. The boys wished to travel first and get rich second. The girls put riches first and travel second. The third wish of all was "to be an expert artist of some kind." A healthy outlook

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Evidence indicates yes. Psychologists' surveys show that playing a song, singing it or dancing to it helps you remember it better than merely listening to it. Taking part in an event recalls it better than witnessing it. However, if the incident arouses too much emotion, it usually reduces your memory of what takes place.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Not unless she wants to break up her marriage. Many parents butt in anyhow. This always causes trouble. Research shows the marriages most likely to turn out happily are those in which parents on both sides are happily married, or dead. This may sound harsh, but it tends to be true. Of course, hosts of parents help to make a marriage happy; but, in many cases, the farther away from in-laws the better for a couple.

DOROTHY DIX

Chronic Discouragers

Most Homes Cursed With One Human Wet-Blanket

DID YOU ever have to live in a house with a chronic discourager? I have and believe me, between the two I would choose a cheerful safe-cracker or an optimistic murderess every time for a steady companion.

To my thinking there is no other creature, whether two-footed or four-footed or crawling on its belly, that is so loathsome and does so much harm in the world as the human wet blanket. Certainly no one else does so much to take away the joy of living from their fellow creatures. No one else puts out the fire on so many altars. No one else pushes so many people down into failure.

DOROTHY DIX

And, alas, these pests abound in such great numbers there is scarcely a house that is not cursed by having one or more of them in it. There is nearly always a pessimistic husband, or a lachrimose wife, or a croaking old grandfather or grandmother, or an Aunt Sally who just knows that everything is going to turn out all wrong.

THEY KILL ENTHUSIASM

No matter what you want to do, they throw cold water on it until they have taken all the starch out of your plans and melted your enthusiasm. If you want to go into a new business, they prophesy failure until you lose your confidence in it yourself. If you make a new friend, they pick him or her to pieces until you wonder what made you think him or her charming. If you start on a pleasure jaunt, they recite the statistics on automobile accidents and airplane crashes and railroad wrecks and ask you if you have made your will and are prepared to meet your Maker.

If you buy a new dress or hat, they take all of your enjoyment out of it by saying that it isn't your color and the lines make you look fat. When you marry your ideal, they never rest until they wake you up from love's young dream by pointing out Maud's faults and John's shortcomings until they make you feel that you are a sucker who had a gold brick unloaded on you at the altar.

Now the Constitution guarantees everybody the right to the pursuit of happiness in his own way, and if these Gloomy Guses and Gustines get a kick out of seeing everything through dark glasses and refuse to admit that there is a ray of sunshine or a gleam of hope in the world, why, let them enjoy themselves in their blue and bilious manner so long as they let the balance of us alone. But they won't do this. They can't be satisfied until they have made everybody about them as miserable as they are themselves.

THEIR MATES SUFFER

You can always tell a woman who is married to a chronic discourager because of the way she has slacked down and the oh-what's-the-use look that she wears. Even her permanent is stringy as if it didn't have enough pep to stand up and take it any longer. And she doesn't bother to doll herself up and fix up the house and put some flavor in the cooking.

She used to be on her tip toes when she was first married, but after her husband had doused her every effort to please him she just lost heart in her job. What was the use of trying to look pretty for a man who never remarked on anything but the price of her frocks and whose only comment on a perfect dinner was that the pie crust had too much butter in it?

And by the same signs and tokens you can know the husband who is married to a chronic discourager. He is the meek, down-trodden drudge who sits on the same stool in an accounting room for forty years because his wife has melted down all his courage with her dismal prophecies of failure until he is scared to ask for a raise in salary. He started out full of hope and faith in himself. He was going to do great things. He wanted to go into business for himself. There were good openings that he wanted to take. But his wife's lack of faith in him made him lose faith in himself and he settled down into being a failure.

But it is the children who are the most pitiful victims of the chronic discourager. They are too young and ignorant to know how to discount their parents' croakings. And so, when their fathers and mothers tell them that they cannot do what other men and women have done; that there are no opportunities to rise in the world nowadays, they believe the pessimistic doctrine. It saps their courage. It quenches their ambition. It turns them into quitters who are licked before they ever begin to fight.

There are many evil men and women in the world, but I doubt if any do more harm than the chronic discouragers.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

"New Hope For Hearts"

Is The Keynote

OF THE $10,000.00 OUACHITA AND CALDWELL PARISH

NOW UNDER WAY

Among the things that money cannot buy is a new heart to replace a sick one. But money can buy new hope for our hearts, for the hearts of our family, friends, and community.

The 1951 Heart Fund, which is being conducted throughout February, offers the American public an opportunity to aid in a very practical and effective way in the fight to protect the hearts of all our citizens against heart and circulatory disease. The heart diseases directly affect at least 10,000,000 men, women and children in this country, causing some 637,000 deaths annually, or more than 44% of the total yearly death toll. Thus, since heart disease is the leading disabler and destroyer of life, it constitutes the most challenging public health problem facing America today.

To help deal with this challenge aggressively and effectively, the American Heart Association and its affiliates are seeking public support for a three-sided program of research, education, and community cardiac services.

Our goal in Ouachita and Caldwell Parishes is $10,000.00! 75% will remain in Louisiana. 25% will be sent to National Headquarters to be used in the fight on a national scale against Heart Disease.

Contributions to the 1951 Heart Fund represent, in great part, an investment in research with an expected return in basic knowledge of the causes and prevention of heart disease. A major portion of funds received from the public is earmarked for scientific investigation. During the past year, $419,000 was expended by the American Heart Association and an additional $600,000 by its affiliates on research.

Plastic Heart Containers are being distributed to all the schools in Monroe and West Monroe Monday.

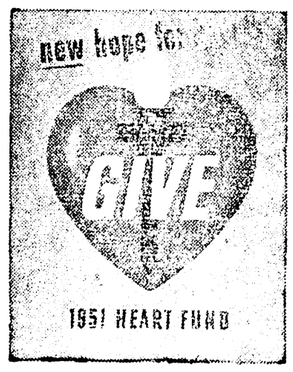

GIVE FREELY

Research support has made possible significant progress in surgical treatment of abnormalities of the heart and circulation, prevention of recurrent attacks of rheumatic fever through penicillin prophylaxis, the use of anticoagulant drugs to decrease deaths caused by coronary heart disease, ACTH and cortisone in the treatment of rheumatic fever and similar diseases, and the knowledge of cholesterol molecules in the blood, which may furnish additional clues to the cause of hardening of the arteries.

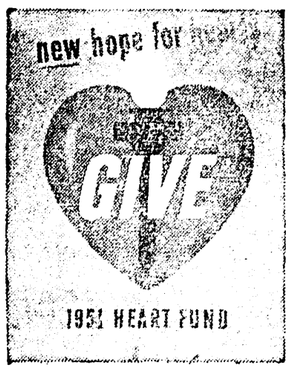

Education of professional groups and of the public, and stimulation of well-conceived programs of community cardiac services, putting to use available knowledge and existing resources, are two other basic objectives of the Association and its affiliates. Professional education brings the physician up to date regarding scientific and clinical advances, aiding him in the early recognition, diagnosis, and treatment of heart diseases. Lay education helps eliminate harmful fears, encourages the individual to seek early medical care, turns him toward rehabilitation instead of wasteful invalidism.

Continued progress in controlling heart disease will be assured through public support of the 1951 Heart Fund drive. "New Hope For Hearts" depends upon the generosity of the American heart, and the value we place upon it.

Attention, Businessmen and Individuals

In the mail Monday you will receive from the Local Headquarters a mailing piece labeled

"Progress Has a Price Tag"

LOOK FOR IT! READ IT! MAIL YOUR DONATION!

...in thoughtful Tribute!

Many persons have found deep satisfaction in making memorial contributions to the Heart Fund through the year—anytime. In this way, they have both served the living and paid thoughtful tribute to the memory of a friend, associate or relative.

Should you desire to make such a gift, you are assured that it will have enduring value. Your contribution will aid the drive materially.

An acknowledgement will be sent to the family of the person honored by the Association. Your name and the purpose of the gift will be designated on a lovely card. The amount of the gift will be held in confidence. You, as the donor, will be sent an official receipt for your tax-exempt contribution.

10,000 FOLDERS EXPLAINING THIS MEMORIAL FEATURE WILL BE SENT OUT WITH THE CITY WATER AND LIGHT BILLS

"New Hope For Hearts"

Is The Keynote

OF THE $10,000.00 OUACHITA AND CALDWELL PARISH

NOW UNDER WAY

Among the things that money cannot buy is a new heart to replace a sick one. But money can buy new hope for our hearts, for the hearts of our family, friends, and community.

The 1951 Heart Fund, which is being conducted throughout February, offers the American public an opportunity to aid in a very practical and effective way in the fight to protect the hearts of all our citizens against heart and circulatory disease. The heart diseases directly affect at least 10,000,000 men, women and children in this country, causing some 637,000 deaths annually, or more than 44% of the total yearly death toll. Thus, since heart disease is the leading disabler and destroyer of life, it constitutes the most challenging public health problem facing America today.

To help deal with this challenge aggressively and effectively, the American Heart Association and its affiliates are seeking public support for a three-sided program of research, education, and community cardiac services.

Our goal in Ouachita and Caldwell Parishes is $10,000.00! 75% will remain in Louisiana. 25% will be sent to National Headquarters to be used in the fight on a national scale against Heart Disease.

Contributions to the 1951 Heart Fund represent, in great part, an investment in research with an expected return in basic knowledge of the causes and prevention of heart disease. A major portion of funds received from the public is earmarked for scientific investigation. During the past year, $419,000 was expended by the American Heart Association and an additional $600,000 by its affiliates on research.

Plastic Heart Containers are being distributed to all the schools in Monroe and West Monroe Monday.

GIVE FREELY

Research support has made possible significant progress in surgical treatment of abnormalities of the heart and circulation, prevention of recurrent attacks of rheumatic fever through penicillin prophylaxis, the use of anticoagulant drugs to decrease deaths caused by coronary heart disease, ACTH and cortisone in the treatment of rheumatic fever and similar diseases, and the knowledge of cholesterol molecules in the blood, which may furnish additional clues to the cause of hardening of the arteries.

Education of professional groups and of the public, and stimulation of well-conceived programs of community cardiac services, putting to use available knowledge and existing resources, are two other basic objectives of the Association and its affiliates. Professional education brings the physician up to date regarding scientific and clinical advances, aiding him in the early recognition, diagnosis, and treatment of heart diseases. Lay education helps eliminate harmful fears, encourages the individual to seek early medical care, turns him toward rehabilitation instead of wasteful invalidism.

Continued progress in controlling heart disease will be assured through public support of the 1951 Heart Fund drive. "New Hope For Hearts" depends upon the generosity of the American heart, and the value we place upon it.

Attention, Businessmen and Individuals

In the mail Monday you will receive from the Local Headquarters a mailing piece labeled

"Progress Has a Price Tag"

LOOK FOR IT! READ IT! MAIL YOUR DONATION!

...in thoughtful Tribute!

Many persons have found deep satisfaction in making memorial contributions to the Heart Fund through the year—anytime. In this way, they have both served the living and paid thoughtful tribute to the memory of a friend, associate or relative.
Should you desire to make such a gift, you are assured that it will have enduring value. Your contribution will aid the drive materially.
An acknowledgement will be sent to the family of the person honored by the Association. Your name and the purpose of the gift will be designated on a lovely card. The amount of the gift will be held in confidence. You, as the donor, will be sent an official receipt for your tax-exempt contribution.

10,000 FOLDERS EXPLAINING THIS MEMORIAL FEATURE WILL BE SENT OUT WITH THE CITY WATER AND LIGHT BILLS

The congregation assembled at the site and with brief but impressive ceremony the new building program was launched. Reading left to right; W. G. "Pete" McKinney, building committee; Richard Downes, chairman advisory committee; J. C. Boies, building committee; George W. Bolton, Jr., chairman, finance committee; Dr. H. C. Chambers, chairman board of deacons; J. V. Boles, building committee; R. L. Walters, chairman building committee, W. L. Jarman, building committee; E. G. Hill, Ruston, Rev. Charles A. Baptist Ministers Keep Hardin-Simmons Records

Abilene,Tex., Feb. 3 — (AP) Records of athletics at Hardin-Simmons University are well kept —and well they should be. There are two Ph. D's doing the recording.

One is Dr. William O. Beazley, assistant to the president and Bible professor. The other is Dr. Albert Lunday. Both are ordained Baptists ministers.

Dr. Beazley not only does statistical work for the athletic teams but participates in intramural sports on the campus. The 35-year-old minister is quite a competitor, too. He won 14 letters—three in football, basketball, track and decathlon and two in baseball -at Bridgewater College of Virginia.

Despite his athletic activities and the fact that he holds services in some Baptist church every Sunday, Doctor Beazley also finds time to officiate at high school basketball games.

The mocking bird was replaced by the Carolina wren as South Carolina's state bird in 1948.

EVANGELIST TO URGE BUILDING

Rev. McLelland, Prominent Baptist Leader, To Stimulate Campaign

Rev. J. F. McLelland, from the state Baptist headquarters in Alexandria, will preach at Ridge Avenue Baptist Church at 11 a.m. today, starting off a campaign to raise funds for a large addition to the educational building. His theme will be "Doing Big Things for a Big God."

He is regarded as one of the outstanding state evangelists of Louisiana and a leader of men of unusually wide influence. It is said of him that he has stimulated church expansions in Louisiana that is not surpassed probably not equalled in the annals of the state.

Ridge Avenue Church plans an addition to the education building that will add at least 15 rooms. The campaign is all set to go and the building committee is named. It is headed by Rose Ferguson and other members are: G. M .Anderson, Orell Hayton, M. R. Coon, W. F. Everett. Hugh Balfour and Edward De Loach.

Presbyterian Men To Elect Officers

The Men's Club of First Presbyterian Church will have second meeting of 1951 on Thursday night, February 8, at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall.

Joe Trammell, club president, would like to have a large attendance. Program will be in charge by R. E. (Bob) Ellington, chairman and M. L. (Pete) Simmons. On refreshment committee is Aage Glud, chairman and Tom Moore.

E. A. Porter, Jr., secreatry and treasurer, urges members of the club to attend as there will be election of officers, for 1951-52.

FAMILY RELATIONS

More and more we see young people beginning their married lives in the homes of their parents. Circumstances of one sort or another compel this, while both families silently hope for the day when the new home can be estabilised and each family enjoy the peace and privacy they need. Meantime, adjustments must be made. There must be acceptance, affectionate consideration and cooperation from all concerned.

The younger people should be first to shoulder the burdens of organization and routine and so arrange their schedules of work and play as to make the least possible inconvenience for the older ones. It is no light matter for elderly people who have reared a family and settled in a way of life to take up once more the duties involved in sharing home with the younger generation and the grandchildren. That they do so should be a cause for gratitude and affectionate service from the younger set.

Children just beginning to get about the house are a constant care and if at all possible that should not fall on the grandmother. She should be spared as much as possible the wear and tear of rearing a third generation child. This requires tact on the young mother's art and some gentle resignation on the elder's side.

The house is set according to the tastes, needs and the memories of the elders. The bird in his cage, the cat on its cushion, the old dog on the mat are emotional ties that must be regarded as such by the younger group. The favorite chair, the meal hours, the visitors, the china dog on the end table and the book topped with the spectacles are things woven tightly into the lives of the elders, have more than surface meanings to them and none at all to their grandchildren. This is where the young mother must exercise all her tact and wisdom, call up all the affection attainable to find a working balance between the habits of the elders and the ways of a runabout child.

The young wife must remember that her husband loves his people and they him, and he on his side must remember that his in-laws gave him this love of his life. Both can, if they but will, let their child bridge the gap between the generations with love for all. There is enough love in a little child to draw and hold a family together, to allow them to make the little sacrifices of habit and personal feeling that allow sharing and working and living together to be at least comfortable if not joyful.

To the young I would say, pay your debt of love to your elders. To the elders, keep loving, forgiving and hopeful, remembering that age needs the tonic that youth offers in its courage and its forward look.

3,700-YEAR-OLD BULLETIN FOUND

Farm Publication Tells Farmers How To Sow, Irrigate, Harvest

Philadelphia, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A 3,700-year-old farm bulletin has been found in Iraq archaeologists for two universities reported today.

It is the oldest farm bulletin ever found. The document told farmers who lived many years ago how to sow their crops, how to irrigate, how to handle field mice and how to harvest.

The findings were reported by the University Museum of the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Chicago Oriental Institute.

The archaeologists found the bulletin near Nippur, Iraq. It was written in cuneiform script on a clay tablet in the Sumerian language which can be translated only by some dozen scholars.

The Sumerians, who developed the first civilization which arose in Mesopotamia, were principally an agricultural people with their religious capital at Nippur, 100 miles south of modern Bagdad.

The archaeologists uncovered five temples to Enlil, chief god of the Sumerians, at Nippur. And they found the farm bulletin which told the farmer to "keep an eye on the man who puts in the seed, have him put the seed in two fingers deep uniformly."

The sowing, according to the bulletin, was to be done with a seeder, a plow with an attachment which carried the seed from a container through a narrow funnel down into the furrow.

The farmer was told to plow eight furrows to each strip of 19½ feet. Four types of furrows were explained.

"On the day when the seed breaks through the ground," the farmer was advised to say a prayer to the goddess of the field mice and other vermin that might harm the grain.

The bulletin said it was time to irrigate when the grain had grown so that it filled the narrow bottom of the furrows. And the farmer was advised to take care lest the grain, when ready for harvesting, bend under its own weight.

The bulletin concludes with these words: "Cut it at the right moment."

Bible Comment

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Paul once reported a saying of Jesus unwritten elsewhere, or expressed it as a summing up of what Jesus had said and taught, when he admonished the Christians of Ephesus in his farewell address to "remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.' "

There, in a sentence, is the contrast with a world whose daily life largely concerns the business of getting.

Men try to soften that contrast by talking about "enlightened self-interest," and by emphasizing the advantages of a free, competitive system, sometimes more competitive than free.

Certainly the system is more advantageous than any other system to which society has yet attained, and it should not be sacrificed for any system of totalitarianism and dictatorship.

But the contrast between the best that society has developed, and what the coming of the kingdom of God would mean — a world in which men actually believed and practiced that it is more blessed to give than to receive—is so great as to raise the question whether Christianity can really be made to work in a Christian society.

I think it would help if, with greater clarity, we saw both the goal and the problem. Many utterly ignore the goal, and though they pray daily, "Thy kingdom come," speak and act as if we had already attained it. Others sometimes speak and act as if by some religious hocus-pocus, or organizational changes, we could suddenly bring in that kingdom without effecting comparable changes in the hearts of men.

Some years ago one of our great church councils debated for some days the profit motive, and on the closing day, when many delegates had already gone home, passed by an unimpressive majority a resolution roundly condemning it. It was a futile gesture, and one that could only lead to antagonizing reactions and confusion.

It is obvious that the noblest Christian lives, such as those of the late Jane Addams, and Grenfell of Labrador, are lived upon the basis of something higher than the profit motive; but it is equally obvious that the businessman when he goes from his church on Sunday to his business on Monday has to make a profit, or go out of business.

He may of course have a higher motive, and may make his business, as many have, even in a competitive world, serve Christian ends. He is, however, part of a society and a system within the orbit of which his business must be conducted; we are all in a way parts of our environment and subject to at least some of its limitations.

So, in a sense, our problem becomes that of putting into a world still so largely un-Christian as much Christian living as we can. One might compare Christians to those living in a house while it is being made over and rebuilt.

There is no world to which we can move out, while the remaking process goes on, and much adaption is inevitable. Yet great, effective transformations can be made, if the Christian goal and the Christian purpose are never forgotten.

Baptist Ministers Keep Hardin-Simmons Records

Abilene,Tex., Feb. 3 — (AP) Records of athletics at Hardin-Simmons University are well kept —and well they should be. There are two Ph. D's doing the recording.
One is Dr. William O. Beazley, assistant to the president and Bible professor. The other is Dr. Albert Lunday. Both are ordained Baptists ministers.
Dr. Beazley not only does statistical work for the athletic teams but participates in intramural sports on the campus. The 35-year-old minister is quite a competitor, too. He won 14 letters—three in football, basketball, track and decathlon and two in baseball -at Bridgewater College of Virginia.
Despite his athletic activities and the fact that he holds services in some Baptist church every Sunday, Doctor Beazley also finds time to officiate at high school basketball games.

He is regarded as one of the outstanding state evangelists of Louisiana and a leader of men of unusually wide influence. It is said of him that he has stimulated church expansions in Louisiana that is not surpassed probably not equalled in the annals of the state.
Ridge Avenue Church plans an addition to the education building that will add at least 15 rooms. The campaign is all set to go and the building committee is named. It is headed by Rose Ferguson and other members are: G. M .Anderson, Orell Hayton, M. R. Coon, W. F. Everett. Hugh Balfour and Edward De Loach.

FAMILY RELATIONS

More and more we see young people beginning their married lives in the homes of their parents. Circumstances of one sort or another compel this, while both families silently hope for the day when the new home can be established and each family enjoy the peace and privacy they need. Meantime, adjustments must be made. There must be acceptance, affectionate consideration and cooperation from all concerned.
The younger people should be first to shoulder the burdens of organization and routine and so arrange their schedules of work and play as to make the least possible inconvenience for the older ones. It is no light matter for elderly people who have reared a family and settled in a way of life to take up once more the duties involved in sharing home with the younger generation and the grandchildren. That they do so should be a cause for gratitude and affectionate service from the younger set.
Children just beginning to get about the house are a constant care and if at all possible that should not fall on the grandmother. She should be spared as much as possible the wear and tear of rearing a third generation child. This requires tact on the young mother's art and some gentle resignation on the elder's side.
The house is set according to the tastes, needs and the memories of the elders. The bird in his cage, the cat on its cushion, the old dog on the mat are emotional ties that must be regarded as such by the younger group. The favorite chair, the meal hours, the visitors, the china dog on the end table and the book topped with the spectacles are things woven tightly into the lives of the elders, have more than surface meanings to them and none at all to their grandchildren. This is where the young mother must exercise all her tact and wisdom, call up all the affection attainable to find a working balance between the habits of the elders and the ways of a runabout child.
The young wife must remember that her husband loves his people and they him, and he on his side must remember that his in-laws gave him this love of his life. Both can, if they but will, let their child bridge the gap between the generations with love for all. There is enough love in a little child to draw and hold a family together, to allow them to make the little sacrifices of habit and personal feeling that allow sharing and working and living together to be at least comfortable if not joyful.
To the young I would say, pay your debt of love to your elders. To the elders, keep loving, forgiving and hopeful, remembering that age needs the tonic that youth offers in its courage and its forward look.

3,700-YEAR-OLD BULLETIN FOUND

Farm Publication Tells Farmers How To Sow, Irrigate, Harvest

Philadelphia, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A 3,700-year-old farm bulletin has been found in Iraq archaeologists for two universities reported today.
It is the oldest farm bulletin ever found. The document told farmers who lived many years ago how to sow their crops, how to irrigate, how to handle field mice and how to harvest.
The findings were reported by the University Museum of the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Chicago Oriental Institute.
The archaeologists found the bulletin near Nippur, Iraq. It was written in cuneiform script on a clay tablet in the Sumerian language which can be translated only by some dozen scholars.
The Sumerians, who developed the first civilization which arose in Mesopotamia, were principally an agricultural people with their religious capital at Nippur, 100 miles south of modern Bagdad.
The archaeologists uncovered five temples to Enlil, chief god of the Sumerians, at Nippur. And they found the farm bulletin which told the farmer to "keep an eye on the man who puts in the seed, have him put the seed in two fingers deep uniformly."
The sowing, according to the bulletin, was to be done with a seeder, a plow with an attachment which carried the seed from a container through a narrow funnel down into the furrow.
The farmer was told to plow eight furrows to each strip of 19½ feet. Four types of furrows were explained.
"On the day when the seed breaks through the ground," the farmer was advised to say a prayer to the goddess of the field mice and other vermin that might harm the grain.
The bulletin said it was time to irrigate when the grain had grown so that it filled the narrow bottom of the furrows. And the farmer was advised to take care lest the grain, when ready for harvesting, bend under its own weight.
The bulletin concludes with these words: "Cut it at the right moment."

Bible Comment

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Paul once reported a saying of Jesus unwritten elsewhere, or expressed it as a summing up of what Jesus had said and taught, when he admonished the Christians of Ephesus in his farewell address to "remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.' "
There, in a sentence, is the contrast with a world whose daily life largely concerns the business of getting.
Men try to soften that contrast by talking about "enlightened self-interest," and by emphasizing the advantages of a free, competitive system, sometimes more competitive than free.
Certainly the system is more advantageous than any other system to which society has yet attained, and it should not be sacrificed for any system of totalitarianism and dictatorship.
But the contrast between the best that society has developed, and what the coming of the kingdom of God would mean — a world in which men actually believed and practiced that it is more blessed to give than to receive—is so great as to raise the question whether Christianity can really be made to work in a Christian society.
I think it would help if, with greater clarity, we saw both the goal and the problem. Many utterly ignore the goal, and though they pray daily, "Thy kingdom come," speak and act as if we had already attained it. Others sometimes speak and act as if by some religious hocus-pocus, or organizational changes, we could suddenly bring in that kingdom without effecting comparable changes in the hearts of men.
Some years ago one of our great church councils debated for some days the profit motive, and on the closing day, when many delegates had already gone home, passed by an unimpressive majority a resolution roundly condemning it. It was a futile gesture, and one that could only lead to antagonizing reactions and confusion.
It is obvious that the noblest Christian lives, such as those of the late Jane Addams, and Grenfell of Labrador, are lived upon the basis of something higher than the profit motive; but it is equally obvious that the businessman when he goes from his church on Sunday to his business on Monday has to make a profit, or go out of business.
He may of course have a higher motive, and may make his business, as many have, even in a competitive world, serve Christian ends. He is, however, part of a society and a system within the orbit of which his business must be conducted; we are all in a way parts of our environment and subject to at least some of its limitations.
So, in a sense, our problem becomes that of putting into a world still so largely un-Christian as much Christian living as we can. One might compare Christians to those living in a house while it is being made over and rebuilt.
There is no world to which we can move out, while the remaking process goes on, and much adaption is inevitable. Yet great, effective transformations can be made, if the Christian goal and the Christian purpose are never forgotten.

To Make Your Car Last See Your Auto Doctor

PHYSICAL EXAM FOR CARS: The Proving Stand helps the doctor diagnose the automobile's ills with scientific precision.

By Richard Kleiner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

New York— (NEA) —If Otis Presbrey has his way, auto mechanics will soon be telling you: "Fill your gas tank twice a week and see your auto doctor twice a year."

Presbrey is the leading desciple of preventive maintenance in caring for autos, busses and trucks. He feels that you take your body to a doctor for a check-up, so you won't get sick, and you should do the same for your car. With the probable slowdown of vehicle production in the emergency, it's more important than ever to keep vehicles in top running condition.

An eager man with a quick wit, Otis Presbrey has done everything in the automotive business from driving racing cars to writing copy for auto ads. He became convinced that too many inexpert experts, were tinkering with the nation's vehicles.

So he invented a big gadget made up of a lot of little gadgets—he doesn't like the word gadget but admits it's the best way to describe them — called an Otis proving stand.

It diagnoses a car's ills scientifically. It uses such things as magnetic particle inspection — which can see the slightest break in material and thus anticipates big troubles. It uses formulas like "rate of change of speed measured in feet per second per second"—which is Presbrey's way of figuring the exact pick-up of a car.

The army is using Presbrey's invention to test some of its equipment. He's been hired by owners of taxi fleets and utilities trucks, to keep their vehicles running in top condition. He estimates that proper preventive maintenance can save any vehicle owner 12½ per cent in service fees, gas consumption, tire wear, batteries and loss of use of the car.

'Waiting until something goes wrong is the expensive way to run a car," says Presbrey. "Then you get some mechanic who uses the 'by-guess-and-by-God' method of fixing it, and you may get it fixed and maybe you don't."

If you want to make your car last longer — and he thinks all cars, if preventive maintenance is used, can last double the normal trouble-free 35,000 miles — do these:

1. Keep the tire pressure at the exact figure — no more, no less.
2. Criss-cross tires every so often, using the spare.
3. Keep speed down if you're driving on synthetic rubber.
4. Make sure your wheels are aligned properly.
5. Fill your gas tank often—air in the tank mixes with the gas, and air contains moisture which is harmful to the motor.
6. Make sure all battery connections are tight and corrosion-free.
7. Check brakes every 10,000 miles.
8. Have a complete change of grease in the rear end and transmission twice a year.
9. Have a chassis lubrication every 5,000 miles.
10. And have a complete check-up twice a year.

This year, a New York show, the Transport Vehicle Show, is being run just for the purpose of encouraging vehicle conservation.

Red-Trained Witch Doctors In Africa

By Leon Dennen
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

Washington —(NEA)— Moscow-trained Africans, masking as witch doctors, are playing on ancient superstitutions and modern grievances to foment discord among the workers mining uranium in the Belgian Congo for A-bomb production.

This sabotage activity was related by labor leaders who recently made a study of conditions in central ported by French anti-Communist Africa. It is confirmed by sources in Washington in a position to know the facts. It is confirmed also by J. Van Bilsen, editor of the Belgian-African Review, and Father S. J. Van Wing, Colonial Advisor to the Belgian government.

By paralyzing production of uranium, Moscow would hit the north American allies at a vulnerable spot. President Truman recently said that the Congo was ium ore. It also supplies 43 per cent of our cobalt, needed for heat-resistant metals used in jet planes.

Last year 60 Congo natives were reported to have received instruction at the Lenin university in Moscow, famous training school for Cominform propagandists and saboteurs. They work under instructions from the Soviet legation at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, alleged headquarters for the Cominform espionage apparatus in Africa.

Native sorcerers and witch doctors, actually trained in Moscow or in league with Red agents, are organizing a network of secret sects among the natives through which they feed anti-European and anti-white propaganda to the local population.

The managers of the Shinkolobwe mines have repeatedly been confronted by a new pattern of labor demonstrations believed organized by Russian agents. These take the form of seemingly spontaneous native gatherings, where syncopated music and plaintive melodies played on the flute exalt the natives to disobediance.

Belgian security police have been singularly unable to lay their hands on the witch doctors who America's biggest supplier of uran- instigate these demonstrations among native uranium miners.

The pro-Commie World Federation of Trade Unions is active at the Katanga mines, where strategic pitchblend is mined, and at Leopoldville, principal seaport of the Congo from which uranium ore flows to the United States.

Members of the French delegation said the Reds were exploiting native superstitutions, abject poverty and the rigid color bar. Stringent measures taken by the Belgian Service of National Security had failed to prevent the development of a vast political-religious movement among the natives.

Uranium ore from the Katanga district is of high grade and furnishes about 90 per cent of the world's radium. The rich Shinkolobwe mine, 100 miles northwest of Elizabethville, produces most of the uranium ore for the U. S. No figures are available on current uranium production in the Congo but in 1945 production was estimated at 10,000 tons.

Returns To Broadway Kicking High As Ever

CHARLOTTE GREENWOOD BACKSTAGE: "Little by little some bits of my old routine injected themselves into the role."

By Jack Price Gabriel

New York —(NEA) —When a Broadway star hasn't shed her light above the marquee of a New York theater in 24 years, the public doesn't expect her to return in the leading role of Cole Porter's latest musical comedy, but that's what Charlotte Greenwood did in "Out of This World."

The tall, slender comedienne, remembered by an older generation in "Linger Longer Letty" and a subsequent series of "Letty" shows, is back after almost a quarter of a century, looking about as she did when she left. Blonde and agile as ever, she's approaching 60 with the vitality of a woman half her age.

Getting her new part was a surprise to her.

"My phone rang one day in California," she explained, "and Cole Porter asked me to come over and read for his new show. I expected it to be a small role, but it was the feminine lead—that of Juno, wife of the god Jupiter."

Hearing her read was all Porter needed; she was signed.

This isn't a comeback in the normal sense. Miss Greenwood has never been out of the theater. She has been away from Broadway, but during those years she's toured the country in several plays and has made many motion pictures.

Wherever she toured, which includes most of the English-speaking world, she's put on an unadvertised performance of songs and dances at the end of the play.

When "Out of This World" went into rehearsal, changes were made in her part which had been written originally as straight comedy.

"I didn't expect to wind up doing the same things I was known for after the first world war," Miss Greenwood said. "But little by little some bits of my old routines injected themselves into the role until now Juno's really a lot like Letty, only more divine, of course, being a goddess."

The rehearsals were fine, and so was the out-of-town tryout. But when "Out of This World" opened in New York, Miss Greenwood experienced the most nerve-wracking moments of opening-night terror she'd ever had.

"I'd been away so many years," she said, with a wry face at the memory of her ordeal. "I very suddenly realized that New York audiences would not remember me as did people on the road where I'd played more recently. To them, my comedy might be merely old-fashioned and unamusing. My feeling was something like a soldier in combat; I was scared stiff, but I had to go on just the same."

The ovation that greeted her first entrance was utterly unexpected.

"It was so touching, I wanted to stand there and cry," she said. "I guess I did, a little, because then I knew they were still glad to see an old friend. It was the most exciting, heart-warming feeling in the world—that and the knowledge that I'm making new friends, too, of the young people."

"And the best part of it is, they've been doing it ever since," said Miss Greenwood, grinning happily. "I was really assured when two women walked by my dressing room after the first night and I heard one say to the other: 'That old gal is just as good as ever.'"

$250,000 MOLDY MONEY PUZZLING

Moth-Eaten, Mutilated Bills Turn Up At A U. S. Reserve Bank

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 3.—(AP)—It sounds a little like a dime thriller, but the government is trying today to solve the case of the moldy money.

A lot more than dimes are involved. It's a matter of $250,000, which popped up at a federal reserve bank in moth-eaten, mutilated and moldy condition.

The man who brought in the money, seeking to exchange it for crisp new bills, says the money represents savings, that he had been "saving for quite some time."

The government wants to know where he got the money. And, besides said Uncle Sam, the gentleman in question owes the sum of $208,312 in back income taxes.

The man with the moldy money is Peter Joseph, 46 a former pool room operator in this hard coal city of 20,000 in eastern Pennsylvania.

He said he took the money to the federal reserve bank at Philadelphia "several days ago." It was "earmarked for taxes," he said, and besides, he wanted to pay some debts.

A government official, who refused permission to use his name, brought the strange case to light yesterday. The official said the bills Joseph took to the bank "were mutilated to the extent that it would have been hard to pass them."

"They probably would have been suspected of being counterfeit," the official added. "They had no doubt been buried a long time."

Joseph, who was named in the income tax lien as "Peter Yosief," said he was advised three years ago of a "deficiency in income taxes." He said he'd been "trying ever since to learn the exact amount so I could square up."

He gave up the operation of his pool room some time ago, and he wouldn't say where or how he had kept the moldy money.

The internal revenue department declined official comment and officers of the federal reserve bank refused to discuss the case at all, saying any transactions in which money is offered for exchange is a private affair.

In its tax lien the internal revenue department claimed Joseph owes income taxes from 1944 through 1950.

B-36 Is Vastly Improved, Still A Big Controversy

Big Bomber Is One Major Weapon Reds Don't Have—But Critics Call It False Sense Of Security

Washington—(NEA))—The giant B-36 bomber is the one major weapon which Uncle Sam has which the Russians do not possess. Even if U. S. ground forces should suffer maximum disasters inAsia and Europe, with a resultant world divided into two hostile hemispheres, the B-36 would give the U. S. a striking force capable of bringing Russia to its knees with A-bombs.

The Russians are well aware of this. And as a result the giant plane is considered to be a major deterrent to any Russian declaration of war.

Six of the $4,700,000 bombers have just made the first B-36 mission to Europe, fying from Texas to England on what the air force called "routine training."

Despite the tremendous advantage that this plane now appears to give to U. S. defenses, it continues to be one of the most controversial airplanes ever built. When it was first put on the drawing board in 1941 by Consolidated Aircraft designers it even caused controversy in the army air corps. The opposition held that a plane that big just wasn't practical.

In the summer of 1949 the B-36 was the main cause of the open and bitter feud between the air force and navy which inspired a full-dress congressional investigation.

Today, although its critics grudgingly admit that the plane has been improved tremendously in the last couple of years, they claim that it gives the country a false sense of security.

Since the bitter fight between the navy and air force broke out into the open the air force has been quietly doing everything possible to improve the plane's performance. When it was first flown it lumbered through the air at something less than 200 miles per hour. Today, having had four jet engines added to the six standard, pusher-type engines, it has a top speed of close to 450 miles-per-hour.

It was first hailed as a bomber that could carry a five-ton bomb load 10,000 miles. It is now capable of that and more. Maximum bomb load is now given as 42 tons, easily the equivalent of much more than one atomic bomb.

When its 10 engines are operating they are about equal to the pull of nine locomotives traveling at top speed. Its bomb load is more than the total weight of a fully-loaded B-24 Liberator. Its present, proved range of more than 10,000 miles is considered to be about twice the range of the best long-range Russian bombers, which are copies of America's B-29s.

Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey, air force director of operations, says that the morale of the 15-man crews in the B-36 groups is extremely high. He says that the men are completely sold on the performance and flight characteristics of the plane. Of the millions of miles flown by B-36s, only three have crashed. Although exact statistics aren't available, this safety record, it is said, compares favorably with any airplane the air force has developed.

After the congressional probe into the B-36, an independent weapons system evaluations group was set up to try to determine just whether or not the plane was a turkey. Results of this study are a secret but the air force is now buying an unrevealed large number of the bombers, with deliveries expected during the next couple of years.

According to air force spokesmen, the B-36 has proved itself so satisfactory in the past few months there has been some revised thinking on just what big bomber will be developed as the successor to it. There is a program under way to build prototypes of a B-52 which would have the load-carrying ability and range of the B-36, but would have all jet engines and be in the 600-mile-per-hour class.

However, there is consideration being given to modifying the basic B-36 design by adding swept-back wings and using either jets or turbo-props—a combination of jet and propeller power.

In explaining the amazing size of the monster B-36, the air force points out that a 600-room hotel could be heated by the plane's anti-icing equipment. The volume of the bomber is 18,000 cubic feet, equal to the volume of three average five-room houses. An automobile could go around the world 16 times and then visit every state in the union with the 21,116 gallons of gas which the wing tanks hold.

When the air force reaches its full strength, under present plans, it will have about eight groups of B-36s, with 30 planes to a group.

Valise Crashed, He Didn't

CAPT. FRED CLARK: At 60, he has no talent for loafing.

By Richard Kleiner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

New York —(NEA) — Somewhere between Frankurt and Berlin, airline pilot Capt. Fred V. Clark reached for his briefcase. It was on the bottom of a pile of luggage, and a valice fell off the top of the stack and cracked his collar-bone.

That accident happened last October, just about two months before Clark retired, at the age of 60, as a pilot for Pan American World Airways. It was the only accident Shorty Clark ever had in 33 years of flying.

In the 33 years, including 13 in the navy, Clark flew more than 21,450 hours. Statisticians estimate he covered more than 3,000,000 miles. And, in all that time, he's never had an accident, nor has any passenger ever so much as suffered a scratch.

Shorty—he's only five feet four—insists that his safety record is not unusual. He says there are a lot of pilots who fly just as carefully and safely as he does.

"Most accidents," he says, "are caused by carelessness. The best safety precaution is for a pilot to follow every instruction of the C. A. A. and the airline. Especially, never be afraid to turn back."

On one flight, a passenger noted oil leaking over the wing. Clark's instruments soon showed the leakage, and he immediately turned back to the airport he had taken off from.

"I probably could have made it to where we were headed," he says, "but the regulations say make for the nearest airport when something goes wrong. I didn't try to make it, but turned right around and went back."

The trouble turned out to be simple—the cap on the oil tank hadn't been screwed on tight.

Other safety rules that Clark feels are necessary and proper are the cockpit check-up, no overloading and figuring out a "point of no return."

The cockpit check-up is a form for the pilot and co-pilot to make a pre-take-off check on all equipment. He remembers one domestic airliner that cracked up when the controls locked, and he feels pretty sure that the pilot should have discovered that if he'd made a proper cockpit check-up.

"Overloading," he says, "is a mistake. If anything goes wrong, you don't stand a chance in an overloaded plane. That's what caused the crash of that plane from Puerto Rico last year. The pilot couldn't get back down because his plane was overloaded."

The "point of no return" is a spot, plotted by the navigator, beyond which the plane can't go back where it started with the gas it carries. It's important to know that, so the plane can go back if anything goes wrong. Clark thinks the Bermuda Sky Queen, which was lost at sea, ran into head winds and couldn't make the trip. The pilot should have turned back before he reached his "point of no return."

Now that he's retired, Shorty Clark isn't going to loaf. He's applied for a safety inspectorship with the C. A. A., and, as a retired navy warrant officer, he wouldn't be surprised at a call from Uncle Sam.

"Loafing is a fine art," says Clark, "and I don't have the talent for it."

TEEN TALK

BY VIVIAN BROWN

Sometimes the comic Valentine can be very unfunny. Particularly when the sender uses that mode of communication to settle a grudge or just to be spiteful.

Usually the comic Valentine is directed at a girl or boy who is particularly shy and therefore doesn't have many friends. Sometimes there is a drawback such as protruding teeth, large nose or some other physical impediment which makes the subject particularly self-conscious.

Instead of being a target for all the mean little darts that so-called Valentine's might send, these shy people could get special happiness from the right kind of Valentine.

If you really want to be a girl scout or boy scout for a day, do your good deed by sending a nice message to some boy or girl who might not get one otherwise. You can't get a more tremendous lift yourself, if you are the right type, than the pleasure of observing the glow that your less fortunate classmate or neighborhood companion might get from receiving that unexpected card.

Sometimes kids who have been endowed with a few advantages over their playmates do not realize how lonely it can be on the other side of the lawn. Make it a point to cheer a friend this Valentine's Day with a nice greeting, and if you plan a party try to round up the kids who never seem to get around. If you really make a point of it, you'll find it easy to pair off a couple who might be in the same boat of unpopularity.

A Valentine party is the ideal get-together for young people. You can do it on a shoestring—perhaps on your allowance. Or you can have your own group contribute to the cost of the shindig.

"Juliets and Ro-me-os.
Bring your arrows and your bows.
To Susie Smith's romantic fete,
Valentine's Day up the street.
No William Tell You have to be
To get that girl (or guy) to fall for thee."

Dream up your own games. Your crowd probably has preferences. Quizzes always are fun and if you play a quiz game stick to romantic figures and situations to keep in the mood of the day.

Let your buffet table have a Valentine flair, red candles, heart motifs, etc. A good inexpensive menu could be: Chili con carne, cranberry hearts (shape them with the cookie cutter) and a nice big Valentine cake or fruit.

This is an inexpensive, easy and satisfying menu to whip up. The cake is easy to make with one of the ready-mix packages and the chili is a cinch. There is lots of debate about chili but here is a good recipe from a Tennessee backwoods chef that should really make your gang kick their heels in delight. After the chili is ready, if you want it hotter, add more cayenne pepper. This recipe serves eight. Double it for sixteen. Or serve it on spaghetti and noodles and you can use this amount for twelve. Here goes:

Chili Con Carne

Soak one and one-half pounds of pinto beans for several hours. (If you do not have pintos use cranberry or kidney beans—not as good however.)

Melt one and one-half tablespoon of butter and three tablespoons of cooking oil in a large skillet. Add a large onion diced fine, 1½ clove of diced garlic and brown. Add one and one-half pounds of ground round steak and cook until brown, letting it form into little clumps about the size of beans as it cooks. Stir occasionally.

Add 2 bay leaves, one small can of tomatoes, one tablespoon of tomato paste, a pinch of oregano, ¾ of a teaspoon of celery salt, 3 tablespoons of chili powder, ¾ teaspoon of cayenne pepper, ¾ teaspoon of salt. Cover with water. Bring to boil. Then turn down to simmer 2½ hours. Add the beans and cook an additional half hour. The beans should be good and firm when you add them to the meat.

Serve chili with salted crackers (and chopped raw onion, if you like). "Chili Mac" — (chili con carne over spaghetti) is delicious and a meat stretcher.

SPACE SHIPS: Eternal Flight Envisioned With Electric Wind Power

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Writer)

New York — Electric winds to drive interplanetary space ships are proposed by Prof. Hermann Oberth, the foremost living authority on rocket ships.

Electric winds are the invisible particles which fly off from an electrode, while electric current is on. An electrode is a piece of metal, frequently copper or silver, capable of carrying a lot of current.

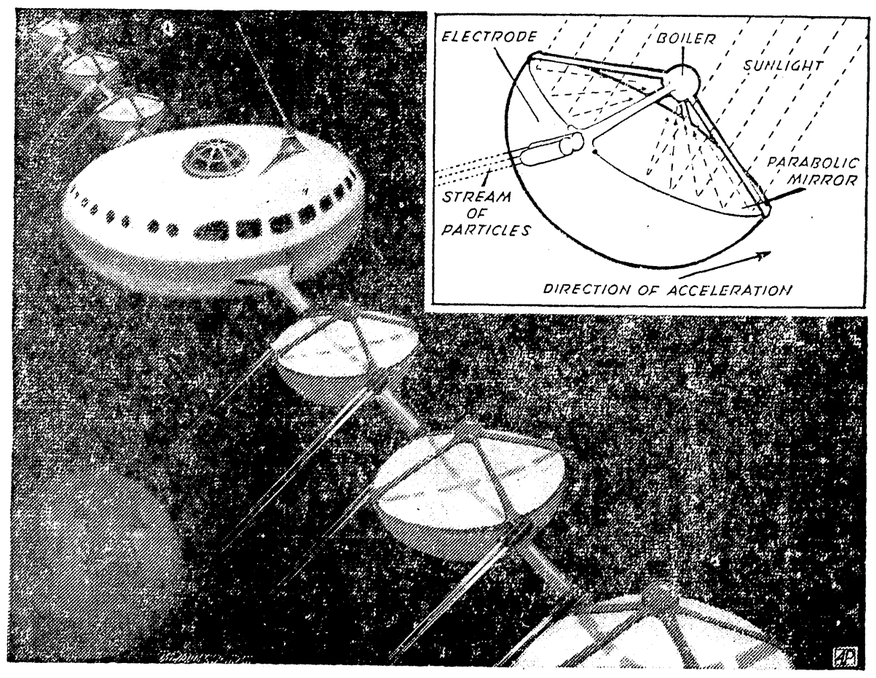

The particles are atomic in size, which means that they fly off from electrodes for years, without an apparent dimunition in the size of the piece of metal.

That fact is well known. But Oberth proposes its use in a new and startling way. He is in Germany, where he is honorary president of the German Space Travel Society. His engineering plans are told in the magazine Radio-Electronics.

Candle Demonstrates Winds

You can, Oberth says, set the sharp point of an electrode close to a lighted candle. When the current is turned on, a wind from the candle-point will blow out the flame.

The wind is ordinary air pushed by the stream of invisible atomic particles from the electrode point. This sort of wind, Professor Obert says, is of no use for driving a ship in the earth's atmosphere, because the wind is too weak.

FLYING SAUCERS—Artist's conception of how the proposed Oberth space ship would appear navigating in space. Inset shows theory of one of the propelling units.

But out in space, with no atmosphere to retard them, these particles will take off much faster. Each tiny takeoff will give a kick, in the opposite direction, to the electrode from which the particle comes.

Would Use Rocket Power

Now comes the daring new thought. The faster the take-off of a particle, the harder is its thrust or kick. And if you get the particles moving fast enough Oberth says they will drive a ship despite their scarcity.

The electrodes must have an endless supply of electric current. Oberth's design shows this can be done by using the sun's heat on bowl-shaped mirrors to generate electricity.

In interplanetary space there is no gravitation, a fact which Oberth uses cleverly to build a ship of light weight, and able to keep flying, in any direction it chooses, for years at a time.

Could Never Land

This design is probably the first nearly practical space ship. It cannot take off from earth. It cannot land on any planet. But Oberth says it will be able to carry space boats, which are smaller ships, for landing and take-off.

How to get this ship out into space in the first place?

It will have to be built out there, by men on man-made satellites, which will be small moons shot off the earth by step-rockets. This step-rocket and satellite engineering has been under way for 20 years, and the first one was the "Wac Corporal" shot off the nose of a German V-2, at White Sands, New Mexico. The "Wac Corporal" rose to about 250 miles.

Rocket engineers believe that the first satellite (the nose of some such rocket) is not many years away.

It diagnoses a car's ills scientifically. It uses such things as magnetic particle inspection — which can see the slightest break in material and thus anticipates big troubles. It uses formulas like "rate of change of speed measured in feet per second per second"—which is Presbrey's way of figuring the exact pick-up of a car.

The army is using Presbrey's invention to test some of its equipment. He's been hired by owners of taxi fleets and utilities trucks, to keep their vehicles running in top condition. He estimates that proper preventive maintenance can save any vehicle owner 12½ per cent in service fees, gas consumption, tire wear, batteries and loss of use of the car.

'Waiting until something goes wrong is the expensive way to run a car," says Presbrey. "Then you get some mechanic who uses the 'by-guess-and-by-God' method of fixing it, and you may get it fixed and maybe you don't."

If you want to make your car last longer — and he thinks all cars, if preventive maintenance is used, can last double the normal trouble-free 35,000 miles — do these:

1. Keep the tire pressure at the exact figure — no more, no less.
2. Criss-cross tires every so often, using the spare.
3. Keep speed down if you're driving on synthetic rubber.
4. Make sure your wheels are aligned properly.
5. Fill your gas tank often—air in the tank mixes with the gas, and air contains moisture which is harmful to the motor.
6. Make sure all battery connections are tight and corrosion-free.
7. Check brakes every 10,000 miles.
8. Have a complete change of grease in the rear end and transmission twice a year.
9. Have a chassis lubrication every 5,000 miles.
10. And have a complete check-up twice a year.

This year, a New York show, the Transport Vehicle Show, is being run just for the purpose of encouraging vehicle conservation.

Red-Trained Witch Doctors In Africa

By Leon Dennen
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

Washington —(NEA)— Moscow-trained Africans, masking as witch doctors, are playing on ancient superstitutions and modern grievances to foment discord among the workers mining uranium in the Belgian Congo for A-bomb production.

This sabotage activity was related by labor leaders who recently made a study of conditions in central Africa. It is confirmed by sources reported by French anti-Communist in Washington in a position to know the facts. It is confirmed also by J. Van Bilsen, editor of the Belgian-African Review, and Father S. J. Van Wing, Colonial Advisor to the Belgian government.

By paralyzing production of uranium, Moscow would hit the north American allies at a vulnerable spot. President Truman recently said that the Congo was ium ore. It also supplies 43 per cent of our cobalt, needed for heat-resistant metals used in jet planes.

Last year 60 Congo natives were reported to have received instruction at the Lenin university in Moscow, famous training school for Cominform propagandists and saboteurs. They work under instructions from the Soviet legation at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, alleged headquarters for the Cominform espionage apparatus in Africa.

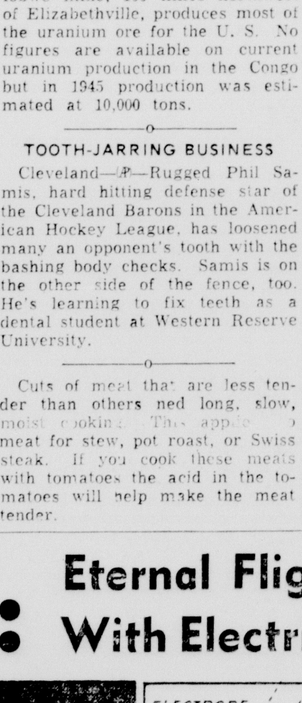

Native sorcerers and witch doctors, actually trained in Moscow or in league with Red agents, are organizing a network of secret sects among the natives through which they feed anti-European and anti-white propaganda to the local population.

The managers of the Shinkolobwe mines have repeatedly been confronted by a new pattern of labor demonstrations believed organized by Russian agents. These take the form of seemingly spontaneous native gatherings, where syncopated music and plaintive melodies played on the flute exalt the natives to disobediance.

Belgian security police have been singularly unable to lay their hands on the witch doctors who instigate these demonstrations among native uranium miners.

The pro-Commie World Federation of Trade Unions is active at the Katanga mines, where strategic pitchblend is mined, and at Leopoldville, principal seaport of the Congo from which uranium ore flows to the United States.

Members of the French delegation said the Reds were exploiting native superstitutions, abject poverty and the rigid color bar. Stringent measures taken by the Belgian Service of National Security had failed to prevent the development of a vast political-religious movement among the natives.

CONGO WITCH DOCTOR: The new-style medical degree came from a Moscow education.

Uranium ore from the Katanga district is of high grade and furnishes about 90 per cent of the world's radium. The rich Shinkolobwe mine, 100 miles northwest of Elizabethville, produces most of the uranium ore for the U. S. No figures are available on current uranium production in the Congo but in 1945 production was estimated at 10,000 tons.

Returns To Broadway Kicking High As Ever

CHARLOTTE GREENWOOD BACKSTAGE: "Little by little some bits of my old routine injected themselves into the role."

By Jack Price Gabriel

New York —(NEA) —When a Broadway star hasn't shed her light above the marquee of a New York theater in 24 years, the public doesn't expect her to return in the leading role of Cole Porter's latest musical comedy, but that's what Charlotte Greenwood did in "Out of This World."

The tall, slender comedienne, remembered by an older generation in "Linger Longer Letty" and a subsequent series of "Letty" shows, is back after almost a quarter of a century, looking about as she did when she left. Blonde and agile as ever, she's approaching 60 with the vitality of a woman half her age.

Getting her new part was a surprise to her.

"My phone rang one day in California," she explained, "and Cole Porter asked me to come over and read for his new show. I expected it to be a small role, but it was the feminine lead—that of Juno, wife of the god Jupiter."

Hearing her read was all Porter needed; she was signed.

This isn't a comeback in the normal sense. Miss Greenwood has never been out of the theater. She has been away from Broadway, but during those years she's toured the country in several plays and has made many motion pictures.

Wherever she toured, which includes most of the English-speaking world, she's put on an unadvertised performance of songs and dances at the end of the play.

When "Out of This World" went into rehearsal, changes were made in her part which had been written originally as straight comedy.

"I didn't expect to wind up doing the same things I was known for after the first world war," Miss Greenwood said. "But little by little some bits of my old routines injected themselves into the role until now Juno's really a lot like Letty, only more divine, of course, being a goddess."

The rehearsals were fine, and so was the out-of-town tryout. But when "Out of This World" opened in New York, Miss Greenwood experienced the most nerve-wracking moments of opening-night terror she'd ever had.

"I'd been away so many years," she said, with a wry face at the memory of her ordeal. "I very suddenly realized that New York audiences would not remember me as did people on the road where I'd played more recently. To them, my comedy might be merely old-fashioned and unamusing. My feeling was something like a soldier in combat; I was scared stiff, but I had to go on just the same."

The ovation that greeted her first entrance was utterly unexpected.

"It was so touching, I wanted to stand there and cry," she said. "I guess I did, a little, because then I knew they were still glad to see an old friend. It was the most exciting, heart-warming feeling in the world—that and the knowledge that I'm making new friends, too, of the young people."

"And the best part of it is, they've been doing it ever since," said Miss Greenwood, grinning happily. "I was really assured when two women walked by my dressing room after the first night and I heard one say to the other: 'That old gal is just as good as ever.'"

$250,000 MOLDY MONEY PUZZLING

Moth-Eaten, Mutilated Bills Turn Up At A U. S. Reserve Bank

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 3.—(AP)—It sounds a little like a dime thriller, but the government is trying today to solve the case of the moldy money.

A lot more than dimes are involved. It's a matter of $250,000, which popped up at a federal reserve bank in moth-eaten, mutilated and moldy condition.

The man who brought in the money, seeking to exchange it for crisp new bills says the money represents savings, that he had been "saving for quite some time."

The government wants to know where he got the money. And, besides said Uncle Sam, the gentleman in question owes the sum of $208,312 in back income taxes.

The man with the moldy money is Peter Joseph, 46 a former pool room operator in this hard coal city of 20,000 in eastern Pennsylvania.

He said he took the money to the federal reserve bank at Philadelphia "several days ago." It was "earmarked for taxes," he said, and besides, he wanted to pay some debts.

A government official, who refused permission to use his name, brought the strange case to light yesterday. The official said the bills Joseph took to the bank "were mutilated to the extent that it would have been hard to pass them."

"They probably would have been suspected of being counterfeit," the official added. "They had no doubt been buried a long time."

Joseph, who was named in the income tax lien as "Peter Yosief," said he was advised three years ago of a "deficiency in income taxes." He said he'd been "trying ever since to learn the exact amount so I could square up."

He gave up the operation of his pool room some time ago, and he wouldn't say where or how he had kept the moldy money.

The internal revenue department declined official comment and officers of the federal reserve bank refused to discuss the case at all, saying any transactions in which money is offered for exchange is a private affair.

In its tax lien the internal revenue department claimed Joseph owes income taxes from 1944 through 1950.

B-36 Is Vastly Improved, Still A Big Controversy

Big Bomber Is One Major Weapon Reds Don't Have—But Critics Call It False Sense Of Security

Washington—(NEA)—The giant B-36 bomber is the one major weapon which Uncle Sam has which the Russians do not possess. Even if U. S. ground forces should suffer maximum disasters inAsia and Europe, with a resultant world divided into two hostile hemispheres, the B-36 would give the U. S. a striking force capable of bringing Russia to its knees with A-bombs.

The Russians are well aware of this. And as a result the giant plane is considered to be a major deterrent to any Russian declaration of war.

Six of the $4,700,000 bombers have just made the first B-36 mission to Europe, fying from Texas to England on what the air force called "routine training."

Despite the tremendous advantage that this plane now appears to give to U. S. defenses, it continues to be one of the most controversial airplanes ever built. When it was first put on the drawing board in 1941 by Consolidated Aircraft designers it even caused controversy in the army air corps. The opposition held that a plane that big just wasn't practical.

In the summer of 1949 the B-36 was the main cause of the open and bitter feud between the air force and navy which inspired a full-dress congressional investigation.

Today, although its critics grudgingly admit that the plane has been improved tremendously in the last couple of years, they claim that it gives the country a false sense of security.

Since the bitter fight between the navy and air force broke out into the open the air force has been quietly doing everything possible to improve the plane's performance. When it was first flown it lumbered through the air at something less than 200 miles per hour. Today, having had four jet engines added to the six standard, pusher-type engines, it has a top speed of close to 450 miles-per-hour.

It was first hailed as a bomber that could carry a five-ton bomb load 10,000 miles. It is now capable of that and more. Maximum bomb load is now given as 42 tons, easily the equivalent of much more than one atomic bomb.

When its 10 engines are operating they are about equal to the pull of nine locomotives traveling at top speed. Its bomb load is more than the total weight of a fully-loaded B-24 Liberator. Its present, proved range of more than 10,000 miles is considered to be about twice the range of the best long-range Russian bombers, which are copies of America's B-29s.

Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey, air force director of operations, says that the morale of the 15-man crews in the B-36 groups is extremely high. He says that the men are completely sold on the performance and flight characteristics of the plane. Of the millions of miles flown by B-36s, only three have crashed. Although exact statistics aren't available, this safety record, it is said, compares favorably with any airplane the air force has developed.

After the congressional probe into the B-36, an independent weapons system evaluations group was set up to try to determine just whether or not the plane was a turkey. Results of this study are a secret but the air force is now buying an unrevealed large number of the bombers, with deliveries expected during the next couple of years.

According to air force spokesmen, the B-36 has proved itself so satisfactory in the past few months there has been some revised thinking on just what big bomber will be developed as the successor to it. There is a program under way to build prototypes of a B-52 which would have the load-carrying ability and range of the B-36, but would have all jet engines and be in the 600-mile-per-hour class.

However, there is consideration being given to modifying the basic B-36 design by adding swept-back wings and using either jets or turbo-props—a combination of jet and propeller power.

In explaining the amazing size of the monster B-36, the air force points out that a 600-room hotel could be heated by the plane's anti-icing equipment. The volume of the bomber is 18,000 cubic feet, equal to the volume of three average five-room houses. An automobile could go around the world 16 times and then visit every state in the union with the 21,116 gallons of gas which the wing tanks hold.

When the air force reaches its full strength, under present plans, it will have about eight groups of B-36s, with 30 planes to a group.

Valise Crashed, He Didn't

CAPT. FRED CLARK: At 60, he has no talent for loafing.

By Richard Kleiner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

New York —(NEA) — Somewhere between Frankurt and Berlin, airline pilot Capt. Fred V. Clark reached for his briefcase. It was on the bottom of a pile of luggage, and a valice fell off the top of the stack and cracked his collar-bone.

That accident happened last October, just about two months before Clark retired, at the age of 60, as a pilot for Pan American World Airways. It was the only accident Shorty Clark ever had in 33 years of flying.

In the 33 years, including 13 in the navy, Clark flew more than 21,450 hours. Statisticians estimate he covered more than 3,000,000 miles. And, in all that time, he's never had an accident, nor has any passenger ever so much as suffered a scratch.

Shorty—he's only five feet four—insists that his safety record is not unusual. He says there are a lot of pilots who fly just as carefully and safely as he does.

"Most accidents," he says, "are caused by carelessness. The best safety precaution is for a pilot to follow every instruction of the C. A. A. and the airline. Especially, never be afraid to turn back."

On one flight, a passenger noted oil leaking over the wing. Clark's instruments soon showed the leakage, and he immediately turned back to the airport he had taken off from.

"I probably could have made it to where we were headed," he says, "but the regulations say make for the nearest airport when something goes wrong. I didn't try to make it, but turned right around and went back."

The trouble turned out to be simple—the cap on the oil tank hadn't been screwed on tight.

Other safety rules that Clark feels are necessary and proper are the cockpit check-up, no overloading and figuring out a "point of no return."

The cockpit check-up is a form for the pilot and co-pilot to make a pre-take-off check on all equipment. He remembers one domestic airliner that cracked up when the controls locked, and he feels pretty sure that the pilot should have discovered that if he'd made a proper cockpit check-up.

"Overloading," he says, "is a mistake. If anything goes wrong, you don't stand a chance in an overloaded plane. That's what caused the crash of that plane from Puerto Rico last year. The pilot couldn't get back down because his plane was overloaded."

The "point of no return" is a spot, plotted by the navigator, beyond which the plane can't go back where it started with the gas it carries. It's important to know that, so the plane can go back if anything goes wrong. Clark thinks the Bermuda Sky Queen, which was lost at sea, ran into head winds and couldn't make the trip. The pilot should have turned back before he reached his "point of no return."

Now that he's retired, Shorty Clark isn't going to loaf. He's applied for a safety inspectorship with the C. A. A., and, as a retired navy warrant officer, he wouldn't be surprised at a call from Uncle Sam.

"Loafing is a fine art," says Clark, "and I don't have the talent for it."

TEEN TALK

BY VIVIAN BROWN

Sometimes the comic Valentine can be very unfunny. Particularly when the sender uses that mode of communication to settle a grudge or just to be spiteful.

Usually the comic Valentine is directed at a girl or boy who is particularly shy and therefore doesn't have many friends. Sometimes there is a drawback such as protruding teeth, large nose or some other physical impediment which makes the subject particularly self-conscious.

Instead of being a target for all the mean little darts that so-called Valentine's might send, these shy people could get special happiness from the right kind of Valentine.

If you really want to be a girl scout or boy scout for a day, do your good deed by sending a nice message to some boy or girl who might not get one otherwise. You can't get a more tremendous lift yourself, if you are the right type, than the pleasure of observing the glow that your less fortunate classmate or neighborhood companion might get from receiving that unexpected card.

Sometimes kids who have been endowed with a few advantages over their playmates do not realize how lonely it can be on the other side of the lawn. Make it a point to cheer a friend this Valentine's Day with a nice greeting, and if you plan a party try to round up the kids who never seem to get around. If you really make a point of it, you'll find it easy to pair off a couple who might be in the same boat of unpopularity.

A Valentine party is the ideal get-together for young people. You can do it on a shoestring—perhaps on your allowance. Or you can have your own group contribute to the cost of the shindig.

Valentine invitations are part of the fun. Make them gay. Shape little hearts out of red mat paper and write a pretty invitation. Something like:

"Juliets and Ro-me-os.
Bring your arrows and your bows,
To Susie Smith's romantic fete,
Valentine's Day up the street.
No William Tell You have to be
To get that girl (or guy) to fall for thee."

Dream up your own games. Your crowd probably has preferences. Quizzes always are fun and if you play a quiz game stick to romantic figures and situations to keep in the mood of the day.

Let your buffet table have a Valentine flair, red candles, heart motifs, etc. A good inexpensive menu could be: Chili con carne, cranberry hearts (shape them with the cookie cutter) and a nice big Valentine cake or fruit.

This is an inexpensive, easy and satisfying menu to whip up. The cake is easy to make with one of the ready-mix packages and the chili is a cinch. There is lots of debate about chili but here is a good recipe from a Tennessee backwoods chef that should really make your gang kick their heels in delight. After the chili is ready, if you want it hotter, add more cayenne pepper. This recipe serves eight. Double it for sixteen. Or serve it on spaghetti and noodles and you can use this amount for twelve. Here goes:

Chili Con Carne

Soak one and one-half pounds of pinto beans for several hours. (If you do not have pintos use cranberry or kidney beans—not as good however.)

Melt one and one-half tablespoon of butter and three tablespoons of cooking oil in a large skillet. Add a large onion diced fine, 1½ clove of diced garlic and brown. Add one and one-half pounds of ground round steak and cook until brown, letting it form into little clumps about the size of beans as it cooks. Stir occasionally.

Add 2 bay leaves, one small can of tomatoes, one tablespoon of tomato paste, a pinch of oregano, ¾ of a teaspoon of celery salt, 3 tablespoons of chili powder, ¾ teaspoon of cayenne pepper, ¾ teaspoon of salt. Cover with water. Bring to boil. Then turn down to simmer 2½ hours. Add the beans and cook an additional half hour. The beans should be good and firm when you add them to the meat.

Serve chili with salted crackers (and chopped raw onion, if you like). "Chili Mac" — (chili con carne over spaghetti) is delicious and a meat stretcher.

SPACE SHIPS: Eternal Flight Envisioned With Electric Wind Power

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Writer)

New York — Electric winds to drive interplanetary space ships are proposed by Prof. Hermann Oberth, the foremost living authority on rocket ships.

Electric winds are the invisible particles which fly off from an electrode, while electric current is on. An electrode is a piece of metal, frequently copper or silver, capable of carrying a lot of current.

The particles are atomic in size, which means that they fly off from electrodes for years, without an apparent dimunition in the size of the piece of metal.

That fact is well known. But Oberth proposes its use in a new and startling way. He is in Germany, where he is honorary president of the German Space Travel Society. His engineering plans are told in the magazine Radio-Electronics.

Candle Demonstrates Winds

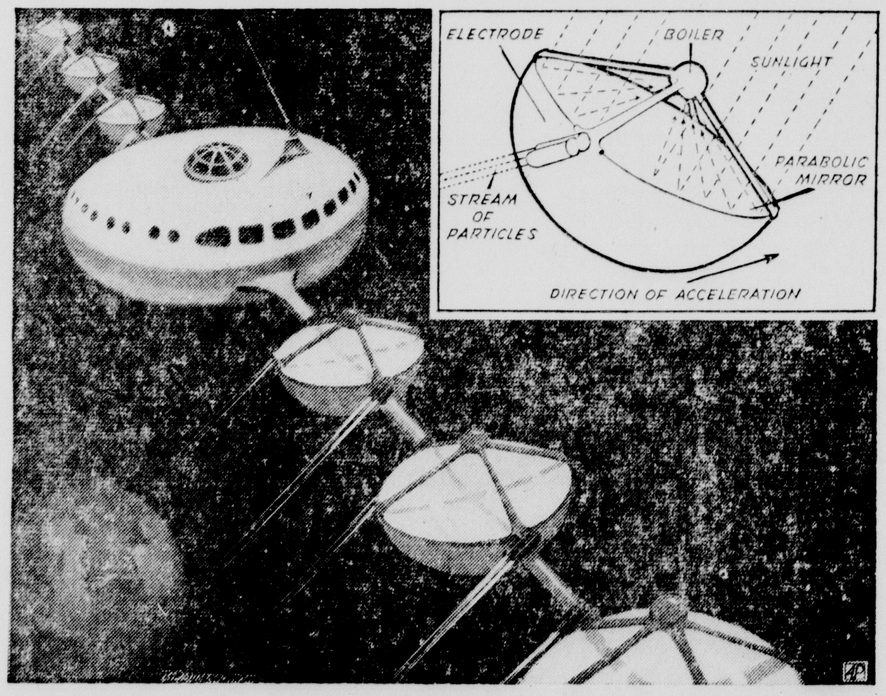

You can, Oberth says, set the sharp point of an electrode close to a lighted candle. When the current is turned on, a wind from the candle-point will blow out the flame.

The wind is ordinary air pushed by the stream of invisible atomic particles from the electrode point. This sort of wind, Professor Obert says, is of no use for driving a ship in the earth's atmosphere, because the wind is too weak.

But out in space, with no atmosphere to retard them, these particles will take off much faster. Each tiny takeoff will give a kick, in the opposite direction, to the electrode from which the particle comes.

Would Use Rocket Power

Now comes the daring new thought. The faster the take-off of a particle, the harder is its thrust or kick. And if you get the particles moving fast enough Oberth says they will drive a ship despite their scarcity.

FLYING SAUCERS—Artist's conception of how the proposed Oberth space ship would appear navigating in space. Inset shows theory of one of the propelling units.

The electrodes must have an endless supply of electric current. Oberth's design shows this can be done by using the sun's heat on bowl-shaped mirrors to generate electricity.

In interplanetary space there is no gravitation, a fact which Oberth uses cleverly to build a ship of light weight, and able to keep flying, in any direction it chooses, for years at a time.

Could Never Land

This design is probably the first nearly practical space ship. It cannot take off from earth. It cannot land on any planet. But Oberth says it will be able to carry space boats, which are smaller ships, for landing and take-off.

How to get this ship out into space in the first place?

It will have to be built out there, by men on man-made satellites, which will be small moons shot off the earth by step-rockets. This step-rocket and satellite engineering has been under way for 20 years, and the first one was the "Wac Corporal" shot off the nose of a German V-2, at White Sands, New Mexico. The "Wac Corporal" rose to about 250 miles.

Rocket engineers believe that the first satellite (the nose of some such rocket) is not many years away.

NOW AT JOY

"Use this where your heart ought to be," or words to that effect, award-winner Anne Baxter receives from rival star Bette Davis in a climatic scene from the bitter comedy hit about Broadway, "All About Eve," now at the Joy Theatre. Miss Baxter has been accoladed as a winner, but to Miss Davis she's a fiend, to Gary Merrill and George Sanders standing by a "killer." Don't let the embrace fool you. No love's lost.

Twelve Oscar Winners In 'All About Eve,' Now Showing At Joy Theater

Bette Davis Heads Strong In Academy Award Film Nomination

Twentieth Century-Fox's "All About Eve," a satire on the lives of Broadway stage stars which is at the Joy theater and was personally produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, presents a working staff which together has won twelve of the highly coveted awards presented annually by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Zanuck, boss of production at Twentieth Century-Fox, has twice won the Irving Thalberg Award as the outstanding producer of the year, and twice carried away Oscars for his pictures, "How Green Was My Valley," and "Gentleman's Agreement."

Writer-director Joseph L. Mankiewicz captured two Oscars last year for his work as writer and director of "A Letter to Three Wives."

Bette Davis who plays an aging star in "All About Eve," won the Academy honors for "Jezebel" and "Dangerous."

Anne Baxter walked away with an award for her role in "The Razor's Edge," and Celeste Holm for her performance in "Gentlemen's Agreement."

Other Academy winners are Barbara McLean, the film editor, who won an Oscar for the editing of "Wilson;" and Edith Head, costume designer who was honored for her creations in "The Heiress."

'Buccaneers' At Paramount Today

The rousing story of one of America's most violent figures, Jean Lafitte, is told in Columbia Pictures' "Last of the Buccaneers," today at the Paramount Theater. "Last of the Buccaneers" stars Paul Henreid as Lafitte, a soldier-sailor of fortune whose fleet swept the seven seas for loot, whose sword carved out a jungle empire for this outlaw bride.

History has recorded much of the rousing excitement which surrounded Lafitte and, according to advance report, so has this new screen adventure drama. Lafitte commanded a cutthroat crew which used the Louisiana bayous as its headquarters. A pirate with a price on his head, he marched against the British to save the city of New Orleans during the War of 1812. This made him a hero and a patriot, accepted in the highest society, but his newly-won respectability was no match for the violence in his nature.

He seized the island of Galveston from its Indian habitants and turned his attention to the ships of Spain, looting them of fabulous treasures. When, against his strictest orders, one of Lafitte's lieutenants plundered an American vessel, the man was summarily hanged. But the damage was done; the United States sent a force to destroy the erstwhile hero.

Woven through this thrill-filled drama of a man who defied nations is said to be an equally moving thread of romance. Lafitte's love for one of the society belles of old New Orleans figures prominently in "Last of the Buccaneers," as does the romantic conflict engendered when the tomboy daughter of one of his Galveston crew becomes jealous of Lafitte's attachment for the New Orleans girl.

Appearing in featured support of the redoubtable Henreid, as Lafitte, are Jack Oakie, Karin Booth and Mary Anderson. Oakie is cast as another of Lafitte's pirate crew; Miss Booth as the blonde and charming New Orleans girl and Miss Anderson as the sword-swinging hoyden.

Pie Marker Shows Where To Cut Slices

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)— The Veterans Administration came up with a tip for housewives today—a pie marker that punctures holes in unbaked pie crust.

VA said in a news release the device was invented and put to use at a midwest veterans hospital.

"The holes serve as guides for cutting uniform slices, and also as vents to allow steam to escape," the agency said.

"As a result, pies can be freshly cut after reaching the hospital dining room. Previously, pies were sliced in the kitchen, . . . but when the pie reached the patient, it often had lost some of its freshness."

The pie-slice marker was one of 3,000 "improved methods of operation" adopted by VA last year, the agency said.

Don't waste heat, when you are using an electric roaster, by lifting the lid to watch or test the foods unnecessarily. Peeking won't help you! Use reliable recipes and observe their temperature and timing.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Feb. 3. — Stewart Granger, increasingly bothered by an old back injury, is asking studio bosses to delay the start of "Scaramouche" long enough to let him undergo needed surgery . . . Wotzis about a prominent male star turning down the leading role in "The Syndicate" an anti-gambling picture because he was once a henchman of a big-shot eastern racketeer? . . . If Judy Garland does any more movie work, she'll do it at her present weight — approximately 140 pounds. Doctors have convinced her that excessive dieting was the prime cause of her past nerve disorders.

What cooks with Lana Turner and Bob Topping? He's building a new home near Balboa, California; her pals says she's asked her business agent to lease a New York apartment for her use . . . Good news for fans who like good pictures: MGM's decision to re-issue "Mutiny on the Bounty" . . . The principal decoration in Frank Sinatra's new apartment is a bust of his heart's desire, Ava Gardner. . . . Allan Jones is sufficiently recovered from that heart attack to ride in today's Palm Springs rodeo.

Gregory Peck is considering an offer to do a guest-star turn with the famous Abbey Players of Dublin next summer Andy Razoff, colored tunesmith who composed "Honeysuckle Rose" and "That's What I Like About the South," is in LA's Temple Hospital, partially paralyzed and facing major surgery.

Preview nights: Pic of another lacklustre week: 20th Century-Fox's "Call Me Mister" (Betty Grable - Dan Dailey - Danny Thomas). A sparkling filmusical, well larded with catchy tunes, eye-filling dance routines and solid laughs . . . Good: Universal - International's "Target Unknown" (Mark Stevens - Alex Nicol - Robert Douglas - Don Taylor - Gig Young). An off-the-beaten-path war drama based — cleverly and effectively — on one of Uncle Sam's World War II training films which concerned the interrogation of American air men by Nazi intelligence officers . . . Sub-par: Metro Goldwyn-Mayer's "Cause for Alarm" (Loretta Young - Barry Sullivan - Bruce Cowling). Contrived and over-written, it fails to capture, let alone hold, audience interest . . . Eagle-Lion's "The Wicked City" (Maria Montez - Jean Pierre Aumont - Lilli Palmer). A made-in-France "art" picture, snail-paced, unconvincing, and offensive in many of its sequences . . . Looking west: Columbia's "Prairie Roundup" (Charles Starrett - Smiley Burnette - Mary Castle). A high spot in the very spotty "Durango Kid" series . . . Best performance: Danny Thomas in "Call Me Mister."

Before concluding that Hollywood producers have a monopoly on mistaken ideas, consider a recently printed blast from a certain group of mid-west exhibitors, who solemnly advise the studios to stick to "entertainment" films and quit trying to make pictures that will win Academy Awards. That one caused me to look back through the annals and study the list (22 of them)) of Oscar-winning movies. I wonder if the exhibitors did as much before voicing their complaint? Personally, I can't find one film on that list that didn't make a fortune for its producers —and neither can I find one, produced within the past 18 years, that isn't capable of earning additional money as a re-release. And, money aside, I can't remember 22 other pictures offering more entertainment value than did those Academy Award winners, which include "Gone With the Wind", "Mutiny on the Bounty," "You Can't Take It With You," "Going My Way," "Mrs. Miniver," "It Happened One Night," "The Great Ziegfeld," "How Green Was My Valley," "All the King's Men," "Casablanca" and "Lost Weekend."

One of my fellow columnists, writing about Producer George Sidney's projected re-make of "Camille," wonders why Greta Garbo, who starred in the original screen version, wouldn't be ideal to star in it again. I think I can answer that one. Assuming that Garbo still looks young enough to play the heroine, she wouldn't be "ideal" from the viewpoint of any sane producer, for the simple reason that she hasn't made a picture in something like 13 years, and, as a consequence, has lost the majority of her fan following —and still expects to get a salary only slightly less fantastic than the national debt.

A publicity dispatch informs me that Piper Laurie, the girl whose press agent insisted that she ate the petals of flowers, has enrolled as a student at Los Angeles City College. With food prices what they are, I think she'd serve a better purpose as a professor. Lots of people would like to learn how to exist on flower petals.

Cut In Newsprint Is Ordered In Britain

London, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A new five per cent cut in newsprint has been ordered for Britain's newspapers, ost of which already have been cut down to a half dozen pages or less.

The new slash, which goes into effect Feb. 11, was announced last night by the newsprint supply company. The announcement said available stocks had fallen to the lowest level since 1940.

The government buys newsprint and distributes it to British papers through the supply company. A dollar shortage has forced the government to reduce its purchases.

COMING TO PARAMOUNT

JOHN AGAR and FRANK LOVEJOY make last-minute preparations before joining their buddies attempting the "Breakthrough" against the enemy forces. David Brian heads the stellar cast of the Warner Bros. film starting a four-day engagement at the Paramount Theatre Wednesday.

Warner's 'Breakthrough' Features Brian, Agar, Lovejoy At Paramount

Story Follows Platoon Of Infantrymen Through Stirring Experiences

Unfolding upon the screen as a rousing war drama rarely before duplicated for its true depiction of our G. I. heroes, their loves, their battles and ability to laugh in the face of the constant dangers of combat, the heralded Warner Bros. war drama, "Breakthrough," begins its local engagement at the Paramount Theater on Wednesday.

"Breakthrough" follows a platoon of infantrymen from the period of early training, preliminaries in invasion tactics and finally through the big invasion itself. It's these stirring experiences of the G. I.'s in war, highlighting their bazooka and tank encounters, which form a vivid part of this great epic.

David Brian, memorable for his roles in "Flamingo Road" and "The Damned Don't Cry," was the overwhelming choice to portray hard-bitten Captain Hale, a man of deep emotions well-hidden beneath a rugged exterior. Second in command, John Agar, hero of countless action fare, plays the sensitive lieutenant who proves his mettle during the bitter invasion. Frank Lovejoy, rising to immediate stardom after his characterization in "Three Secrets," rounds out the stellar trio as the battle-wise sergeant with an earnest respect for his captain.

Filmed with the cooperation of the navy and army on the beaches of Monterey and Fort Ord, Calif., much of the battle action is also shown via captured enemy films, thus lending the atmosphere of realism to the drama.

Beautiful Suzanne Dalbert supplies the romance in "Breakthrough," which also features William Campbell, Richard Monahan and Dick Wesson, the famous nightclub entertainer.

Bryan Foy produced the film for Warner Bros.

NOW AT JOY

"Use this where your heart ought to be," or words to that effect, award-winner Anne Baxter receives from rival star Bette Davis in a climatic scene from the bitter comedy hit about Broadway, "All About Eve," now at the Joy Theatre. Miss Baxter has been accoladed as a winner, but to Miss Davis she's a fiend, to Gary Merrill and George Sanders standing by a "killer." Don't let the embrace fool you. No love's lost.

Twelve Oscar Winners In 'All About Eve,' Now Showing At Joy Theater

Bette Davis Heads Strong In Academy Award Film Nomination

Twentieth Century-Fox's "All About Eve," a satire on the lives of Broadway stage stars which is at the Joy theater and was personally produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, presents a working staff which together has won twelve of the highly coveted awards presented annually by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Zanuck, boss of production at Twentieth Century-Fox, has twice won the Irving Thalberg Award as the outstanding producer of the year, and twice carried away Oscars for his pictures, "How Green Was My Valley," and "Gentleman's Agreement."

Writer-director Joseph L. Mankiewicz captured two Oscars last year for his work as writer and director of "A Letter to Three Wives."

Bette Davis who plays an aging star in "All About Eve," won the Academy honors for "Jezebel" and "Dangerous."

Anne Baxter walked away with an award for her role in "The Razor's Edge," and Celeste Holm for her performance in "Gentlemen's Agreement."

Other Academy winners are Barbara McLean, the film editor, who won an Oscar for the editing of "Wilson;" and Edith Head, costume designer who was honored for her creations in "The Heiress."

'Buccaneers' At Paramount Today

The rousing story of one of America's most violent figures, Jean Lafitte, is told in Columbia Pictures' "Last of the Buccaneers," today at the Paramount Theater. "Last of the Buccaneers" stars Paul Henreid as Lafitte, a soldier-sailor of fortune whose fleet swept the seven seas for loot, whose sword carved out a jungle empire for this outlaw bride.

History has recorded much of the rousing excitement which surrounded Lafitte and, according to advance report, so has this new screen adventure drama. Lafitte commanded a cutthroat crew which used the Louisiana bayous as its headquarters. A pirate with a price on his head, he marched against the British to save the city of New Orleans during the War of 1812. This made him a hero and a patriot, accepted in the highest society, but his newly-won respectability was no match for the violence in his nature.

He seized the island of Galveston from its Indian habitants and turned his attention to the ships of Spain, looting them of fabulous treasures. When, against his strictest orders, one of Lafitte's lieutenants plundered an American vessel, the man was summarily hanged. But the damage was done; the United States sent a force to destroy the erstwhile hero.

Woven through this thrill-filled drama of a man who defied nations is said to be an equally moving thread of romance. Lafitte's love for one of the society belles of old New Orleans figures prominently in "Last of the Buccaneers," as does the romantic conflict engendered when the tomboy daughter of one of his Galveston crew becomes jealous of Lafitte's attachment for the New Orleans girl.

Appearing in featured support of the redoubtable Henreid, as Lafitte, are Jack Oakie, Karin Booth and Mary Anderson. Oakie is cast as another of Lafitte's pirate crew; Miss Booth as the blonde and charming New Orleans girl and Miss Anderson as the sword-swinging hoyden.

Pie Marker Shows Where To Cut Slices

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)— The Veterans Administration came up with a tip for housewives today—a pie marker that punctures holes in unbaked pie crust.

VA said in a news release the device was invented and put to use at a midwest veterans hospital.

"The holes serve as guides for cutting uniform slices, and also as vents to allow steam to escape, the agency said.

"As a result, pies can be freshly cut after reaching the hospital dining room. Previously, pies were sliced in the kitchen, . . . but when the pie reached the patient, it often had lost some of its freshness."

The pie-slice marker was one of 3,000 "improved methods of operation" adopted by VA last year, the agency said.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Feb. 3. — Stewart Granger, increasingly bothered by an old back injury, is asking studio bosses to delay the start of "Scaramouche" long enough to let him undergo needed surgery . . . Wotzis about a prominent male star turning down the leading role in "The Syndicate" an anti-gambling picture because he was once a henchman of a big-shot eastern racketeer? . . . If Judy Garland does any more movie work, she'll do it at her present weight — approximately 140 pounds. Doctors have convinced her that excessive dieting was the prime cause of her past nerve disorders.

What cooks with Lana Turner and Bob Topping? He's building a new home near Balboa, California; her pals says she's asked her business agent to lease a New York apartment for her use . . . Good news for fans who like good pictures: MGM's decision to re-issue "Mutiny on the Bounty" . . . The principal decoration in Frank Sinatra's new apartment is a bust of his heart's desire, Ava Gardner. . . . Allan Jones is sufficiently recovered from that heart attack to ride in today's Palm Springs rodeo.

Gregory Peck is considering an offer to do a guest-star turn with the famous Abbey Players of Dublin next summer Andy Razoff, colored tunesmith who composed "Honeysuckle Rose" and "That's What I Like About the South," is in LA's Temple Hospital, partially paralyzed and facing major surgery.

Preview nights: Pic of another lacklustre week: 20th Century-Fox's "Call Me Mister" (Betty Grable - Dan Dailey - Danny Thomas). A sparkling filmusical, well larded with catchy tunes, eye-filling dance routines and solid laughs . . . Good: Universal - International's "Target Unknown" (Mark Stevens - Alex Nicol - Robert Douglas - Don Taylor - Gig Young). An off-the-beaten-path war drama based — cleverly and effectively — on one of Uncle Sam's World War II training films which concerned the interrogation of American air men by Nazi intelligence officers . . . Sub-par: Metro Goldwyn-Mayer's "Cause for Alarm" (Loretta Young - Barry Sullivan - Bruce Cowling). Contrived and over-written, it fails to capture, let alone hold, audience interest . . . Eagle-Lion's "The Wicked City" (Maria Montez - Jean Pierre Aumont - Lilli Palmer). A made-in-France "art" picture, snail-paced, unconvincing, and offensive in many of its sequences . . . Looking west: Columbia's "Prairie Roundup" (Charles Starrett - Smiley Burnette - Mary Castle). A high spot in the very spotty "Durango Kid" series . . . Best performance: Danny Thomas in "Call Me Mister."

Before concluding that Hollywood producers have a monopoly on mistaken ideas, consider a recently printed blast from a certain group of mid-west exhibitors, who solemnly advise the studios to stick to "entertainment" films and quit trying to make pictures that will win Academy Awards. That one caused me to look back through the annals and study the list (22 of them)) of Oscar-winning movies. I wonder if the exhibitors did as much before voicing their complaint? Personally, I can't find one film on that list that didn't make a fortune for its producers —and neither can I find one, produced within the past 18 years, that isn't capable of earning additional money as a re-release. And, money aside, I can't remember 22 other pictures offering more entertainment value than did those Academy Award winners, which include "Gone With the Wind", "Mutiny on the Bounty," "You Can't Take It With You," "Going My Way," "Mrs. Miniver," "It Happened One Night," "The Great Ziegfeld," "How Green Was My Valley," "All the King's Men," "Casablanca" and "Lost Weekend."

One of my fellow columnists, writing about Producer George Sidney's projected re-make of "Camille," wonders why Greta Garbo, who starred in the original screen version, wouldn't be ideal to star in it again. I think I can answer that one. Assuming that Garbo still looks young enough to play the heroine, she wouldn't be "ideal" from the viewpoint of any sane producer, for the simple reason that she hasn't made a picture in something like 13 years, and, as a consequence, has lost the majority of her fan following —and still expects to get a salary only slightly less fantastic than the national debt.

A publicity dispatch informs me that Piper Laurie, the girl whose press agent insisted that she ate the petals of flowers, has enrolled as a student at Los Angeles City College. With food prices what they are, I think she'd serve a better purpose as a professor. Lots of people would like to learn how to exist on flower petals.

Cut In Newsprint Is Ordered In Britain

London, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A new five per cent cut in newsprint has been ordered for Britain's newspapers, ost of which already have been cut down to a half dozen pages or less.

The new slash, which goes into effect Feb. 11, was announced last night by the newsprint supply company. The announcement said available stocks had fallen to the lowest level since 1940.

The government buys newsprint and distributes it to British papers through the supply company. A dollar shortage has forced the government to reduce its purchases.

COMING TO PARAMOUNT

JOHN AGAR and FRANK LOVEJOY make last-minute preparations before joining their buddies attempting the "Breakthrough" against the enemy forces. David Brian heads the stellar cast of the Warner Bros. film starting a four-day engagement at the Paramount Theatre Wednesday.

Warner's 'Breakthrough' Features Brian, Agar, Lovejoy At Paramount

Story Follows Platoon Of Infantrymen Through Stirring Experiences

Unfolding upon the screen as a rousing war drama rarely before duplicated for its true depiction of our G. I. heroes, their loves, their battles and ability to laugh in the face of the constant dangers of combat, the heralded Warner Bros. war drama, "Breakthrough," begins its local engagement at the Paramount Theater on Wednesday.

"Breakthrough" follows a platoon of infantrymen from the period of early training, preliminaries in invasion tactics and finally through the big invasion itself. It's these stirring experiences of the G. I.'s in war, highlighting their bazooka and tank encounters, which form a vivid part of this great epic.

David Brian, memorable for his roles in "Flamingo Road" and "The Damned Don't Cry," was the overwhelming choice to portray hard-bitten Captain Hale, a man of deep emotions well-hidden beneath a rugged exterior. Second in command, John Agar, hero of countless action fare, plays the sensitive lieutenant who proves his mettle during the bitter invasion. Frank Lovejoy, rising to immediate stardom after his characterization in "Three Secrets," rounds out the stellar trio as the battle-wise sergeant with an earnest respect for his captain.

Filmed with the cooperation of the navy and army on the beaches of Monterey and Fort Ord, Calif., much of the battle action is also shown via captured enemy films, thus lending the atmosphere of realism to the drama.

Beautiful Suzanne Dalbert supplies the romance in "Breakthrough," which also features William Campbell, Richard Monahan and Dick Wesson, the famous nightclub entertainer.

Bryan Foy produced the film for Warner Bros.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Go Easy With Wild Cards

(Written for NEA Service)

In two-hand canasta, the average player makes or breaks himself by the way he uses wild cards. This is best seen in my favorite version of two-hand canasta—in which you draw two cards at each turn but discard only one card.

You need two canastas to meld out in this game, and you usually get four or five wild cards during the course of a hand. It stands to reason that you can afford to use only about two wild cards per canasta (even though the rules of the game allow you to use three wild cards in a canasta.) If you use three wild cards in your first canasta, you may wind up with only one for the second canasta—and that may prevent you from ever completing that vital second canasta.

This is true, of course, only in the general run of hands. Every once in a while you will find seven or eight wild cards in your hand. In such cases you can afford to use them more liberally. Easy come, easy go. Contrariwise, you will sometimes get only one or two wild cards during the entire hand; and then you must be very economical with them.

One rule is a must. After you have made your initial meld, you must never use a wild care in any meld that contains only two or three natural cards. Such a meld may never become a canasta; you need four natural cards at the very least. Hence it is very foolish to put a wild card down on a meld unless that meld contains at least four natural cards.

Another point that separates the winners from the losers is the question of holding up. The ideal time to meld is just before your opponent goes out. There's no advantage in melding early, because that tells your opponent which melds you have and how many cards you have in each of them. Therefore you tend to hold a meld up as long as possible instead of putting it down on the table.

The trouble with holding up a meld is that occasionally your opponent goes out and catches you with a tremendous number of cards in your hand. Perhaps you had six natural cards in one rank and were waiting in the hope of completing a natural canasta. After your opponent goes out, you will wish you had put down your six natural cards with a wild card.

Should you therefore follow a safety rule of melding a canasta as soon as possible? That also is unsound. For one think, you'll miss a lot of natural canastas if you always content yourself with a mixed canasta. What's more your opponent will be able to rely too much on your play. Whenever you fail to put down a canasta, he will be sure that you haven't got one.

You have to steer your course somewhere between the extreme of melding too early and the other extreme of getting caugse before you can meld. If you are a good psychologist, you will usually know how long you can afford to hold melds in your hand.

You can usually tell how close your opponent is to melding out. When he gets uncomfortably close to his goal, you'd better get your melds down on the table.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

W. P. Trew Plans To Aid In Masonry

W. P. Trew, enthusiastic member of the Masonic Order has been named "dad" of both Rainbow Girls and the boy's order of DeMolay. He is anxious to build up both and plans to spend considerable time in this work.

The next meeting of Rainbow Girls will be on February 8, and DeMolay meets February 7 in the West Monroe temple. Both are regular communications and there will be initiations in both orders.

Plans for the initiation of an order in Farmerville by DeMolay will be discussed. It is hoped to have them in Rayville and other surrounding towns.

ENEMY'S TYPHUS MAY HELP U. N.

Could Deplete Foe's Power Sufficiently To Sway Korean War

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Prompt and large scale Russian technical help may decide whether typhus fever depletes satellite power sufficiently to sway the tide of battle in Korea.

Military officials here expressed this guarded opinion after measuring Red China's estimated military medical facilities against current reports of a typus epidemic among north Korean troops.

Major Gen. R. W. Bliss, army surgeon general, said today there has been no typus among American or U. N. troops in Korea. He said also that it was standard procedure to spray with D. D. T. all of the civilian refugees now swarming behind the U. N. lines. This is to kill the lice which carry typhus, a disease which has always been present in Korea in the winter months.

Other army officials said that all Koreans south of the 38th parallel were vaccinated against typhus when an epidemic broke out there during the second year of U. S. occupation following World War II. These officers doubted whether such a wholesale vaccination had been kept up in Korea. They gave assurance, however, that the U. S. army has ample supplies of typhus vaccine and will use it on the civilians if and when it is needed.

China developed a basic typhus vaccine some 16 years ago by hard work and methods since outdated by American technology. American officers who try to keep track of such developments around the world doubt whether Chinese techonology was able during the long war with Japan or since to perfect modern techniques.

The Chinese method was crude and effective, but the very method used strictly limited the output of vaccine.

Chinese scientists gathered a quantity of body lice. They fed these vermin on typhus patients. Then they hired beggers to play hosts to typhus carrying lice. In due course a large number of typhus infected lice were accumulated, crushed into a paste and made into vaccine.

The American technique is to grow the rikettsia organism, which causes typhus, on an egg culture. One medical authority estimated that this technique would produce more vaccine from one egg at a time than the Chinese method could produce in a year.

The Russians are known to be able to mass produce typhus vaccine. Several years ago they helped the Chinese combat an epidemic in inner Mongolia.

AIRCRAFT CLASS OPENING LATER

Electric Classes In Vocational School Also Set For Feb. 6

According to H. P. Willis, director, Ouachita Valley Vocational School, bad weather and hazardous driving conditions forced the school to postpone registration of the aircraft engine and the electric classes originally set for January 30 and 31.

Registration for both classes will be held at the Ouachita Valley Vocational School on Slack street, West Monroe, La., Tuesday night, February 6 at 7:00 o'clock.

Mr. W. C. Wilhite, Jr., the instructor in electricity will be in his shop to answer any questions. Mr. Alvin Fleming, the instructor in aircraft engines will be in his shop to take care of those interested in aircraft engines. If you are interested in either of these classes please be present Tuesday night, February 6 at 7:00 o'clock. Important matters, such as the nights the class will operate and the number of hours the class operate each night will be decided by the group. The classes are to be extension classes and will be arranged to suit the convenience of the group. Since the school is a state operated public institution there will be no charge for instruction. Additional information may be obtained by dialing 3-3491 or 3-3492.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Go Easy With Wild Cards

(Written for NEA Service)

In two-hand canasta, the average player makes or breaks himself by the way he uses wild cards. This is best seen in my favorite version of two-hand canasta—in which you draw two cards at each turn but discard only one card.

You need two canastas to meld out in this game, and you usually get four or five wild cards during the course of a hand. It stands to reason that you can afford to use only about two wild cards per canasta (even though the rules of the game allow you to use three wild cards in a canasta.) If you use three wild cards in your first canasta, you may wind up with only one for the second canasta—and that may prevent you from ever completing that vital second canasta.

This is true, of course, only in the general run of hands. Every once in a while you will find seven or eight wild cards in your hand. In such cases you can afford to use them more liberally. Easy come, easy go. Contrariwise, you will sometimes get only one or two wild cards during the entire hand; and then you must be very economical with them.

One rule is a must. After you have made your initial meld, you must never use a wild care in any meld that contains only two or three natural cards. Such a meld may never become a canasta; you need four natural cards at the very least. Hence it is very foolish to put a wild card down on a meld unless that meld contains at least four natural cards.

Another point that separates the winners from the losers is the question of holding up. The ideal time to meld is just before your opponent goes out. There's no advantage in melding early, because that tells your opponent which melds you have and how many cards you have in each of them. Therefore you tend to hold a meld up as long as possible instead of putting it down on the table.

The trouble with holding up a meld is that occasionally your opponent goes out and catches you with a tremendous number of cards in your hand. Perhaps you had six natural cards in one rank and were waiting in the hope of completing a natural canasta. After your opponent goes out, you will wish you had put down your six natural cards with a wild card.

Should you therefore follow a safety rule of melding a canasta as soon as possible? That also is unsound. For one think, you'll miss a lot of natural canastas if you always content yourself with a mixed canasta. What's more your opponent will be able to rely too much on your play. Whenever you fail to put down a canasta, he will be sure that you haven't got one.

You have to steer your course somewhere between the extreme of melding too early and the other extreme of getting caugse before you can meld. If you are a good psychologist, you will usually know how long you can afford to hold melds in your hand.

You can usually tell how close your opponent is to melding out. When he gets uncomfortably close to his goal, you'd better get your melds down on the table.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

W. P. Trew Plans To Aid In Masonry

W. P. Trew, enthusiastic member of the Masonic Order has been named "dad" of both Rainbow Girls and the boy's order of DeMolay. He is anxious to build up both and plans to spend considerable time in this work.

The next meeting of Rainbow Girls will be on February 8, and DeMolay meets February 7 in the West Monroe temple. Both are regular communications and there will be initiations in both orders.

Plans for the initiation of an order in Farmerville by DeMolay will be discussed. It is hoped to have them in Rayville and other surrounding towns.

ENEMY'S TYPHUS MAY HELP U. N.

Could Deplete Foe's Power Sufficiently To Sway Korean War

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Prompt and large scale Russian technical help may decide whether typhus fever depletes satellite power sufficiently to sway the tide of battle in Korea.

Military officials here expressed this guarded opinion after measuring Red China's estimated military medical facilities against current reports of a typus epidemic among north Korean troops.

Major Gen. R. W. Bliss, army surgeon general, said today there has been no typus among American or U. N. troops in Korea. He said also that it was standard procedure to spray with D. D. T. all of the civilian refugees now swarming behind the U. N. lines. This is to kill the lice which carry typhus, a disease which has always been present in Korea in the winter months.

Other army officials said that all Koreans south of the 38th parallel were vaccinated against typhus when an epidemic broke out there during the second year of U. S. occupation following World War II. These officers doubted whether such a wholesale vaccination had been kept up in Korea. They gave assurance, however, that the U. S. army has ample supplies of typhus vaccine and will use it on the civilians if and when it is needed.

China developed a basic typhus vaccine some 16 years ago by hard work and methods since outdated by American technology. American officers who try to keep track of such developments around the world doubt whether Chinese techonology was able during the long war with Japan or since to perfect modern techniques.

The Chinese method was crude and effective, but the very method used strictly limited the output of vaccine .

Chinese scientists gathered a quantity of body lice. They fed these vermin on typhus patients. Then they hired beggers to play hosts to typhus carrying lice. In due course a large number of typhus infected lice were accumulated, crushed into a paste and made into vaccine.

The American technique is to grow the rikettsia organism, which causes typhus, on an egg culture. One medical authority estimated that this technique would produce more vaccine from one egg at a time than the Chinese method could produce in a year.

The Russians are known to be able to mass produce typhus vaccine. Several years ago they helped the Chinese combat an epidemic in inner Mongolia.

AIRCRAFT CLASS OPENING LATER

Electric Classes In Vocational School Also Set For Feb. 6

According to H. P. Willis, director, Ouachita Valley Vocational School, bad weather and hazardous driving conditions forced the school to postpone registration of the aircraft engine and the electric classes originally set for January 30 and 31.

Registration for both classes will be held at the Ouachita Valley Vocational School on Slack street, West Monroe, La., Tuesday night, February 6 at 7:00 o'clock.

Mr. W. C. Wilhite, Jr., the instructor in electricity will be in his shop to answer any questions. Mr. Alvin Fleming, the instructor in aircraft engines will be in his shop to take care of those interested in aircraft engines. If you are interested in either of these classes please be present Tuesday night, February 6 at 7:00 o'clock Important matters, such as the nights the class will operate and the number of hours the class operate each night will be decided by the group. The classes are to be extension classes and will be arranged to suit the convenience of the group. Since the school is a state operated public institution there will be no charge for instruction. Additional information may be obtained by dialing 3-3491 or 3-3492.

Scalloped potatoes and cole slaw are delicious to serve with a roast loin pork. If you feel like baking make up a loaf of pineapple bran bread and an extra accompaniment to this menu.

SMILIN' JACK

JACK, I HATE FOR YOU TO BE AWAY SO MUCH BUT I'VE NO RIGHT TO COMPLAIN!

— MANY WIVES HAVE TO GIVE UP THEIR HUSBANDS FOR MONTHS AN' YEARS AT TIMES LIKE THESE!

NIIIII

TRUE, SABLE! OUR AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE IS FACING AN INSIDIOUS ENEMY AND EVERY PERSON MUST DO HIS PART TO HELP US SURVIVE!

— MY PRESENT JOB IS COORDINATOR BETWEEN THE C.A.P., TH' EMERGENCY AVIATION COUNCIL AND CIVIL DEFENSE UNITS!

LATER

HELLO, SMILIN' JACK! I'M SCHOLLY WANZ — I'M A FLYIN' FARMER AND I WANT TO TAKE AN ACTIVE PART IN TH' CIVIL AIR PATROL —

— JUST AS SOON AS MY FARM DUTIES ALLOW ME SOME SPARE TIME — BUT IN THE MEANTIME I CAN BE A STAND-BY!

— I HAVE A PLANE AND A LANDING STRIP ON MY RANCH AND I WANT TO SIGN UP WITH THE EMERGENCY AVIATION COUNCIL —

— SO THAT THE C.A.P. AND DEFENSE UNITS WILL KNOW WHERE TO REACH ME IF EXTRA PLANES AND PILOTS ARE NEEDED IN AN EMERGENCY.

GOOD! IN TIMES OF STRESS, OUR AIRLINES AND TRANSPORT FACILITIES HAVE SUPER-HUMAN JOBS TO DO!

— OUR COUNTRY'S THOUSANDS OF PRIVATE PILOTS AND PLANES CAN HELP TO RELIEVE OVER-BURDENED TRANSPORTS!

— ALSO, THIS MASS OF CIVIL AIR POWER THAT IS DISPERSED ALL OVER AMERICA MIGHT BE A MOST VITAL MEANS OF EVACUATION — — AND OF LANDING URGENT MEDICAL PERSONNEL AND SUPPLIES ON STREETS AND IN PARKS, IN THE EVENT OF ATOMIC DISASTER!

MEANWHILE

WHAT A JAM I'M IN! LT. ALEC SAYS THAT HIS ROOMMATE, LT. PINFEATHERS, TOLD HIM TO USE HIS CAR, AND WHEN HE COULDN'T FIND IT —

LT. ALEC REPORTED TH' CAR STOLEN! — THEN, I GOT CAUGHT TAKING IT TO TOWN —

— TO TH' MECHANIC, AS LT. PINFEATHERS HAD ASKED ME TO DO!

— I CAN'T PROVE IT BECAUSE LT. PINFEATHERS IS AWAY ON A SECRET MISSION!

— SO, MY T.O. HAS CONFINED ME TO THE BASE, PENDING FURTHER INVESTIGATION!

— AM I LOW! OH, IF I COULD ONLY JUST SEE LAVA-LAVA!

BUT WITH MY CADET CAREER HANGING BY A THREAD, I DON'T DARE MAKE A MOVE THAT MIGHT GET ME INTO MORE TROUBLE!

— BUT, GEE — IT'S TORTURE TO THINK THAT LAVALAVA LIVES ONLY A FEW BLOCKS FROM HERE!

TARZAN

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

THE APE-MAN BLOCKED THE SLAVE'S ATTACK by HURLING HIM RUTHLESSLY OVER HIS HEAD.

DAZED, HE STAGGERED TO HIS FEET AS SKAR, THE QUARRY MASTER, CAME FORWARD. "WHAT'S GOING ON?"

"IT'S HIS FAULT," WHINED THE SLAVE, POINTING TO TARZAN. BUT THE GIRL SUDDENLY INTERRUPTED. "NO! I AM TO BLAME!"

SKAR HESITATED WHEN HE SAW THE BEAUTIFUL GIRL, "AH, HA! NOW I UNDERSTAND!"

"ALSO, I CAN EASILY SETTLE THE ARGUMENT," HE GRINNED EVILLY, "FOR I WILL BUY THIS MORGEL FOR MYSELF!"

"AND YOU, MY SPIRITED BEAST, MUST LEARN DISCIPLINE." THEN HE ROARED, "TOMORROW, ONE HUNDRED LASHES!"

COLGATE DENTAL CREAM STOPS TOOTH DECAY BEST

Most Thoroughly Proved and Accepted Home Method Of Oral Hygiene Known Today!

Reader's Digest recently reported the very same research which proves that the Colgate way of brushing teeth right after eating stops tooth decay best! The most thoroughly proved and accepted home method of oral hygiene known today!

Yes, and two years' research showed the Colgate way stopped more decay for more people than ever before reported in all dentifrice history! No other dentifrice—ammoniated or not—offers such proof—the most conclusive proof ever reported for a dentifrice of any type!

*YOU SHOULD KNOW! Colgate's, while not mentioned by name, was the one and only toothpaste used in the scientific research on tooth decay recently reported in Reader's Digest.
